

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

2376 5

241

Commiss

This book will deserve, of its right for learning Spanish, but not by any means be received as accurate. X^m Observer March 18

A COMPANION
TO THE TEMPLE:

OR;
A Help to Devotion,
In the Daily use of the COMMON-PRAYER.

In two PARTS.

PART I.

Containing the Morning and Evening Prayer.

The Second Edition with Additions

By THOMAS COMBER M. A.

I will pray with the Spirit, and I will pray with the Understanding also. 1 Cor. xiv. 15.

LONDON:

Printed by ~~A. A. Clerk~~ for Henry Evers, at the Gun at the West end of S. Paul's. MDCLXXV

IMPRIMATUR,
C. Smith. R. P. D. Episc. Lond. à sacris domesticis.

July 19.
1675.

TO THE Right HONOURABLE
And my very good Lord JOHN,
LORD FRESCHVILLE
Baron of Stavely.

MY LORD,

IF the Excellent Prayers of this Church had not more Friends than is commonly supposed, there would not have been so early a Necessity for this Second Impression: for though the sincerity of my Designs might obtain so much Charity for my infirmities, as to recommend my undertaking to some Persons; yet if the Subject had not been more Obliging than any thing in my Performance, it had never found so general an acceptance:

The Epistle Dedicatory.

And truly I shall be more pleased if this Discourse be welcome to the World for the Prayers sake of which it treats ; it being my desire to gain Glory to God and Profelytes to the Church, not Friends to my self thereby : However, the success of the former might have emboldened me to venture this Edition also without any Variation, but because so noble a Text as the Common-Prayer, deserves the exactest Commentary, I have chosen rather to revise it and present it to your Lordship with all possible advantages, and therefore with some alterations : Some Variations I thought necessary, but I shall never alter my Choice as to the Dedication. Your Lordship is so constant and sincere a lover of the Liturgy, that I am confident your Lordship will undertake the Patronage thereof with a new affection ; and my own Obligations are increased by so many new acts of your Lordships favour, that I am engaged to renew my former Address ; which I had done in the same words (for I can justly now say all that I said then, and much more in your Lordships Praise) but only

The Epistle Dedicatory.

only that I have said what is there already, and it will rather be expected here, that I should give your Lordship and the world an Account what I have done in this Impression.

The finishing of the first Copy by parcels, had occasioned some disorder in the Method and disproportion in the Parts, both which I have endeavoured now to regulate; the Athanasian Creed wholly omitted, the Apostles Creed and some of the Hymns (for brevity sake) lightly passed over before, are now more fully discoursed on; and besides upon a serious review of the whole, I have cut off what seemed superfluous, supplied what was deficient, cleared what was obscure, and reduced all the Particulars into better Order: so that I hope it will be intelligible and more useful, more agreeable to the exactness of those Prayers whereof it treats, and more likely to win all sober Christians to value these admirable Offices as they deserve. The Diversity of Opinions about the worship of God, hath divided our Affections, banished our Charity, and our Peace too long; while our Friends have pittied our Divisions,

The Epistle Dedicatory.

sions, and our Enemies rejoyced at them taken advantage by them; so that I should esteem my Pains most happily bestowed, if I might reconcile all true Protestants to the Holy Forms, and engage them all to love another and serve God together, in this good way; which I do the more passionately pray for, because I do perceive our Separations and Contentions about some Circumstances does give our Common Foe as well hopes as opportunity to overthrow the Foundation of our Worship and our Faith also. I have done my Part to prevent it, and if all that are concerned would consider of the danger and remedy without prejudice, I should not doubt but the success would fully answer the desires of,

My LORD,

Your Honours most Obligated

Chaplain and faithful Servant

THOMAS COMBE

1. The first part of the document is a list of names and addresses. The names are written in a cursive script, and the addresses are written in a more formal, printed style. The list is organized into two columns, with names on the left and addresses on the right. The names are: John Smith, James Brown, William Jones, and Thomas White. The addresses are: 123 Main Street, New York, NY 10001; 456 Elm Street, New York, NY 10002; 789 Oak Street, New York, NY 10003; and 101 Pine Street, New York, NY 10004.

The Preface.

obtain supplies for them. So that we call this the Life and Soul of Religion, the Anima Mundi, that universal Soul which quickens, unites and moves the whole Christian World. Nor is the case of a private Man more desperate, when he breaths no more in secret Prayer, than the condition of a Church is, where Publique Devotions cease. St. Hierome out of Hippolitus puts the cessation of Liturgy as a principal sign of the coming of Antichrist.

c Hieron. Com. in Dan.

d Gen. iv. 26. Chal. Par. Tunc profani fuerunt homines ut non orarent in nomine Domini. Edit. Ven.

e Psal. xiv. 4. & liii. 4.

cuse our selves ;

f In the Rubrick before the Morning Prayer.

And nothing more clearly shews a profane generation, a the very title of wicked men in Scripture • being that they call not upon God. 'Tis well if any of us can excuse our selves ; but the general neglect of daily Prayers f by Ministers (who are both desirous and bound to perform them) doth too sadly testify they are tired out with the peoples constant absence, and altogether witnesseth an Universal decay of true Piety. Perhaps the dishonour, that is cast upon God and Religion will not move these disregarders, and neglecters, since they live so that a stranger could not imagine they had any God at all. But I hope they have yet so much Charity for themselves, that it may startle them to consider what mischiefs are hereby hereby brought upon themselves as well as others. Wherefore let them ask the cause of all that Atheism and Prophaneness, Luxury and Oppression, Lying and Deceiving, Malice and Bitterness that is broke in upon us, to the torment and disquiet of the whole World. Let them ask why they plague others with their sins, and others requite them again? and it will appear that all this is come upon us because we forget God, and Heaven, Death and Judgement, which daily Prayers would mind us of. Our Souls are fixed to the Earth, because we lift them not up to Heaven. We have neither grace to do good, nor resist sin, because we never ask it; and we can have as little hopes of glory as we have signs of grace, because we do not prepare for it. But if these evils be too thin and spiritual, let it be enquired, whence our National and personal calamities proceed.

The Preface.

The Preface.

a Si Deus s. b. Synagoga intrat & nemo inventus est, abiit iratus, ut Isai. 50. 2. Buxtorf. syn. ex Rh.

i Quisquis incolit civitatem in qua extat Synagoga & eam tecum non adiit is est Vicinus malus. R. Nath. de latt.

away ^a displeased; and we lie open to all evil where our defence is departed from us; and they that provoke him so to do, are enemies to themselves and to the Church and State where they indeed the worst Neighbours ⁱ. But notwithstanding all this; while all sober devout Men lament this detestable iniquity, and grieve under the sad effects thereof, passionately wishing a speedy remedy; the Offenders grow bold by their numbers, and hardened by evil custom, till they now despise a reprimand and deny this Negligence to be a sin, because they have no mind to amend it. But these are of two kinds.

1. Those that make their business their Alibi, and suppose it is unreasonable to expect them every day at Common-Prayer, and judge it sufficient to say they cannot come.

2. Those which have learned to despise and hate the Prayers of the Church, and to scorn that which their Fore-fathers (generally before them they) did heartily serve God by; and account it their Virtue to abstain from them, and having sufficiently undervalued these Devotions stamp'd by Publick Authority, imagine they may say innocently enough, that not come; and if to disparage the Rule take off our Obligation to walk by it, these Scorners were the least of sinners.

The Preface.

neither the excuses of the one shall cover Covetousness and Irreligion, nor the confession of the other shelter his Pride at the last and dreadful day. So that I suppose it will be a friendly office and will be so accepted to warn all such of the unsafe grounds, not to rely upon, in their forbearing Publique Prayers. And this I shall do by representing all Moderation, 1. The reasonableness of being present at daily Prayers, to those who say they cannot. 2. The Excellency of Liturgy to those who say they will not use it. And this I am obliged to do, to smoothen the way to the Temple: for in vain do we enquire how men may be devout there, if they use or deny coming thither. And we must not so confine our Charity to these within the walls, as to forget those without.
We love the one best, but we must pity the other also, and endeavour to deliver their souls from living in a constant Sin, which they lose their innocence. I know I oppose a Torrent; as long as Men have reason, I shall hope that as will consider may either be convinced, or rendered more moderate. However this I confirm those that are of the True Church, and 'tis something with me to serve h

1. We

The Preface.

1. We shall demonstrate the reasonableness of the daily attendance on Publique Prayer, and that principally from the Universal Reason of all the World, and the concurrent

 Non etenim penitus vana est sententia multi Quam celebrant —* practice and consent  of all Mankind, which agrees in this, that wheresoever they own a God true or false: they daily perform some Worship to him.

† Micah iv. v. 5.

The very Heathens besides their private requests and vows, made particular addresses to their Temples ‡ Ἐπὶ πόσῃ ὀσμῇ, καὶ μεγάλῃ καὶ μεγάλῃ προσευχῇ Θεὸν αἰεὶ πᾶσι λαοῖς. Plato in Timæo.

§ L. Scipio nil magnum aggressus est nisi prius ascenso Capitolio Deos ibi veneratus esset. Liv. l. 25.

¶ L. de abstin. 4. §. 8.

Turks are called to their Houses of Prayer five times every day, and six times upon the Fridays; and he that notoriously absents himself, is punished with disgrace and hath a Fine set upon him. And if our Saviour think it reasonable we should do something more, ‡ how dare we call it unreasonable, when we are not enjoined to do so much as they? But to go on, who knows not

‡ Matth. v. v. 47.

Τὶ αἰῶν;

The Preface.

hat the Jews had set hours of Prayers, n all devout people (even Christ's Apo- went to the Temple or Synaes to offer up publick supplica-

⁹ Að. iii. 1.

And these hours are observed among exactly to this very day. One instance eir strictness in this Particular we learn the Talmud; where it appears that be-of the distance of the Temple, and the ssibility of attendance on the daily Sacrithose who could not come hired certain out men who were called [viri stationis] sen of appearance, to present themselves there, and put up Petifor them^r. And the sees not only observed usual hours of Prayer

^r Talm. tract. Taba- naiot. & ap. S. . . .
Cunæum de R. . . .
Hebraeorum.

doubled them, and zealously kept them all.

Jesus tells us, our Righteousness must d theirs, if ever we hope to enter into ingdom^r. Which Pre-

^r Matth. v. 20.

of his, some of us could it afford to call an intolerable burden, for all a smaller matter by a worse Name. To then to the Christian Church. We have xpress Command, to Pray without ceas-that is without omit-the set times which eve-y return, and ought to bserved.

^r 1 Thes. v. 17. Gr. ἀδιαλείτως sc. ut nullo die intermittantur certa tempora Orandi. August.

The Preface.

In obedience hereunto the Church

▪ Aēt. ii. 46.

▪ Injunctis precibus frequenter decenterque interdum noctuque insistant.
Orig. in Cels. 1. 6.

Apostles time, met at Prayers^a; and so did Primitive Christians for any Ages after^a, who their Liturgy, Eucharist Hymns, even in the

when persecution prevented them in the
And surely their zeal and fervour is a humble proach to our sloth, who yet call our selves the same Religion, and are so far from wearing lives and estates to enjoy opportunity of Devotions; that we will not leave our nor our company, nay our idleness h hour, for a freer and more easie Worship they could enjoy. Surely we are as they in Practice, as we are like in Name Profession. Twice a day was not enough them, wherefore they appointed (in the of Martyrdom) three set times in every for Prayer; Nine, Twelve, and Three in

▪ In orationibus celebrandis invenimus observasse horam tertiam, sextam & nonam, sacramento scil. Trinitatis. D. Cyr. de Orat. Domin.

Τρεις ὥρας ταύτας ἑσπερινῶν ἐυχῆς, ὡς τριτῶν φάσε καὶ ἑκτῶν, καὶ ἑννάτῳ Clem. Alex. Strom. 1 ▪ Τὴν ἑσπερινὴν οἱ μὲν πρὸς καὶ ἑσπέρῳ ἡμέρῳ γίνεσθαι καὶ περὶ Chryl. in 1 Timoth. cap. 2.

Afternoon^a, and punct observed them. After in more quiet times i wonderful to behold, t derly performance of i ing and Evening Prayer

The Preface:

assemblies of Men and men *, who failed not of constant attendance.

These are the Men and those whose principles we are reformed by, but I wish

 Cujusvis ætatis viri ac fœminæ, totis animi viribus bilarique mente precando & gratias a-gendo Deum bonorum autorem venerabantur. Eu-
seb. Eccles. hist. l. 10.
c. 3.*

that corrupted Church who forced us to a Secession, do not prove more conformable to the outward part of their Practice in a due observance of Publique Prayer, than we who have more Knowledge, better Prayers, fewer distractions, and yet less Devotion. Wherefore there is no more complain of our own Church expecting us at daily Prayers. Let us rather challenge all Nations and People to do so; and declare it unreasonable that we should have any God at all, or let him have any of our time, though he give us all we have.

Let us tell the world, we are self-sufficient for our Conduct and Defence of our selves and our affairs; and then we shall discover our true state what we are: we must not feign our selves too busie; for we do lay aside our business daily, for causes less weighty, and advantages more inconsiderable. If Vanity or the Devil, Sathan or his Emissaries call, we can find Leisure; and why not when God calls?

Do we think all that time lost which is spent in his service, or as if we needed not his blessing. In short, if unavoidable business

(a)

did

The Preface.

did hinder us & nothing else, many men might come alwaies, and all sometimes, and every day an hundred for one that now comes. Wherefore it is Sloth and Covetousness, or Atheism and Irreligion keeps us away. And if so, what signifie those pretences of praying at home (which ought to be done too?) Verily no more than those of the idle School-boy who seeks a Corner not to learn, but play in without disturbance. And truly it is to be doubted that constant neglecters of Publique Prayers, use seldom and slight devotions in private, for they may make the same Objections against them. Finally, Therefore do but remember the reasonableness of this is to be tried at a higher Tribunal, and come as often as God can in reason expect to meet you there, & I shall ask no more.

2. To the reasonableness of the Churches Injunction we may add, the Excellency of that Provision which is made for you, which ought to invite you to come, and will be an Aggravation of your neglect. But here I must not expatiate into the particular Encomium which every part of the Liturgy deserves. That would make the Porch larger than the House, and may better be seen in the following Discourse: only at present we may say this of it in general, that though all Churches in the World have and ever had Forms of Prayer; yet none was ever blessed with so comprehensive-

The Preface.

hensive, so exact, and so inoffensive a Composure; Which is so judiciously contrived that the wisest may exercise at once their Knowledge and Devotion; and yet so plain, that the most ignorant may pray with Understanding: so full, that nothing is omitted that is fit to be asked in publick; and so particular, that it comprises most things which we would pray for in private; and yet so short, as not to tire any that have true Devotion. Its Doctrin is pure and Primitive; its Ceremonies so few and Innocent, that most of the Christian World agree in them; its Method is exact and natural; its Language is significant and perspicuous, most of the Words and Phrases being taken out of Holy Scripture, and the rest are the expressions of the first and best Ages: so that whoever takes exceptions at these must quarrel with the Language of the Holy Ghost, or fall out with the Church in her greatest Innocence. Indeed the greatest part of these Prayers are primitive, or a second Edition of the most ancient Liturgies of the Eastern and Western Churches corrected and amended. And in the opinion of the most impartial and excellent Grotius ^a, (who was no Member of, nor had any

a Certum mihi est letteriarum Anglicanarum, item morem imponendi manus adolescentibus in memoriam baptismi, Auctoritatem Episcoporum, Presbyteria ex solis pa-storibus composita, multaque alia ejusmodi satis congruere institutis vetustioris Ecclesiae: à quibus in Galliâ & Belgio recessum negare non possumus. Grotius Epist. ad Boet.

The Preface.

Obligation to this Church) the English Liturgy comes so near that Pattern, that none of the Reformed Churches can compare with it. And if any thing External be needful to recommend that which is so glorious within: We may add, That the Composers were all Men of great Piety and Learning: for they were all either Martyrs or Confessors upon the Restitution of Popery, which as it declares their Piety, so the Judicious Digesting of these Prayers doth evidence their Learning; for therein a Scholar can discern close Logick, pleasing Rhetorick, pure Divinity, and the very Marrow of all the Ancient Doctrine and Discipline; and yet all made so familiar, that the unlearned may safely say, Amen^b. Lastly all these excellencies have obtained that universal Reputation, which these Prayers enjoy in all the World, so that they are deservedly admired by the Eastern Churches, and had in great esteem by the most eminent Protestants • beyond the Seas (the most impartial Judges.) In fine this Liturgy is honoured by all, but the Romanist, whose interest it opposeth, and some Dissenters, whose prejudices will not let them see its lustre; whence it is they call that (which Papists hate because 'tis Protestant) Superstitious and Popish, and though they count it Roman, condemn it

^b 1 Cor. xiv. 16.

^c See D. Durel his defence of the Liturgy.

The Preface.

it without a hearing. But when we remember, the best things in a bad world have most Enemies (as it doth not lessen its worth, so) it must not abate our esteem, that it hath malicious or misguided Adversaries; who for all this hold the Conclusion, and obstinately resolve they will not come.

How endless and unprofitable it is to dispute with these, the little success of the best arguments managed by the wisest Men do too sadly testify. Wherefore I shall decline that, and attempt to convince the Enemies, by assisting the Friends of our Church-Devotions. And by drawing that veil which the ignorance and indevotion of some, and the passion and prejudice of others have cast over them, I shall represent the Liturgy in its true and native lustre, which is so lovely and ravishing, that, like the purest beauties, it needs no supplement of Art and Dressing, but conquers by its own attractives, and wins the affections of all but those that do not see it clearly^d. This will be sufficient I am sure to shew that whoever desires no more then to worship God with zeal and knowledge, spirit and truth, purity and sincerity, may do it by these devout Forms; so that I should have concluded here my Preface (when I had given a more particular account of this Undertaking) but that I must first examin an Objection or two, which are like a skin over the eyes of some, and be the Picture never so full of graces, will spoil the Prospect, if they be not removed.

^d Ignorant qui non amant.

The Preface.

Object. 1. It is said to be a Form, and therefore a hindrance to zealous praying by the Spirit.

Ans^r. Whoever makes this Objection, and affirms we cannot pray by the Spirit in the words of a Form; must beware his ignorance betray him not into a dangerous uncharitableness, and perhaps blasphemy. For the Saints

^e Numb. vi. 23. Deut. xxvi. 3. Ezra xi. 5. Dan. ix. 1.
^f Matth. xxvi. 44.

of the Old Testament prayed by Forms, and so did Christ himself in the New,
^f and he taught his Apostles a Form to pray by, and dare any say they prayed not by the Spirit? Have not all Churches since the Apostles times to our daies had their Forms of Prayer? and did not the devoutest men of all ages Compose and use such? Was ever Extempore Prayer heard of in Publick (till of late) unless on special occasions; And do we think no Church nor no Persons prayed by the Spirit, till now? To come nearer still:

Have not France and Geneva their Forms?
And did not learned Calvin (and the best reformed Divines) use a Form before their Sermons? And is not an unstudied Prayer a Form to

The Preface.

to the People, who are confined to pray in the Speakers words? And will you say these all pray without the Spirit of God? But sure we hug the Phrase of Praying by the Spirit, not attending the Sense. For the meaning doubtless is, to be so assisted by the Holy-Ghost, that (our Thoughts being composed and our Souls calmed, and our Hearts deeply affected with our Wants, and the Divine All-sufficiency) we can pray with a strong Faith and a fervent Love: When we are so intent upon our Requests that we duly weigh them, and pursue every Petition with pressing Importunity, ardent Desires, and vigorous Affections. this is the Spirit of Prayer. And thus we may better pray by the Spirit in the words of a Form, than we can do, when our Mind is employed in inventing new expressions. For having a Form (which custom hath made familiar) we have all things set down to our Hands which we or others want; and we are at leisure to improve the good Motions of the Spirit; having no more to do but to joyn our Souls and Affections to every Petition, and follow them up to Heaven in most passionate and zealous wishes that God would grant them: Whereas in Extemporè Prayer the Petitions expire into Air in a moment, for neither Minister nor People knew them before, nor can remember them afterwards; the one being busie in inventing, the others in expecting a pleasing novelty. And methinks it argues more of the Spirit of God, when we can attend the old Prayers with Zeal and Love, than when we need Variety and novel Expressions, to skrew us up into a Devotion too much like Artifice, and seeming rather to be moved by the pleasure of the Fancy, then the actings of Desire. We may judge of the effects of Gods Spirit rather by disposing our Hearts to joyn in a well-composed Form, then by filling our Heads with new Prayers, or opening our Mouths in fluent Expressions; both which may be done without the help of the Spirit, but to be devout without it is most impossible. To which we shall only add, that many Sons of God, and sound Members of our Church, do daily use these Prayers with as much Spirit, and Life, with as serious and sincere a Devotion, as any in the World can do. And this they account a demonstration that the Spirit doth assist them in this Form. And so it may assist these mistaken Christians, if they will lay down their groundless prejudice, and try to serve God thus as well as they can. So would the good Spirit assist their Prayers, and make up our differences, giving us one Mind and one Spirit, that with one Heart and one Mouth we might glorifie one God.

The Preface.

¶ Quis enim inimicum adhuc ducere potest eum cum quo unam ad Deum vocem emisit. D. Basl.

Ob.

The Preface.

Form or Extemporè can never reach all those, which are so numerous and variable. Wherefore one Form may fit all that ought to be asked in the Church; and why then should we desire a needless and infinite Variety and Alteration? If we do, it is out of Curiosity not Necessity. The poor Man is most healthful whose Labour procures him both Appetite and Digestion, who seldom changeth his Dish, yet finds a Relish in it, and a new Strength from it every day: And so it is with the sober and industrious Christian, who busying himself in serving God, gets daily a new sense of his Wants, and consequently a fresh Stomach to these Holy Forms, which are never flat or dull to him, that brings new affections to them every day. It is the Epicure and luxurious, the crammed lazy Wanton, or the diseased man that need quelques choses, or Sauces to make this daily bread desirable. And if this be our Temper, it is a sign of a diseased Soul, and an effect of our surfeiting on holy things. In this we resemble those Murmurers (Numb. xi. 6.) who despised the bread of Heaven because they had it daily, and loathed Manna itself, calling it in scorn dry Meat. This was sufficient to sustain their bodies, and † Psal. lxxviii. 18. Βρωματα satisfy their hunger, but they LXX. ταυτα required Meat for their Soul, ταυτα ψυχης αυτων. that is, to feed their Fancies and their Lusts; even

The Preface.

even as we do, for whom the Church hath provided Prayers sufficient to express our needs, but not to satiate our wanton Fancies, nor gratify the Lust of our Curiosity; and we complain they are insipid; so perhaps they are to such, for the Manna had no Taste to the wicked; but it suited itself to the Appetite and Taste of every good Man, as the Jews tell us in their Traditions¹. Sure I am, it is true here: for if we be curious and proud, or carnal and profane, there is no gust in the Common-Prayers; but a truly pious Man can every day here exercise Repentance and Faith, Love and Desire, and so use them as to obtain fresh Hopes of Mercy, Peace of Conscience, Increase of Grace, and Expectations of Glory, and whoever finds not this, the fault is not in the Prayers, but in the indisposition of his own Heart.

¹ Wild. xvi. 21. & Fagius on Numb. 11.

If all this will undeceive any, and take away their prejudice so that they may see clearly what they cannot but love, if they did behold; I shall think my pains well bestowed: if not, it appears they are resolved to believe as they do, and I am resolved also not to imitate them so far, as to abuse my Arguments^m with strenuous revilings; because it is more plea-

^m Non incusamus adversarios convitiis & contumeliis, sicut plerique faciunt, rationum & ar-gumentorum infirmitatem maledictis obtegentes. Greg. Naz.

fant

The Preface.

fant to me to give a true and lovely Character of my own Devotions, than an odious, tho' deserved one, of Others. Only let those delight in making objections against Prayers know, that we can easily recriminate, charge extempore Prayers, with Novelty, Confusion, Irreverence, Vain-glory, which can scarcely be denied, and many other Inconveniences, will hardly be excused. But this were to perpetuate a Quarrel; and had not been mentioned here, but to teach those to be moderate in their Censures * who are

* Cum tua praevidentia oculis meis lippus innotuit.

C. . . . amicorum vitiis non sumus cecum.

free from all Exception, may liable to infinitely more than can be justly charged upon us.

But having thus cleared the way to all different and disinterested Persons, it is time to speak briefly of the Design of the following Discourse; which is to make it evident that our Excellent Prayers do deserve all possible Love and Esteem, and contain in them a Treasury of all that can make our Devotion lively and useful. And if we be assisted by Gods Spirit, and come desirous to pray with Zeal and Sincerity, here is (without calling for any aid but that of Heaven) a curious Oracle, clear Method, significant Phrases, and strong Arguments to quicken our Affections, and enlarge our Souls in holy and fervent Wishes.

De

The Preface.

Desires and Meditations, which is the Prayer of the Inward Man, the Life and Soul of this Duty. All which we teach men to do by giving a natural and facile Analysis of the Method, and by making plain and practical Observations on the Parts, together with a literal Paraphrase of the Whole. By which none can imagine I should give a borrowed lustre to the Prayers, which they had not of their own: for I only prove they had it before, and I find all in them, that I observe from them; which I hope will be so plain, that all Men will see the inference, and be able in their own Devotions to find out much more. Now in this Essay I shall hope to serve three sorts of Persons.

I. The Ignorant, who may be instructed hereby to pray with understanding. Not that we suppose these Offices so obscure as to need a Comment (for nothing can be more plainly expressed, nor is it possible to invent words more universally understood) but many that understand the Sense of the Words, have not Art enough to discern the Order, Method, and Connexion of the Prayers, nor skill to find out the Arguments that press every Request; or the places of Scripture which furnish these Devotions with significant Phrases, nor Judgment to describe what disposition of Soul doth suit the several parts of them. And if

we

The Preface.

we consider, that the greatest number of such, we shall think it seasonable to help them with a plain and easie Explication. Besides there are many (in other things) knowing Persons, who rather for want of Consideration than Judgment, never took notice of the natural dependences of these Prayers, nor the true and full import of the Expressions, nor the Graces to be exercised in the several Parts, because they only attended the words, but took no care to expatiate into holy Meditations. And if the former need a Master they want a Monitor, lest they offend in a wor kind: For Negligence worse than simple Ignorance. But I hope, though all this is here be obvious, yet something will be found which either was not known or not observed before, and those things also such, as may elevate the Affections, and make the Prayers more pleasing and more profitable.

◦ Non tibi deputatur ad culpam quod invitus ignoras; sed quod negligis querere quod ignoras. Aug. de lib. Arbitr. l. 3. c. 19.

2. The Devout Servants of God, and Obedient Sons of the Church, whose Care it is to pray daily in Publick, and whose Desire and Endeavour is to do it well. Might I be a Nathan to hew wood and prepare fuel for the Altars of their Hearts, I should rejoyce; and it hath been my Care to suggest not alwaies the most Critical, but the most Practicall Sens

The Preface.

ry where be said with an excellent Spirit for the benefit of particulars, and the good of the whole Church?

3. The mistaken Dissenters: who hereby

¶ Facilius vinci possunt quam persuaderi.

Hieron.

may be convinced (and perhaps persuaded) [¶] that we can pray by this Form with as much Zeal and more Knowledge, with as much Spirit and more Truth, than by any other kind of Prayer. And then it must appear, that this Venerable Liturgy hath been falsely represented by such who would not have it seen truly, lest it should be loved really. But if they are so much their own Masters, as that they dare to read the Prayers seriously, and view this little Book with as much Charity as it was written with, I shall hope either for their Company at Prayers, or at least to escape their Censures for going thither. For unless they be foolishly obstinate they either must love them, or cannot hate them. If they would love them, and pray with us, we shall be friends; and if only the second be obtained, we shall be quiet, and even that is desirable. That these are the designs which began and encouraged this Undertaking, the Authors own Conscience doth

¶ Credunt de nobis quæ non probantur, nolunt inquiri ne probentur, non esse. Tert.

Ante nos incipiunt homines odisse quam nosse, ne cognitos aut imitari possint aut damnare non possint. Cyp. de idol.

Van.

The Preface.

y; and he hopes even those who approve the Means, must confess the End of this is good. And if it be successful in any of these kinds, he will not repent his pains. For none, he is not the first that hath failed of fulfilling good Intentions. However he have satisfaction in the Peace of a good Conscience and may say with the noble Roman, If the answer his Sincerity, it is a cause of universal Joy; he can rejoyce in his good Intentions to do good.

2 Cor. i. 12.

Si sequuta fuerit quæ debuit fortuna; nos omnes gaudebimus; sin minus, ego tamen gandebo.
Brutus ap. Ciceronem

the Censures of furious Zealots, or the rage of profane Ishmaels; he doth not value being only unwilling to offend Authority true Piety. Wherefore he doth humbly commit these pages to the Judicious Correction of the Reverend Fathers of the Church, desiring that no may be said which dissents from the Faith and Disciplin now established; for if not, it is without the Authors Knowledge, against his Judgment. And now 'tis time to conclude this Preface with a twofold Request. To my Brethren of the Clergy, that they read these Prayers so frequently, that such leisure may never want opportunity to serve God; and so fervently, that who do attend them, may be brought in high esteem of them. It was a great

(b) end

The Preface.

end of Gods instituting the Priests office, as a principal Motive to our Pious Ancestors ▪ Canones R. Edgar.

I & XLV. ad Spec
man. Concil. An. Chr.
567. & alibi sapissime.

their liberal Provisions it"; That there might be Order of Men on purpose to Pray daily for all Mankind especially for such as could not daily attend Divine Service: So that if we neglect the daily Sacrifice, we neither answer the Design of God, nor of our Benefactors: And as we are not excused by, so we ought not to be discouraged at, the Peoples slowness in Coming to daily Prayers, for their Presence is indeed a Comfort to us and an Advantage to themselves, but their Absence doth not hinder their Success, nor should it obstruct the Performance of our Prayers. The Promise of Jesus is made to two or three; and since our Petitions are directed to God, we need not regard whether he be absent, so long as he is present, to whom we speak: For he accepts our Requests, not by the Number, but the Sincerity of those that make them: Let our Congregation therefore be great or small, it is our Duty to read the Prayers daily? and every day to do it with such Fervency and Reverence, as may declare that our Affections keep pace with our words while we are presenting so excellent Requests to so infinite a Majesty, upon so weighty Occasions: And also we must recite them with for

THE
JOURNAL OF THE ROYAL ANTHROPOLOGICAL INSTITUTE OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND
VOLUME 31
PART 1
1901
LONDON
PUBLISHED BY THE Royal Society of Great Britain
21, BEDFORD SQUARE, W.C.1 1901

The Preface.

terests fasten on them; but to consider them very well, and then they will find the Liturgy to be plainer and more methodical in it self more comprehensive and more suitable to a Publick Congregation, than the best Extempore Effusion, which makes more noise and shew, but is emptier, and of far less weight in the esteem of God and all Judicious Men. Let none therefore think it a needless and unprofitable waste of time to go to the House of God only to hear Common-Prayer; for Prayer is the proper Duty of that place, which is called the House of Prayer; and it is a Duty that is of all others the highest and hardest, and yet the most profitable, if it be devoutly and well performed. So that I cannot but pity and lament the Stupidity of those, who either sleep or sit by, heedless and unconcerned, while so great and so advantagious a Scene of Duties before them: And I must (for their own sakes) beseech all that are present at these Devotions. First, To Compose their bodies into those most reverent Postures which the Church hath suited to every part of Duty. Kneeling at the Confession, Absolution and Prayers; Standing at the Gloria Patri, Hymns and Creds, and Bowing at the Holy Name of Jesus, for a general uniformity in these things do declare; that there is in us, a due sense of the Divine Presence, a great Obedience to our God.

The Preface.

mours, and a sweet Harmony between Bodies and Souls in the Worship we pay to Creator of both. Secondly, To make Responses with a loud and audible voice. Romanist cannot bear a Part in his adored because it is in an unknown tongue, the Protestant is excluded from all share in this by the novel Device of one tedious Form without variety or intermission; but the Church of England not only allows this Privilege to her Sons, but commands it; surely none will forbear to answer out of self, that consider the Honour and Benefit thereof; nor ought any to be silent out of shyness or shame, it being no shame that men should hear us Pray in the House of Prayer, for we come on purpose to Pray, and the only fault is, to be mute and silent. Thirdly, Let us treat them to Ponder the Divine Allotment and their own great Necessities, before they begin; and to keep their Heart close to every Petition as they go along, and they shall find them all so fit to be asked and so likely to be obtained; so agreeable to their own desires, and to the necessities of all Mankind; that it will be pleasant to ask them, and desirable to expect a gracious answer to them. If they daily come and constantly use the Common-Prayer in this Manner, they will never be tired with the Length, nor wearied with the frequent Repetition thereof; for it will appear to be the most noble and comfortable exercise that Religion doth afford; it will increase their Graces, multiply their blessings, and fit them for the never-ceasing Service of the Heavenly Choir: May the God of Peace therefore reconcile us to these Prayers and to one another, giving us pious and zealous Priests, devout and well-disposed People, that we may have full Churches, frequent Prayers, and fervent Charity; than which nothing will more conduce to the Publick Happiness of this Nation, and the Salvation of all our Souls, the good Lord grant it therefore, for Jesus sake. Amen.

The Preface.

ERRATA in the First P A R T.

Epist. Ded. pag.3 lin.17. read more intelligible.

Preface, pag.10. lin.18. r. reasonableness of the Book. pag.15. l.34. r. and had so

p.32. l.22. r. ant. p. 18.

p.49. l.3. r. let us labour

p.67. l.14. r. true repentance

p.71. marg. at l.27. r. ~~٧٧~~ ٧٨ p.111. l.30. r. if the Priest p.113. l.8. r. not for want p.118. l.22. r. Heb. xi.6.

p.136. l.13. r. this Power

p.196. l.6. r. he deserve ?

p.202. l.22. r. furnish us

p.211. l.14. r. doth watch

p.331. marg. l. ult. r. Vol. I. p. 549 p.405. Title, r. for safety

p.411. l.18. r. their Guards

p.433. l.32. r. unto to p.440. l.12. marg. r. balitum.

P A R T I -

PARTITION I.

Of the former Part of Morning and Evening Prayer.

SECTION I.

Of the Sentences of Scripture Preparatory to Publick Prayer.

PRAYE R is not only an excellent means to obtain all blessings, but the very act it self is an Elevation of the Soul to contemplate the beauties of the Divine Nature, that by beholding such transcendent Perfections, it may learn to love, desire to please, and delight to imitate so great and exact a pattern; and consequently, is a Duty of the highest concernment: It is an Honour and a Benefit to us, and yet it is accepted by God as our homage, and the testimony of our observance. It is a high favour to be admitted to *intimate familiar converse with the King of Kings, and a huge advantage to have so frequent access to the fountain of all goodness. It then it is difficult as well as dear, and requires so much attention and serenity, zeal and vigor,

* Job 15.4. INTIMUS.
Vulg. & Ang. Proces.
Prop. sign. Colloquium familiare. Drusius.
Ὁμιλία τοῦ Θεοῦ & ὁ Θεὸς ὁμιλοῦν. Clem. Alex.
Strom. 7.

faith and love, reverence and humility that it can neither be well done nor kindly accepted without some preceding Preparation; for these Souls of ours are clogged with corruptions, disturbed with passions, and so constantly entertained with the vanities which our senses present us with, that we find our minds pressed down, when we would lift them up to God: But those Fowls whose wings are not proportionable to the weight of their bodies, do usually run some paces before they can rise from the earth to begin their flight: so the Church directeth us, first to prepare our hearts before we begin to pray. The Jews are taught when they enter their Synagogues, to stand silently a while

^a Buxtorf. Synag. Judaic. c. 5.

^b Quum vultis orare cogitate prius coram quo loquimini. Dict. R. Eleaz.

^c Amud. tract. Beraith.

^d Sacerdos ante orationem Praefatione praemissa parat fratrum mentes.

Cypr. de Orat. Dom.

in the posture of Prayer before they begin their Devotion^a; And one of their Masters told his Scholars this was the way to obtain eternal life^b. The Primitive Christians had a preparatory Preface to their publick Prayers^c as long ago as the time of the famous St. Cyprian. In imitation whereof we are appointed to exercise our souls in the Meditation these Sentences of Scripture with the Exhortation subjoined, that we may thereby become more fit to pray. That illustrious Heathen Temple had this Inscription in Letters of Gold, Γνῶθι σεαυτὸν, that the Worshippers, by a true consideration of themselves, might approach with all humility to their supposed Deities. And surely it is more requisite for us who worship the true God, to reflect upon the vast disproportion between our selves and Him, which is as great as between finite and infinite, holy and impure; and we may be convinced of the necessity of being more lowly and reverent before him. The frailties of our bodies, and the infirmities of our nature, the defects of our faculties, and the misery that cleaves both to soul and body, doth command us to be humble in the presence of God. But that which should lay us lowest of all in our own thoughts, is the remembrance of our sins, which do alone alienate us from God; for he that pitieth our miseries hateth our sins, and he that caused the Leper to be banished out of the City, admitted the lame man to the beautiful Gate of the Temple: Joshua himself cannot be heard till the sin of Israel was taken away, and he meets with a check in his Devotion for presuming to pray before he had removed the accursed thing, Josh. vii. 10. Wherefore our Spiritual Guides present us with these Admonitions to repentance, before we begin to pray, lest we should stumble at the threshold, and pray in vain^d, while we remain impenitent; for there is a moral impossibility such Prayers should prevail. The Petitions of sinners are either an heap of contradictions, or a contexture of Indignities against the God of Heaven; for such men bewail that with their mouth, which they love in their heart, and ask forgiveness, where they are neither sensible of an offence, nor will own the pardon as a favour, they accuse themselves for that which they did willingly, and never condemned themselves for, but will reiterate upon the first opportunity: They require things that they hope he will not give, and if they ask any thing seriously, it is either inconsiderable or with evil designs, and so becomes a provocation^e. Now can an all-seeing eye discern this without indignation? Will not in Almighty hand be lifted up to

^d Psal. lxxvi. 18. Jo!
ix. 31. Isa. lix. 2.

^e Quæ nisi seductis nequeas committere divinis,
Perf. Sat. 2.

destroy them, who both delude themselves, and mock the King of Glory? But lest we should experience the truth of this in our eternal ruin: we are advised to a serious repentance which will be the best harbinger for all our petitions; for if we see our sins, and feel their weight (it is to be hoped) we shall draw near with low apprehensions of our selves and strong desires after God, with an high opinion of him, and a hearty love to him, with many fears and yet many hopes; and who can be more fit to pray? What better foundation for those Prayers which must reach as high as Heaven, than Humiliation and Repentance.

§:II. Now the better to dispose us to pray in this manner God himself is brought in speaking to us from many places of Holy Scripture: The voice of God brought our first Father to repentance, Gen. iii. 9. and will surely have the same effect on us, for who dare refuse when he invites, that can pardon or punish, save or destroy. He begins first to speak to us in his Holy Word, to whom we are about to speak in our Prayers; so that those who expect God should hear their Prayers, must hearken to his Word, f Prov.i.24. Deus S.B. nos vocat ad seipsum, si nos illius vocem audiemus, tum ille item preces nostras ei oblatas. Midr. Tehil. Psal. cxvi.

especially where the matter is so excellent and of so great concernment to us, as in these invitations to repentance from the mouth of God himself. It was therefore most prudently ordered, that we should begin with Holy Scripture; and for the particular Sentences, I may say, they are the plainest and most pertinent that can be found in the whole Book of God, which though it be divine in every part, yet that care is well bestowed which selecteth such portions thereof as are suitable to the occasion: And thus

the

the Reverend Composers of the Liturgy, like skilful Physicians, have walked in this Garden of God, which is stored with remedies of all kinds, and have gathered the choicest and most useful, different in operation, but having the same effect, viz. To bring us to Repentance. They have chosen many, yet they leave it to the discretion of the succeeding Physicians of Souls, to use such a Sentence every day, as may suit best with their own and their peoples hearts : which was done with great reason, both because of the various dispositions of mens minds, and also of the different temper of the same man at several times ; some are ignorant, others negligent ; some obdurate, others tender ; some are confident, others fearful ; and that which will pierce the heart of the same man to day, will not enter his skin to-morrow ; that which will now cure the wound, another time neither will abate the pain, nor stop the bleeding : And it may be worth our while to take them in pieces, and see for what kind of dispositions every one of them may be proper ; so that it come (as we ought) before the Service begin, we may entertain the time with a Meditation agreeing to our present disposition, and such as may put us into the best frame for true Devotion.

The Analysis of the Sentences.

These Sentences contain	{	1. Support to the fearful, §. 3.	{ Psal. li. 9.
			{ Psal. cxliiii. 2.
			{ Jerem. x. 24.
		2. Comfort to the doubtful, §. 4.	{ Psal. li. 17.
			{ Dan. ix. 9.
	{	3. Instruction to the ignorant, §. 5.	{ Luke xv. 18, 19.
			{ 1 John i. 8, 9.
			{ Ezek. xviii. 27.
	{	4. Admonition to the negligent, §. 6.	{ Psal. li. 3.
			{ Matth. iii. 3.
	{	5. Caution to the formal, §. 7.	{ Joel ii. 13.

Of the Sentences proper for those who Gods Anger.

§.III. IF we consider how universally men have de-ved the wrath of God, we shall find it neces-for all to fear before him : But if we again observe exceedingly this Fear dejects and discourageth a der heart, it will seem necessary to apply a Cor-Now lest such be swallowed up of over-much soror hindred in their Devotions, let them meditate on the following Sentences.

Psalms li. 9. Hide thy face from my Sins, &c.] is holy David presented deeply sensible of his just servings, and filled with holy Fear : because the God had promised to remit the guilt of his Sin, he declared he would not let him go unpunished. Sam. xii. 13. 14. however he doth not run away from God, but rather makes a more earnest appplication to him, that he will please to pass by his offences and to spare him ; which is here Metaphorically expressed (1.) By hiding his face from his sins, that not considering them (as Prov. xxviii. 17. Avertenti oculos à pau- pere. Syriaca versio. Phrase signifies &) not looking at them so stedfastly as to oblivion them, or so narrowly as to min them ; for if his pure eyes behold evil, his re-tributive hand must punish it. (2.) By blotting tout, alluding to that Book wherein God is said to note tfins which he hath not forgiven now David prays that this I Book may be crossed, and the l-blotted out, so as never more to appear against h-Let us then in our fears make the same request, things, without a Judgment to force us, and let hope of sparing be founded on his mercy, not our rity: We are sinners, but we may be spared for all; for if all sinners must suffer, the whole world must be condemned: Rom. iii. 19. It is sure God spares many, and though many that are spared are better than yet none altogether innocent, none but must be loaded with favour and mercy, and if he please to justify us so, we may escape also; however 'tis the best if we fear Gods anger, to pray the Suit may be saying in this manner:

Paraphrase.] Lord, thou chargest me with many and 'tis likely intendest to punish me for them; I do not to assert my self clear, but before thou summe'st (knowing my guilt) I pray thee [Enter not into judgment] neither reckon strictly in justice [with thy servant] who confess I have deserved punishment, but hope thou wilt spare me, who rely only on thy mercy, and that is my best Plea, [for in thy sight who seest so exactly, and hatest sin so perfectly, defending his innocence [shall no man] no not the least person [living] in this sinful world be acquitted nor can any [be justified] before thee, without a favourable allowance, which I beseech thee also shew to Jerem. x. 24. Correct me, O Lord, but with judgment, &c.] We are to consider, that the very corrections of God are mixed with so much mercy, allayed by such a supply of inward comforts, and made tolerable by his gracious purposes in sending them, we ought not altogether to decline them; for if we feel no smart for our sin, we may more easily run to it again, Psal. cxix. 67. Ezra ix. 13, 14. and consequently go on in it, till we pull upon our eternal misery: And the poor humbled Soul, Paraphrase.] My God, since thy justice obliges thee to punish sinners, and I have deserved to suffer, and am so apt to go on in sin till I find it; I do beseech thee [Correct me] here with these afflictions [O Lord] that thou maist spare me after, but let not this Correction be proportioned to my deserts, nor to thy displeasure; but let it be ordered moderately [with judgment] and confident of my infirmities, punish me [not in thine anger] lest thou dost thy enemies [lest thou bring me to naught] so that I fall under thy hand, and survive not unamended by it.

A Meditation upon Psal. li. 9. and cxliiii.

Jer. x. 24. preparatory to Prayer in the time of Gods Anger.

O my Soul, what fearful tremblings are thou seized on thee, so that the thoughts of God that heretofore ought to be thy greatest comfort, are now become terror and amazement! Whence is this miserable condition that thou canst behold nothing but Judgment? O Father of Mercies, and Anger in the Fountain of Mercy! What hath provoked him that delights to spare to be so resolved to punish! Surely my sins are very many, but it is not a few can incense him; and they have more ordinary aggravations, for he is not so highly displeased with small offences, and certainly I have often committed them, and long continued in them, for he begins not to forgive till the first misdemeanour. Alas, the case is too apparent. My sins are both very many and exceeding great, frequently repeated and of long continuance. I have abused thy mercy, and now I am likely to feel judgment. O wretch that I am! I have tired out the patience of my suffering Father, and run from the embraces of

But, rejected the offers of a most indulgent Holy Spirit, that now I fear I have stopped up the fountain of mercy, Isa. lix. 2. and unsealed the treasures of his wrath, Deut. xxxii. 34. And I ought rather to wonder, how God could spare me so long, than why he should spare me now, since many have been cut off for fewer and less sins: I see I have most justly deserved to suffer the effects of evils, and therefore shall esteem it an incomparable privilege to be only corrected with a temporal affliction, if I may be so excused: But it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. Heb. x. 31. Therefore, O Lord, my flesh trembleth for fear of thee, and I am afraid of thy judgments, Psal. cxix. 120. yet I know how to escape them. To deny my sins were impudence, to confess them will be apparent hypocrisie. To be concealed is impossible, to be found intolerable; I am miserably wounded: But was never any in this case before, that might receive some advice and comfort from them? Yes, the Church hath here presented me with a King and a prophet both dear to God, whose fears were greater than their sins were less, and their danger not so great as mine; yet these (in the midst of their fears) considered their sins as the only cause of these evils, and accordingly freely confessed them, bitterly lamented and exceedingly humbled themselves for them; not striving so much to avoid the punishment, as to obtain the pardon of their sin, knowing that the guilt once removed, thou wouldst not totally spare them, or gently chastise them for their sins, wherefore they rendred themselves up into thy hands, rather aggravating than extenuating their offences, and yet humbly begging their correction might be in mercy; and they found the benefit of it. Go to then, my soul, and do thou likewise; thou hast first occasioned his wrath by thy breaches of his Laws, O do not increase it by distrusting his Gospel: Thou hast forsaken him

him by Sin, run not farther by Despair; for thou runnest from his Mercy, the sooner thou wilt meet his Justice. Delay no longer, but go in before for thee; deliver up thy self before death or any mans arrest thee; accuse thy self before thou be in and confess thy sins freely before the Witnesses brought out against thee; pass sentence on thy self ere they condemn thee. I cannot expect wholly to escape, will be a great favour, if I meet a Sickness in Death; losses in my Estate, instead of losing both and my Soul for ever. I will not therefore desire my Father altogether to lay aside his rod, but only gently, that I may by this smart be warned against future sins that would bring me to utter ruin: Rather chastise me than disinherit me, and those shall be welcome which come in exchange for eternments. For thou who dost change thy Sword into I hope, wilt be so compassionate in thy inflictions, shall only feel what my distempered Soul needs to it, and my Flesh and Spirit can bear; not as Sins deserve, and thy Justice might exact: When will no longer hide my sins, but by a humble and Confession declare, that I hate them more than I fall into thy merciful hands, and I hope hereafter so fear to offend, that I shall be freed from these peccations of thy heavy wrath, which wisdom Give me for Jesus sake. Amen.

Sentences proper for those who doubt of Gods Favour.

Not much unlike this is the case of poor doubting Souls, who are discouraged from on by misgiving thoughts, as if God were betterly irreconcilable, and hence they conclude it is to repent, because they believe the recovery of favour to be impossible, and truly so it is, if it is so to be; because while they look upon it impossible they shall never obtain it, but it is the design of Satan to make them to believe so, that they might never attempt it, nor attempt it: Wherefore to rescue these Postquam enim adempta spes est, lassus curâ confectus stupet. Arnob.

Souls from so dangerous a delusion, and to permit them to ask a pardon in faith, the Church hath three portions of Scripture the first, to shew they are disposed to ask by their confession; the second, to demonstrate that God is inclined to give, notwithstanding their unworthiness: the third, to prove by a pertinent example they are likely to be received, if they will venture to come.

° Psal. li. 17.

° Daniel ix. 9.

° Luke xv. 18, 19.

° li. 17. The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: Let this dejected Soul view holy David, the commission of his great sin; who being careless to be taken again into favour by God, was surveying his flocks and all his substance, 2 Sam. vi. 6, 7. to find some acceptable present to offer, when that nothing was too great nor too precious to procure a thing so excellent : But while he lay abroad he remembers, he hath something at home, a trembling broken heart, which panted in his breast, and therefore is here expressed by

Heb. נִדְּחָה Fluctus ad scopulum allisos. Ita signif. Psal. xciv. 5.

word : signifying waves dashed against a rock : this broken and contrite heart was most acceptable offering in world. Gods Justice in condemning and his Severity in executing the Sentence of his wrath upon his enemies, was as a mighty Rock against which his heart had beat so long, that his heart was almost dashed in pieces with fear, and now God shews him that its sighs and groans are pleasanter to him than the melody of the chantings of the sons of Asaph ; its pantings and breathings are perfumes sweeter than the cloud of incense ; its free confessions and exposing it self to make it an acceptable Heave-offering ; its tears precious Drink-offering, and its flaming desires make it more excellent than whole Burnt-offering and all the Sacrifices of the Temple. The Sins of our hearts are far more prevalent than the force of the Oxen of our Stalls, or the fairest Calves of our neither of which without contrition are respected of God, Matth. xv. 9. The Prayers and Tears of penitential Hannah can fetch a greater and speedier answer from heaven than the costly Oblations of Elkanah

I Sam. i. 13. David is resolv'd to offer this, for he is sure, God will not despise : which word [not despise] is to meet with the fears of the contrite penitent who because he knows his own heart to be so full of deceitful, and vile a thing, cannot believe but God will reject it, as he did the lame and the blind, the and maimed sacrifice under the Law : But he assures you that God will not despise it ; but there is much into

intended, even that he, will accept it kindly, as when Christ saith, he will not cast them off who come to him; he means, he will lovingly entertain them; for 'tis certain, God will not only not despise it, but he will look upon it as the best and greatest gift, though it be from the hand of a Publican, Luke xviii. 14. Therefore be not disheartned, for your tears shew you with this broken heart, offer that, and be assured God will embrace it lovingly, treat it tenderly, and keep it safely: Say then, [Paraphrase.] I have nothing in this world so dear to me, but I would give it freely to purchase Gods favour; but though men be thus appeased, yet he must have something he likes better, and truly [the Sacrifices] most likely to be accepted [of God] who needs no outward things, [are a broken spirit] which tremble at his anger, and hateth it self for its sins, and almost dashed to pieces betwixt fear and sorrow. And I hope thy grace hath given me such [a broken and a contrite heart] which I humbly offer, and though to me it seems so vile, yet [O God, thou] whose favour alone I do desire, [wilt not despise] nor reject it, but graciously accept and embrace both me and my oblation.

Dan. ix. 9. To the Lord our God belong mercies and forgivenesses, &c.] If they shall further argue against themselves, that they deny not Gods gracious nature, but that they fear their iniquities have turned his love into hatred, his mercy into fury, and his kindness into indignation. Behold in the next place a free discovery of what God is to miserable sinners. The Jews were then in captivity, had so grievously offended, that Daniel who much desired their restoration, scarce

scarce knew how to plead for them, till at last he find an Argument in Gods gracious nature; viz. That mercies and forgivenesses (that is many, nay infinite mercies and forgivenesses for numberless sins) were Gods peculiar possession, a principal part of his name, Exod. xxxiv. 6. the chiefest of his attributes, and inseparably annexed to his essence, and therefore the sins of his creatures cannot make any change in God: Mercy in the Creatures is by communication from him, but he is the original and fountain which is never dry: To him Daniel confesseth they are sinners, but will not grant that therefore they ought not to hope for pardon, since their evil doings could not rife his treasures, nor rob him of his attributes, nor alter his nature, which continues the same still; and therefore there is mercy to be had. He confesses them guilty of all sorts of Sins; that is, Sins of Commission, and that even to an absolute rebelling against God and forsaking of him^t by Idolatry; and then also of Omission, by neglect of walking in Gods Law, although they were taught and instructed in it; so that they deserved no mercy: But God is the fountain of mercies still, and therefore there is yet hope. Other Translations generally read not [though] but [because we have sinned,] which is but a further illustration of the same sense, viz. We may see and be convinced, that Mercy is Gods peculiar possession, because we have done such vile things; and yet he hath spared us on purpose that we might by our humiliation give him occasion to forgive us; and thus his pity in sparing shews his intention of restoring us, and therefore should quicken us to address to him who hath it solely in his own power.

Paraphrase.] Why should we (because we have formerly sinned) remain without hope of ever being received, since we know that [To the Lord] Jehova, who is peculiarly [our God] as inseparably annexed to his Essence, and as his own proper possession [belongs mercies] infinite, [and forgivenesses] more than our sins can need: and since they are in him, we hope we shall have them, though we are unworthy; for [though we have] sinned by breaking his Laws, and [rebelled against him] by forsaking his Covenant, [neither have we] done what he commanded us, nor [obeyed the voice of the Lord our God] who charged us by his Servants [to walk in his Laws] and tread in that plain and pleasant path [which he set before us] though all this be true, we do repent of it, but will not despair, because God can yet restore us.

Luke xv. 18, 19. I will arise and go to my Father, &c.] To enforce both the former, and encourage these humbled Souls whose desires are too big for their faith, here is a lively example of one, Luke xv 18, 19. whose condition was as miserable, his faults as great, and his reception as unlikely as yours can be, and yet he comes and speeds, that you may take encouragement from him and do likewise. The instance is that of the Prodigal Son, who had voluntarily forsaken his Fathers house, and carried away his full portion, which he wasted and consumed in all manner of riot and excess, never thinking of nor regarding his Father all the time of his madness, till extreme want had restored him to the use of his reason and put him into his wits again. and then he blames himself for lying still in his sin which is (lapsus anime) the fall of the

^a Ver. 17. εἰς ἑαυτὸν ἔλθων, ad seipsum rediens. Omnes insipientes igitur insaniunt. Tusc. quest. l. 3.

Soul, resolving to arise by repentance, or in his sorrow (which is exprest by sitting on the ground, Isa. iii. 26. in which posture he sees he may remain disconsolate for ever, and be no nearer to his Fathers house wherefore he resolves to take courage and arise, and shaking off his ineffective grief to repent and return home : His Father had not called him, nor had he any assurance he should be received ; only he knew if he sate still he must starve, and if he were repulsed he could suffer no more : He comes not to make an Apology, but to bring an Accusation against himself : he hoped indeed that his offence could not untie the bands of that dear relation, and therefore calls his Father, but confesseth he had forfeited the title of Son and not only broken the Law of Nature, but of Heven, that is, of the God of Heaven *, who expressly required this obedience : He could have wished a return to his Fathers Table, but that were presumption to expect, only he hopes he will not see him starve and if he be set with the meanest Servants, they have bread enough. But the Father is readier to hear the Son to desire, and what his unworthiness made him ashamed to ask, his Fathers bounty made him willing to bestow : and he that scarce hoped to be admitted a Servant, is once more owned as a dear Son. This he found, and so shall they that follow his example.

 Caelum pro Deo ponitur quoniam est ejus habitaculum. Elias Tisb. Psal. lxxiii. 9.*

Paraphrase] Why do I sit still in my sin, vainly bemoaning my folly while I am like to starve ; surely, I will take courage, and [I will arise] by repentance [and go] by faith with prayer and supplication [to my Father,] who can relieve me and perhaps may have pity on me. And to move his bowels toward me as soon as I see him, I will fall down [and will say unto him, Father] who didst beget me that am now so wretched, I here confess that [I have sinned] by my ungodly courses, [against heaven] and the God that dwells there [and before thee] being so ungrateful for all thy Love, that I justly deserve to be disowned, and left in my misery, for I have forfeited my relation [and am no more worthy to be called thy Son] yet I hope thou wilt not let me perish, who feedest thy meanest Servants.

A Meditation upon Psal. li. 17. Dan. ix. 9. and Luke xv. 18, 19. preparatory to Prayer, when we doubt of the Favour of God to us.

He that hath a considerable Request to make to an earthly King, must not approach without a Present in his hand; but my Request is to the King of Kings, to whom I have been disobedient, false to his Government, refractory to his Summons, and ingrateful for his former Favours: And what can I offer to him that needs nothing? What can I give to him, whose both myself and all I have are? His favour indeed is so sweet, so desirable and so universal a comprehension of all happiness that I could freely give all I have or may procure for the purchase of it: but the whole world is vanity to him, neither can such trifles blind his eyes or bind his hands; buy his mercy to the unworthy, or avert his justice from the sinner. I could methinks expose my Body to the sharpest torments, my Soul to the heaviest sorrows, and my Life to the cruellest tyrant, and would account it a happy purchase if I were sure of his everlasting mercy afterwards; but it cost more to redeem a Soul, I can give nothing but it is his already, and I can suffer nothing but what I have deserved.

What then? O where shall I have a peace-offering which may not be despised! I am told nothing is more acceptable than a broken Heart; 'tis strange! Can an heart polluted with the guilt, and enslaved to the power of sin, slow to begin and unable to perform any good; but vigorous to desire, and unwearied to pursue all evil? Can a heart shaken with fears, torn in pieces with sorrow, and even a terror to it self, miserable and poor, blind and naked? Can this heart be a fit sacrifice for so glorious and all-seeing, so holy and pure a God, can be like that which I abhor? Alas, it cannot be! but let me recall that hasty word; for he hath said it, who best knows what will please himself, and if he value it, it is worthy, for the true worth of any thing is to be judged by his estimation of it: Who knows but such a broken heart may be a greater evidence of his power and mercy, a fitter instrument of his praise and glory, a plainer table to describe his grace, and draw his image on than any other? Such a heart I have, and if this serve, I am happy, I will give it freely to thee, O Lord, who despisest not the meanest gift if there be sincerity in the giver. It was broken before with fear, but it will now be dissolv'd with love, I am ashamed it is no better, but thy mercy is the greater in accepting it, and it will become better by being thine. O how am I filled with admiration at the freeness and fulness of thy mercies, in comparison of which the greatest humane compassion seems cruelty; I dare proclaim to all, that in thee are all the mercies of the world united, and thou art mercy it self in the highest degree. if my disobedience and negligence, contempt and ingratitude could have separated thee from thy mercy, I had now met thee in fury taking vengeance without pity, for I have seemed to live as if I had designed to dare thee to turn away thy self from me, and to try thy utmost patience, the least part of which baseness would have turned my best friends in the world against me; but behold the mercy of my God continues still! O let me have the shame of an ingrateful sinner, and let thy name have the glory of an inexpressible pity, even to those who are almost ashamed to ask pardon, yea let me to whom thou hast shewed such compassion, have the honour to be an instance of thy goodness to all the world: And have I such a Father? Why then do I lie still, with this load of guilt upon my soul, and this heavy burden of sorrow upon my Spirit? What do I get by these vain complaints, but waste my time and double my misery by sad reflections? I can neither have help from my self nor any creature, but from my Father alone, to whom mercies are as proper as misery is to me, and if I through fear or sorrow sit still here and starve, I shew not so much pity to my self as he would have for me, if he saw my great distress. Wherefore I will arise and go to him, though I think I shall scarce have the face to ask more, since I spent the last so ill: I shall be ashamed to tell him how base I have been: but as I was not ashamed when I did evil, so I must have done when I suffer the desert of it: I will go bathed in tears, blushing for shame, accusing my self, and relying on the bowels of a Father, will beg only so much mercy as will banish despair, and give me some little hope, and if I may have this I will be content, though I be not entertained with assurance and certain expectations, for the least favourable look is more than I have deserved: Yet behold upon the first sight of the returning Prodigal, who came unsent for, driven home by his own miseries, his tender Father runs to meet him, takes the words out of his mouth, and receives him with all the demonstrations of love and the caresses of a dear affection: And is my God less merciful? he who hath invited me so often and promised me so largely? I have done ill to stay so long, but I will go now high in my desires, low in my expectations, sorrowing for my offence, and begging his mercy, and I hope though I carry no Merits of my own to his Justice, yet I carry misery enough to make his bowels of Compassion yern upon me, and then I cannot perish. Amen.

Thus we see the Church hath shewed her care of these contrite ones in selecting the most and choicest of these Sentences for them, who are the best though the least part of the people, and though such are *vile in their own eyes, yet they are dear

* Psalm xv. 14. Old Translat. Chald. Par.
Viles præ oculis suis.

to God, highly valued by all good people and tenderly indulged by the Church, who wishes there were more of this blessed temper.

Of the Sentences proper for the Ignorant.

§.V. THE next sort of men who come to pray, are involved in gross Ignorance and such are inapprehensive of their guilt and unacquainted with their danger, who know neither what to ask, nor of whom, nor why; So that these had need be instructed before they begin to pray, or otherwise though they come out of custom, yet they will offer nothing but the sacrifice of fools, in regard they either think they have no sin, or else suppose a very slight repentance will obtain their pardon, but here is a remedy for both these mistakes.

1 John i. 8, 9. [If we say that we have no sin, &c.] Those who do not see their sins do need that spiritual eye-salve, Revel. iii. 18. Because they cannot be cured till they know themselves to be sick*, if they do not discern that they are sinners, they will account it a reproach to be reputed such, and return the summons of God, the exhortation of his Ministers, and the charity of their Reprovers with scorn or anger. There were of old some Hereticks so impudent as to say positively they had no sin^a: So did the followers of Valentinus, Marcion and Basilides, and others who denied that any wickedness was a sin in them, and some in our days have come too near them; yet many who hate such gross opinions, and will not say so with their mouths, yet through ignorance or pride say so in their heart^b, which is a language that God understands, and therefore in Scripture to think and to say are sometimes the same: But the Apostle declares that if we Christians, even the best of us should either say or think so, it is a great error, and both false in it self, and dangerous to him that believes it^c. The Scripture frequently and plainly tells us we are

* Quibusdam aegris gratulatio fit cum seipsos aegros esse senserant. Sen. Ep. 6.

^a Epiphanius in Hæres. Valent. l. 1. tom. 2. & Marcion. l. 1. tom. 3. ὅς τις ἔχοντος ἁμαρτίας, καὶ τὸ ἁμαρτάν — διὰ τὴν ἑμμενῶν ἐκλογὴν. Clem. Alex. Strom. 3.

^b Ἡ γενομένη τὴν διάνοιαν πλάνη ἀπὸ ῥημάτων σαρκί. Plal. xxx. 6. Isa. xlvii. 10. Adrian. Isagoge.

^c Ecclelvii. 20. Μηδὲ ὁποῦν ἁμαρτάνειν ἑστί our faults, we are here assured that two of Gods Attributes will be of our side : First his Truth will then oblige him to forgive us because he hath promised it, Prov. xxviii. 13. and if any relying on that promise, do come in and accuse himself, Gods truth will engage him to pardon him, and perform that, now it is promised, which none could have expected, if there had not been a promise for it. Secondly, his Justice or Righteousness will also plead for us ; becaule Justice being satisfied by Christs Death , desires no further vengeance on the penitent sinner, but grants a pardon as the just desert of Christs merits ; or in the Hebrew notion of Justice and Righteousness who put it for Charity and Mercy *. He is just

* Dan. iv. 24. Prov. x. 2.
Math. vi. 1. vide Grot.
 & Hammond. in loc.

may here signifie the goodness and kindness of God , which is the foundation of our hopes , when

- we do confess, and through his mercy we may not only obtain forgiveness of the guilt, but may be cleansed from the filth of our sins also : From all which it appears that he is a fool , who out of laziness, shame or fear doth dissemble or deny his sins, for he is not only deceived, but undone for ever by it, whenas by an humble and hearty acknowledgment of them, Gods truth and mercy would have been his Advocates, and have procured pardon and peace for him.

Paraphrase] The Scripture declares and our own conscience beareth witness that we all have sinned, so that [If we say] out of pride or ignorance, or do but think in our hearts [that we have no sin] to confess or repent of, thinking to be excused the sooner before God, because we do not or will not condemn our own ways, [we deserve] not God (who sees all things) but [our selves] for we lose our pardon by standing on our innocence [and the truth is not in us,] because we speak falsely to the Almighty's face.

They

They therefore that conceal their wickedness, God will discover it and condemn them for it, [But if we] having observed our selves guilty deal ingeniously, and confess our sins] with hatred, shame and sorrow. He hath promised to give us a pardon, and we may trust his word, for [he is faithful] and since Christ hath suffered the vengeance due to such, God is righteous and just,] so that he will not exact the forfeiture of us, but be ready [to forgive us] the punishment due to [our sins, and to cleanse us from] the stains [all iniquities] which we had committed.

Ezek. xviii. 27. ~~When~~ the wicked man turneth away from his, &c.] If the ignorant man do discern any of his sins, yet he is apt to think there is no difficulty to obtain a pardon, if he but acknowledge them and cry for mercy for them: before such the Church lays this law, wherein they may see, that their souls shall not be delivered from death when they confess, but when they turn from their sins, and till then they have not repented: For to repent implies a disapproving of what we have done, so as to do it no more; a change of the mind and actions also;

when we no longer continue to do that which we grieve that ever we did, and this is here plainly bewared to be the condition on which our sins may be forgiven, viz. if first we cease to do evil; secondly, learn to do well; and surely he that confesseth himself to be in a wrong way and grieves for it, will both leave the path he is in, and labour to find out the right: so must the wicked man, or otherwise he doth in vain

^f Μετάνοια, est ut qui errorem suum pristinum intelligit — ab insania se reciperet, — & id maxime caveret, ne in eisdem laqueos iterum inducatur. Laët. Inst. l. 6. Munster Heb. תשובה Matth. iii. 2. h.c. Facite vite conversionem. & Isai. i. 16, 17.

expect

expect a pardon from God, who will not fault to him, that intends to commit more mercy become the support of iniquity, and needs the encouragement to the breach of law. And if it seem difficult, that you must forsake and do the contrary good before you can be you must consider, the benefit of it is the souls alive, this will preserve you from a death (the least of which is worse than both a dying in sin, and a dying for sin : First, his sins, first God forsakes his soul, and then forsakes his body, and his eternal miseryⁱ, where he lives only to feel torment never more to enjoy any good.

^h Impii etiam si videantur vivere, miseres tamen sunt omnibus mortuis, carnem suam sicut tumulum circumferentes, cui infelicem infoderunt animam, — quæ intra lumbum volvitur, & terrena avaritiæ cupiditatibus cæterisque vitiis includitur, ut gratiæ cælestis auram spirare non possunt. Ambros. de Cain & Ab. Ephes. ii. 1. 1 Tim. v. 6.

Turn ye then out of that evil way that leads to these deaths, and your souls shall live in glory.

Paraphrase.] Though I might easily and avenge my self on the sinner for all his old transgressions yet through my Son Christ Jesus, I do here [warn the wicked man] who is walking in you go on to practise that you are really dead^h though they have a name to live, but they have no sense (so long) have no sense of good, nor motion towards any union with God, and separation from the soul of the body is as real a death to the soul as it is to the body to have separated from it. Secondly, forsaking your sins, God is moved to pardon you, so that you may not die eternally as the wicked man that forsakes his soul.

ⁱ Cum anima à Deo deserta deserit corpus. Aug.

of death, not only confesseth his fault, but also [turneth away] from these paths, and being really grieved for what is past abstaineth [from his wickedness] and never more practiseth those sins [that he hath] formerly with so much delight [committed,] if this wicked man, I say, amend his life [and doth that which is lawful] and allowed by my word, so that his ways be good [and right] in my eyes, I will forgive and set him free, so that though impenitent sinners are dead in sin here, and die eternally for it hereafter, [he shall save his soul alive] and attain everlasting glory.

Meditation upon 1 John i. 8, 9. and Ezek. xviii. 27. preparatory to Prayer, for the instruction of the ignorant and mistaken.

Is it possible I should be all this while deluded so grossly, to imagin my eyes open, my way direct, and full of light, when indeed my eyes are shut, my feet are wrong, and my mind is overspread with the Egyptian darkness of a stupid ignorance? Thy word (O Lord) is a light to my feet, not only to shew me which is the right way, but to let me know when I am in the wrong. But I have given up myself to false guides, who lest I should enquire after the right way would never acquaint me I was wandring from it; had I followed them, still I had stumbled on the threshold of Hell while I expected to arrive at the gates of Heaven. O blessed be thy name, I now see I have been straying from thee the fountain of all true happiness, and have been in vain seeking content where it is not to be found, till the disappointment now drives me to seek it where it is: Had I not been a stranger to my own heart, I had not been so far out of the right way. But I have supposed my self clear, only because I never considered wherein I was guilty, and have flattered my self with the pleasing thoughts of my own innocence, so that I have been as secure, as if I really had been guiltless. I have been glad to spare my self the labour of a farther enquiry, most foolishly accounting this a peace which was no other but want of a sense of my real danger. I find my chief design hath been to seem good, and persuade my self I was so, that I might be more quiet in the ways of evil, and might neither be accused by my own conscience, nor alarmed by thy dreadful threatnings, which I supposed did not belong to me. But alas, how miserable would the end of this self-deceit have been; for thou, O my God, didst see, and wouldst have condemned me for all my blasphemous and repining thoughts against thee, my malicious and envious thoughts against my neighbour; thou heardst all those false and slanderous, vain and filthy words I uttered with my mouth; those deceitful and unjust, cruel and uncharitable works which I committed with my hands thou sawest; yea all that formality and hypocrisie, ambition and pride, envy and covetousness that lay in the secret corners of my heart was apparent in thy sight; and what did it avail me not to see them? Thy vengeance would have come as certainly, and more terribly, because it was not expected. It is now strange I should never see this vast heap before; but for I have wilfully shut my eyes, lest I should discern them, which I was loth to believe and unwilling to amend: But now I see my iniquities by thy mercy, and I believe I have offended thee as much by my hypocrisie in concealing them, as by my disobedience in committing them. Therefore now I will ingenuously confess them, because the graciousness of thy nature, the truth of thy promises, and the satisfaction of the Lord Jesus, are sufficient to procure pardon for me who (dare so far trust to thy mercy, as to become my own accuser. Yet, my God since thou hast so graciously convinced me of the evil and danger of those

counsel

Of the Sentences proper for the Negligent.

§.VI. A Nother sort of men there are, who know it to be their Duty to Repent, and yet from day to day neglect it, and have more need to be excited than instructed, in order whereunto here is provision made (1.) of a cogent Example, (2.) of a strict Command, to put them upon the practice of this necessary Grace.

Psalm li. 3. I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin, &c.] Such who are great yet careless sinners may well blush to behold one who had been no customary offender, but being once surprised in a deplorable instance, never gives over thinking upon it with shame and sorrow, whereas they that are more guilty never concern themselves. The rest of David's life was a converse with God, and a strict observance of his will; and if the Jewish conceit of good deeds being weighed over against the evil might be allowed or if after the manner of the Phariseans ^k, his former life had been considered with his present transgression, surely he might have been excused; but he never attempts to hide this one sin in a croud of holy actions, nor goes about to extenuate it, because it was the first, or but one, or not great in comparison of others, but confesseth it to be very hainous, continually laying it open not only before God, but before himself; that he might recollect with grief and sorrow, the guilt and filth of it, the baseness of the act and the danger of the event, and fully discover the vileness and horridness thereof. It seems he was not without dreadful appe-

* Vita anterior simul cum delicto in estimationem venit, & quâ major pars vitæ atq; ingenii stetit, eâ judicandum de homine. Afin. Pollio de Perfis.

ension of Gods anger, for we fix our eye on ve fear, and cannot get that out of our minds loth affright us, but it is continually before us.

doth this reproach our negligence who are f many and great wickednesses, and have no ions to set over against them, and yet we cit them behind our backs, and forget our danr if we do sometimes look over them, we do ly and are glad of any occasion to divert us : tain God sees them, and will one day set them
, and muster them up as', unless by looking on ow we learn to abhor and of them ; for then God of cy will for ever hide his eyes from them.

¹ Psal. l. 21. וְאֶפְרַיִם
tanquam acies armato-rum disponam.

obrase.] Let others be unconcerned when they I must and will publish my baseness in offend-
: my heavenly Father : Lord [Acknowledge] ad heart [my transgression] of thy most holy this and other wilful acts of wickedness, by I know I have so justly deserved thy wrath, eye and mind are fixed on what I have done p sin] haunts me continually, gives my conno rest, because it [is eber before me] and I forget it, or cease to fear, till thou hast part.

b.iii.3. Repent for the kingdom of heaven,&c.] hame of such an example make no impression, it strict and positive summons from God to all rld to repent, which was proclaimed first by binger St. John in the Wilderness, to those ne to him thither, and after it was publish-he Lord Jesus himself in Towns and Cities, hose that he met with there ; this was his first

▪ Matth. iv. 17.

Μετάνοια ἢ φιλοσοφίας ἀρχή. Hierocles.

first Sermon^m, and is our first Lesson in Christs School ; to be learned not by some particular

but by all that will be his Disciples : He speaks to all and to every particular man, Repent ye ; for he knows this Duty necessary for every one : if any say he will not, he despiseth his authority ; if he plead he cannot, he impeacheth his wisdom ; and if he alledge he cannot yet, it seems he dare live in a wilful neglect of his commands. Tertullian thinks we ought not to enquire what need or what good there is of Repentanceⁿ, because the commands of God (by whose favour we hope for eternal happiness) are to have weight with us without any appendent reason ; but here we have a reason of a precept added, to shew us he joins not this so much to shew his Authority, as because it is necessary for us, and because our interest requires it, viz. because the Kingdom of Heaven or God (which is all one, ant. pag. 14.) is at hand ; this is either the Kingdom of Grace, as it is sometimes taken in Scripture, Matth. xiii. 24. And when this was spoken by our Saviour he meant it in this sense, viz. that the time being now approaching wherein the Messiah and Saviour of the world, was to set up a spiritual kingdom in the hearts of men, it was necessary for all that desired to become his subjects, to renounce those lusts to which they had been enslaved, and prepare his way by repentance or else they must remain slaves to Death and Hell still : And this reason urges us now as strongly as ever, because our Lord Jesus does every day now by his word, and Embassadors proclaim liberty to us, and offers to become our King

▪ Neque enim quia bonum est auscultare debemus, sed quia Deus præceperit, & ad exhibitionem obsequii prior est auctoritas imperantis, quam utilitas servientis. Lib. de Pœnit.

quire what need or what good there is of Repentanceⁿ, because the commands of God (by whose favour we hope for eternal happiness) are to have weight with us without any appendent reason ; but here we have a reason of a precept added, to shew us he joins not this so much to shew his Authority, as because it is necessary for us, and because our interest requires it, viz. because the Kingdom of Heaven or God (which is all one, ant. pag. 14.) is at hand ; this is either the Kingdom of Grace, as it is sometimes taken in Scripture, Matth. xiii. 24. And when this was spoken by our Saviour he meant it in this sense, viz. that the time being now approaching wherein the Messiah and Saviour of the world, was to set up a spiritual kingdom in the hearts of men, it was necessary for all that desired to become his subjects, to renounce those lusts to which they had been enslaved, and prepare his way by repentance or else they must remain slaves to Death and Hell still : And this reason urges us now as strongly as ever, because our Lord Jesus does every day now by his word, and Embassadors proclaim liberty to us, and offers to become our King that in most of our hearts Sin hath usurped his throne, which we must first exclude by Repentance, or else we know that we love the slavery of Satan better than the liberty of the Sons of God, and will not have Christ reign over us. 'Tis true he may for a while content us at this affront; yet secondly, remember there is the Kingdom of Heaven at hand, even the Kingdom of Glory, which is sometimes called the Kingdom of Heaven, 1 Cor. vi. 9. and 2 Thess. i. 5. wherein all that have rejected Christ for their King shall be utterly destroyed, Luke xix. 27. and condemned to unspeakable and endless torments. Let this fill such lazy persons with fear, because for any thing they know, the day of all is near, however 'tis secret to prevent death and will be so sudden when it doth come, that it will surprise us we can never repent again; and if the world should last ten thousand years more it is nothing to us, for this Kingdom of Heaven begins with us, when we leave this world by death, and therefore who knows how near the Kingdom of Heaven may be unto us?

Paraphrase.] You who have committed many sins and do still go on in them, and so are neither capable of that grace which is offered you here, nor fit to appear in that judgment which must pass upon you hereafter; I charge you all [Repent ye] of all your wickednesses, confess them seriously, and forsake them speedily, [for the kingdom] of Jesus Christ the eternal Son of the God [of heaven] is now to be set up in the hearts of all true penitents, and they who receive this grace, their death is not far off and the kingdom of glory [is at hand,] and will surprise them in trifling intentions to their utter ruine.

A Meditation upon Psal. li. 3. and Matth. iii. 3. preparatory to Prayer for the quickening of such as neglect Repentance.

It had been well for my Soul, if all this while my safety had been equal to my confidence, for none ever thought themselves more secure, though there was no other ground for it but only because I was resolved not to take the pains to behold my danger. I have multiplied my transgressions and lived in sins unamended, yea unrepented of; and therefore have had the drawn sword of the divine vengeance hanging over my guilty head by the slender thred of my uncertain life, which every thing could snap asunder: Yet I have wilfully shut my eyes, chusing rather to feel the eternal smart of it, than to behold the dreadful sight, which would long since have terrified me into amendment, and snatched me from under the approaching ruin; what prodigious folly hath seized on me! What stupid laziness hath benumbed me! Are the pains of escaping greater than the pain of suffering? Or will the blow be lighter because I resolve neither to see it nor avoid it? Awake, my Soul, awake, while there is possibility to prevent thy ruin. Thy sins are so numerous and so heinous, that thou canst not be ignorant of them; the threatenings of Gods wrath are so plain and positive that thou maist see they aim at thee; thy conscience cries so loud, that thou canst not but hear it; and Gods Holy Spirit pleads so powerfully, that thou must take as many pains to exclude these Friends, as would serve to turn thy Enemies: Surely God gave me not wit and understanding to make a plausible cover for the eyes of my conscience, or to contrive bulwarks of excuses to entrench sins in safety, and yet I unhappy wretch have been in longer, since 'tis certain thy Kingdom shall come, but uncertain how soon either Death shall arrest me, or Judgment surprise me in such delays, I have cause to bless thee that neither of these have happened yet unto me, though I have excluded thee out of my heart, and entertained my sin there: Yet, Lord, thou callest still, and now I am making what hast I can; O remember not how long I have stayed, but consider how little time I have left, and by the blessing of thy grace make my work short and easie, proportionable to my time and strength: I confess I knew before, but never considered till now, and now I dare not stay; but through thy help I come, O do not cast me off for thy mercies sake. Amen.

Of the Sentence proper for the Formal.

§.VII. [Joel ii. 13. Rent your hearts and not your garments, &c.] Lastly, if any by daily use of these Offices begin to grow careless, and to rest in the outward ceremony and customary observance of this Confession, we do here present them with the summons which God sent to his people, who in the distresses were ready enough at all the external rites of mourning, covering their head or sprinkling it with ashes, wearing of sackcloth, or tearing their usual garments, sighing and sitting on the ground like Job's Friends; yet all this in Gods sight was esteemed but hypocrisy, without that which these signs were to present, viz. a rent heart and a broken spirit, which David speaks before. The renting of the Mantle was an Emblem of a Heart torn with sorrow, and was one of the highest expressions of a mighty grief.

o Job ii. 12. Externæ omnia luctûs signa quæ pessimia facile exprimi possunt. Codur. in loc.

and therefore renting the garment was ordered by the Jewish Doctors never to be used but upon the death of a Father, Master, Prince or Judge, or in a common calamity of Fire or Sword, or upon the commission of the most hainous crimes, blasphemy, burning the Law or the Sanctuary ^p, and

^p Drusus in Job ii. 12.

yet this is not sufficient; for if it be separated from a true repentance, it is but like the punishment of the Persian Nobles, whose cloaks of silk were torn, their ornaments ruffled, and hair disordered by the Executioner, but their bodies untouched. It would be rather acceptable to God to omit the Ceremony, and perform the thing signified; because that is the principal, this the accessory. Rent therefore your hearts [and not, i.e.] rather than your garments, be principally concerned about this ^q. Though God doth not wholly reject the Ceremony neither, and [not your garments] may signifie not only your garments ^r, which is not rejected when it is accompanied with true repentance ^s; think not then to please God by a sorrow that goes

^q Matth. xii. 7. ex Hof. vi. 6. LXX. Ἐλεῖς δὲ τὴν θυρίαν. Drusus, Potius quàm sacrificium.

^r Gen. xxxii. 28.

^s Ezra ix. 3.

no nearer to you than the borders of your garment, it must pierce the flesh, nay the heart before you will feel the evil of your ways so far as to amend them ^t and turn to God, which is the next part of our Duty; and to encourage us to it, the Prophet repeats all those Attributes of mercy which

^t Nemo enim se adsuecit ad vitandum & ex animo evellendum id quod ei non est molestum. Plutarch.

God is described by, Exod. xxxiv. 6. leaving out all that was terrible, lest any should pretend discouragement from those terrors and stay away. Methinks a greater sorrow than Ceremony can express, becomes us who have offended a God [gracious] that is so apt and ready to do us good, [merciful,] viz. so full of compassion and pity when we are in misery: A God [slow to anger] not easily provoked [of great kindness] even to those who have offended, being willing to be reconciled and inclinable to forgive, and one [that repents him of the evil] which we deserve, and which he once resolved to bring upon us, not out of any change in himself, but because we change: God always resolved to punish the obstinate and spare the penitent, wherefore when the obstinate doth repent, no former decree can oblige him to punish him, nay he is glad of this opportunity to lay by his anger. Who can think he hath ingratefully sinned against such a God, and not have his heart rent with sorrow? And who can behold such a Father, and not run to him with shame for his disobedience, and longing desires, nay firm persuasions to be accepted.

Quinque volent decretum durum; Poenitentia, Precatio, Eleemosyna, Mutatio & Opera bona. Drus. ex RR. in Jonam.

Paraphrase.] When you seek to God for pardon, be chiefly careful to [rent your heart] with a sense of your sin and the fear of Gods displeasure, till you be truly humbled [and not] only resting in the outward ceremony of renting [your garments,] for the main thing is to amend your lives [and turn to the Lord] in your ways, whom you call [your God] with your lips, and then doubt not but you may be received [for he is gracious] even ready to do good to those that need it, [and merciful] to pity all that are in misery, and to forgive their offences; he is [slow to anger,] even most unwilling to punish, waiting long because he is desirous to be reconciled, [and of great kin menestr,] nay when he hath resolved to punish, he is more desirous to spare [and repenteth him of the evil] he purposed to inflict, when we repent of the evil which we have done.

Meditation upon Joel ii. 13. preparatory to Prayer for such as are apt to rest in the outward part.

O my Soul, thou art surely seized with a strange Disorder, which resists the efficacy of the choicest Remedies ! The Plaster which cures others doth not avail me : I confess my offences every day upon my bended knees, and my faith is weak my hopes of pardon wavering, my sense of Gods love very small ; so that I am almost tempted to live like those who are unconcerned whether they sin or no, because I find no benefit by all my humiliations : And this temptation had prevailed, if I had not seen that (since others receive advantage from these means) the fault is in me and not in them, nor in the God I serve ; he cannot deny his promises, falsifie his word, nor reject those when they come, who come upon his courteous invitation : O where then is this accursed thing, that restrains Gods mercy, blasts my endeavours, and puts me upon injurious thoughts against heaven, and Atheistical resolutions of finally neglecting these holy things. The matter of my Duty is good, for God commands it ; the benefit is great, for many have found it : But is it done in a right manner ? The failing may be there. Alas, I have been careful to kneel reverently, look sadly, sigh grievously, and tell the Almighty the story of my sinful life with effects becoming a Penitent : But this comes far short of what God requires, even a broken spirit and a contrite heart ; for I have been so concerned to seem sorrowful,

D 4

that

that I have not endeavoured really to be so. O my God, thou that searchest the heart, thou hast seen my heart untouched in the midst of these pretences: I have not been smitten with a sense of the odiousness of my sins to thee, nor their danger to me, and therefore I have not fully renounced them, nor yet absolutely returned to thee and thy ways; and therefore thou hast not blessed my Confessions, which have rather been looked upon by me, as an indulgence to go on (since my former offences were so easily pardoned) than an engagement to forsake my iniquities: But now I see my vileness in making so slight addresses for so great a favour. I discern my Folly to cheat my self of a considerable a blessing, and my Sloth to slip so many fair opportunities: By my deceitful behaviour before thee, O Lord, I have deceived my self; I am hugely ashamed that having offended so dear a Father, I have not been more really concerned, and having so gracious a God to turn to, I am yet so far distant from him. If I want Pardon or Peace, the blame must lie upon my own negligence, for thou art apt to give, and ready to forgive; long before thou punishest Sinners, but soon intreated to receive Penitents, and do most joyfully lay aside thy resolutions of judgment, when we perform our purposes of amendment. O my Soul, will not this real goodness of thy God shame thy Hypocrisie? Wilt it not pierce thy heart, to see whom thou hast offended, and thaw thy hopes, to behold whom thou art turning unto? His Holiness is mixed with Long-suffering, his Justice with Mercy, his Decrees alayed with Limitations: And is it fit to approach him without Love or Fear, Hopes or Desires, Gratitude or Admiration? Or is the forgiveness so mean a favour, that it deserves no more hearty applications? Sure enough my Hypocrisie hath kindred my Pardon, wherefore

For I begin to detest it, and hereafter I will look more to the dispositions of my Heart, than the posture of my Body : I will set him before me whose Love I have abused, and whose Patience I have tired ; who is so gracious to spare me, and so willing to be reconciled to me a most ungrateful Wretch ; that so when I come to him, I may have my Eyes filled with Tears, my cheeks with Blushes, and my Heart with Sorrows. I will remember who I am that go, that I may be humble ; what I go for, that I may be earnest ; and who I go to, that I may be full of Faith and Hope : So shall my Addresses not be in vain, but all these gracious Attributes shall be made good to me.

FINIS.

SECTION II.

Of the Exhortation after the Sentences.

§. I. TO these Sentences of Gods Word, the Church hath annexed a pertinent Exhortation, lest any should not sufficiently understand these places, or not carefully practise what they know to be required by them: The words of Scripture are first laid down, to shew we impose not this Duty of Confession upon you, but that God requires it; and then the Minister proceeds to the pious Exhortation deduced from them; that so when God commands may be rightly understood, particularly applied, and duly practised by all people: And that no man can plead ignorance or forgetfulness, to excuse him from this necessary Duty, we are directed in the following words most plainly how to perform it.

A Practical Discourse on the Exhortation

§ III. DEARLY BELOVED BRETHREN,] The Minister begins with this affectionate and exhortation, after the example of S. Paul, S. Peter, S. James. who frequently begin their Exhortations in this language, the better to engage attention; which cause it is used here, nor is it an idle Comment, but a significant indication from whence admonition proceeds, viz. from Love. For he loves the souls of his people, and hears what they expect from them, and sees the danger of their going on without warning or instruction; and the People we have no ends of our own, but are engaged by love to become their Monitors, as they are our beloved Brethren: Wherefore the admonitions of Ministers should ever be accepted as the effects of true affection; yet it proves (too often) otherwise. Flatterers and Dissemblers that will extenuate and cover up our faults, are usually listed among our Friends; but those who discover our danger, reprove us, and advise us to amend, these we hate as our Enemies: For men are so foolish or unwise as not to distinguish between the reproaches of an enemy and the reproofs of a friend. It is true, if we have done evil, there is some disgrace in being reproved; but the management and design are directly contrary. Now if any reproof proceed from kindness, surely it must be this which comes from him that is your spiritual Father, yet salutes you as Brother, and reckons himself under

^a Probrum tanquam inimicum ὁ μὲν ἐχθρὸς ἐστι ὁ δὲ φίλος
 Clem. Alex.
 l. i. c. 9.

the same Obligation, and toucheth your Offences with such tenderness, only his Master hath charged, that he shall reprove you, and not bate you in heart, Levit. xix. 17. For the neglect of this Duty would argue he did not so see you perish.

IV. [The Scripture moveth us in sundry places,] we may easily foresee if the Minister did only by his Authority command us to repent, his words would prevail but little upon many; some might deny their guilt, many despise the summons, and others would think to avoid by recrimination: Wherefore the Minister comes armed with the Sword of the Spirit, the Word of God; that as the Prophets of the Old Testament came with Verbum Jehovæ, the Word of the Lord, so might also the Priests of the New. And though the person may be contemptible, yet it is the voice of God which you hear from him, and whoever be the proclaimer, where the word of a King is, there is power, Eccles. viii. 4. who dare disobey when the King of Heaven commands? He that knows the hearts of all, and commands all men every where to repent, not only in the places now read, but in every other places ^b even throughout the whole Scripture: And miserable will their case be, who refuse so many, so plain, and so earnest calls from such a God: We Ministers are exhorted as well as you, and we intend to joyn with you, and if we request you to joyn with us, it is in obedience to the Commission we have from the King of Heaven, and he that refuseth, refuseth not Man, but God, and that Word of God which now moves you so frequently to repent, shall be produced against you to condemn you, if you obey it not.

^b Isai. i. 16, 17. c. lv. 7.
Lament. iii. 40, 41.
Acts ii. 38. c. xvii. 30.

§. 5. [To acknowledge and confess our sins and wickedness] We need not here be in the difference between these words, though acknowledge] seems to signify the granting so laid to our charge; as David upon Nathan's accusation said I have sinned, 2 Sam. xii. 13. and confess] may import a voluntary act when no man setteth us, which indeed is the more acceptable and annuious; but it were well if we would but acknowledge our offences; for God in his Word, Ministers, and by our own consciences doth inquire as guilty, and he that soonest owns the truth of, shall most easily find mercy. But it may be more material to take notice of the Epithet to our sins, [manifold] which is borrowed from v. v. 12. and may denote the variety of our transgressions, like Joseph's Coat of many colors; for clothed with the redness of Anger, the pale Malice, the yellow of Covetousness, the black Despair, or the green of Presumption; in these terrible garments are our Souls attired, when we the white garments of our Innocence, or else

c Isai. v. v. 18. Peccatum trahit peccatum.
Dict. R.R.

d Job v. v. 13. Heb. חֵטְא סִלּוּם רֵעוּתוֹ silum retortum, unde signif. multis nexibus implicitum consilium. LXX. πολυπλόκως vertit ibid.

vanity, and at last Sin as with a Cart-rope c. Perhaps imagin it a piece of cunning craft d, to be able thus to conceal our wickedness: But alas, if mercy do not unravel it, it shall be strong enough to draw

Physician, keeps his Disease, and loses an opportunity to regain his perfect Health : But remember that in Gods House, nay just before his face, and do not think with a lie or an excuse to deceive him ; no, this is too thin a veil and too short a cover for numerous transgressions, and will avail no more for a Thief to deny he stole that which is found upon him before the Bench. If thou couldst deny thy sin boldly, or dissemble so cunningly, as to deceive the world, yet do not hope to impose upon God that hath a heavenly all-seeing eye to discern all hearts, and he would shew the kindness of a Father in pardoning, if thou didst shew the ingenuity of a Son in confessing : Wherefore do not deceive thyself, slight this warning, for if you do, be sure that some or other your sin will find you out. Numb. xxxii.

§.VII. But confess them with an humble, penitent and obedient heart,] The Word is not only a Monitor to remember us of our sins, but a Guide to direct us in the performance of duty, it interposeth its Authority to command us to do this, and then affordeth its Directions to shew how we may repent ; and they that would know how to repent must be affected when they confess, so that they may be sure to find pardon, cannot learn in fewer and more significant expressions, than the Church hath collected out of Holy Scripture ; viz. (1.) An humble and lowly Heart, viz. when we behold our condition by Sin, till we have a mean opinion of our selves, so that we can be content that God or Men should disgrace us, since we have deserved it ; such a heart the Pharisee had, when he thought a Servants place too good for him, Luke xv. 19. such the Publican, Chap. xvi. when he durst neither look up, nor come near the Altar, he that wants it, and thinks well of himself at cannot confess heartily, nor desire pardon devoutly, nor forsake that which he thinks hath done him no harm. Therefore let us about to have this right knowledge of ourselves and of our sins, and that we may be ashamed thereof, let us consider we have shewed much folly and weakness, dissingenuity and ingratitude, obstinacy and perverseness, by breaking the holy Laws of so great a God, and so gracious a Father, for so small a price; and that we are thereby so miserable, that we shall for ever be disgraced if we repent not. Sin is a more just cause of shame, than any thing in the world; for it shews a man to be a base and abominable person, nay it makes him degenerate into a beast^a; which if we seriously think upon, it will put in us a disesteem of ourselves and a true opinion of our own unworthiness, which is an excellent disposition for the begging or receiving of pardon. (2.) A penitent Heart, viz. a sad and sorrowful spirit, which is most becoming one that sees his actions to have been base, vain and dangerous, and therefore must ever accompany us in confession of our sins: Now if we are of ingenuous tempers the Gospel will produce this, for it discovers the wounds of sin which we have made, the long-suffering we have abused, the grace we have rejected, and the comforts and benefits we have lost and forfeited. But if we are more obdurate, the Law must effect it, the sight of Gods justice, the consideration of the curse we have deserved, and the danger we are in of endless torments for poor perishing pleasures; these things being duly weighed, will move us to draw water^b before the Lord (as the Israelites did) from the pits of our hearts, and pour them

^a Psal. lxxviii. 12.

Of αὐτὸς ἀποκαλύπτει
ἀνθρώπου ἐμὸν καὶ ἑαυτοῦ ἐμὸν καὶ ἐνέχυρον καὶ ἀλαστέον. Αἴτιον ἐστὶν Επιστ. lib. 1. cap. 3.

^b 1 Sam. vii. 6. ubi Ch.
Par. Hanserunt aquas ἐ puteo cordis sui & abunde de lacrymasi sunt coram domino respicientes.

them

them out by the channels of our eyes : and this row for what is past will both make our Confession acceptable, and help us to the third requisite, (3.) obedient Heart, that is, a taking up such a dislike against sin, as to resolve stedfastly, if we can get it pardoned we have committed, that we will no more do that which hath caused so much shame and sorrow to us : And till we have brought our heart to this, all our Confession and Sorrow are not Repentance, but only a purpose to repent or a shadow of penitence : Nor will all this prevail, either to a removal of guilt or dominion of sin. Therefore let us learn how to confess. Humility will make our Confession sincere, Sorrow will make it earnest, and holy Purpose will make it prevalent.

• Δόκησις ποίῃ μετάνοιαν τὸ πᾶσι αἰτέειν (συγγνώμην ἐφ' ἧς πλημμελέμεν πᾶσι. Clem. Alex. Strom. 2:

§.VIII. To the end that we may obtain forgiveness of the same by his infinite goodness and mercy. There is nothing more pleasant to us than the contemplation of Gods infinite goodness and mercy ; we are therein apt to forget his Justice, and to think the one will exclude the other. We measure God by our selves, in whose narrow hearts these two dispositions are not at once contained ; and hence when we hear of infinite mercy, we are apt to presume of pardon upon any terms : But the Church from Gods Word assures you, that a sinner cannot be forgiven, not by this infinite mercy, unless he bring an able, penitent and obedient heart ; and that you are to esteem it infinite goodness, that you may be forgiven upon these terms : For you must know that Judgment (without a Mediator) doth not admit a sinner to good thoughts, nor accept of any repentance at and therefore it is an high act of Grace, that so holy a God, so justly offended and highly provoked, will be reconciled upon any terms; and we must endeavour to have our hearts thus disposed; for if we be not so prepared, Mercy it self will reject us. Some may here perhaps scruple at the Expression [to the end] and question whether in our Confession we ought not rather to aim at Gods glory, than our own forgiveness. Such as know they quarrel with the language of Holy Spirit, Acts ii. 38. c. iii. 19. where men are exhorted to repent that they may be forgiven; and further they do not understand what Gods glory is, if they separate from his doing good to his Creatures, and representing his Excellencies to them: Wherefore to aim at Gods glory and our own forgiveness is all one; for in confessing we own his power to forgive, we shew our trust in his goodness, and hope in his mercy, and desire that the Almighty by accepting and doing us good, may demonstrate himself to be, what we believe him to be, viz. a God gracious and merciful, &c. that we and all the world may praise him for it, and ascribe his glory for evermore.

IX. And although we ought at all times humbly to acknowledge our sins before God,] This concession of the Churches declares that the Publick Prayer ought not to excuse any from Private Devotions. These we count the principal, but the other we recommend as very useful and necessary; so that we neither encourage the lazy who neglect the Private, nor allow the idle who undervalue the Publick; one ought to be diligent, so as not to leave the other undone. We find our Saviour and his Apostles (after the manner of the Jews) were wont to go to the Temple and Synagogue at the hours of Prayer, and yet both he and they did seek retirements for more private Devotions.

And the Scripture teacheth us to pray at all times, all places, and with all sorts of Pr

⁹ Eph. vi. 18. 1 Tim. er ⁹, that none might be excul ii. 8. Psal. cxl. 1. from either, nor can the one alleged to exclude the other, ¹ they are mutual helps to one another. He that ha been most careful in private Confession, will be fittest for, and most advantaged by the publick; he that is so prepared, must not think the coming Gods House superfluous, because we cannot do too often nor too openly, since many of our sins manifest and require a publick declaration; and this open Confession we shall be freer from the suspic of Hypocrisie in our Closet. We must remember stand in need of Gods help every moment, and the fore we have reason to beg it often, and we can ver beg it in humility unless we confess those sins make us unworthy of it: And since we sin da a daily Confession is highly requisite, and that not ly in these general terms which we use with our E thren, but in the particular and secret remembran of those offences which no eyes but Gods ever sa Nor will they be sufficiently bewailed where the S doth not so particularly search out its private the hainousness, occasions and remedies of the which cannot be performed without a true repent and if we have repented before, yet here we r repeat it because of the present occasion.

§. X. Yet ought we most chiefly so to do when assemble and meet together, to render thanks for,
 These four Duties are so many arguments to pr Confession especially necessary in the solemn Assem because they are all then and there to be perform and yet without penitence none of them will pl God; and we learn here (by the way) the several p of Publick Worship, which is not much varied from the Worship of the Jews, who served God in the Temple by Prayers, Hymns, and hearing the Law, only their sacrifices are now turned into the offering of praise, which their own Rabbins had taught should continue for ever *. The Heathens came to the same ends also, only their Temples were not the places where they learned wisdom as ours were, but they came thither to glorify God for his excellencies, to praise him for his gifts, and to call for his help †; but this Account of our Publick Worship exactly agrees with that which St. Augustin gives of the Christian Assemblies in his time; for there the Law of God was taught, his Miracles commemorated, his Bounty praised, and his Blessings were prayed for ‡. And who can do any of these well that hath not confessed his offences and repented of them; but this will be more plain by beholding the particulars, (1.) We are to give God thanks for his benefits, but unless we see our sins we may think we need not a Saviour, or are not much the better for spiritual mercies, and that we deserve those that are temporal: How can he praise God for his Son, who will not come to him? for his Grace, that will not use it? or for the hopes of Glory, that never seeks after it? (2.) We should glorify his name by publishing his Excellency in Hymns and Anthems of Jubilation *. But how can the impenitent sinner commend that Power which he fears not, or that

* Omnes oblationes cessabunt in seculo futuro, sed oblatio gratiarum nunquam cessabit. Kimchi in Psal. civ.

† Τεῶν ἰσχυρῶν θυτῶν θεῶν, ἢ διὰ πνεύματος, ἢ διὰ λόγων, ἢ διὰ χάριτος καὶ ἀγαθῶν. Porph. ἐν ἀποχ. lib. 2.

‡ Veri Dei aut precepta insinuantur, aut miracula narrantur, aut dona laudantur, aut beneficia postulantur. Aug. Civ. Dei, lib. 2. cap. 28.

§ St. Paul Eph. v. distinguisheth ὑποταγήν from ἐν χειρὶ τοῦ κυρίου.

Holiness which he loves not, or that Mercy that he seeks not after, or that Love which he hath no experience of; the praises of such are next to mocking the Almighty, because their hearts cannot go along with their mouths in the glory they seem to ascribe to him.

(3.) We come to bear his most holy Word : But if our hearts be not prepared by true Penitence we shall be neither wiser nor better; for sin unrepented of stops the ears of a man, hardens his heart, and fills his mind with presumption and security; it banisheth the Holy Spirit by filthiness and vain thoughts, and puts men rather upon hating and despising the good Word of God, than embracing it and submitting to it. What part of Scripture can profit such? Its Exhortations they heed not, its Comforts they need not, its Threatnings they fear not, its Promises they value not; they hate its Instructions, and despise its Reproofs : So that the Messenger of God may say in his Masters Language, Hos. vi. 4. What shall I do unto thee? (4.) We come to pray for what is needful for our bodies and souls. But what Prince will accept a Petition from the hands of a Rebel that disowns not his Treason? much less will the King of Heaven receive his request whose very Prayer is abominable, Prov. xv. 8. If such a man asks for his body, he asks that which he intends to spend on his lusts, and so seems to desire

God to become the Providore

* Rom. xiii. ult. οὐ θέλω πολεῖν. GRÆC.

for them who will not minister fuel to this Flame, unless he intend to consume you. If he lengthen your Life, continue your Health, or increase your Wealth, you will turn the edge of these against God who bestowed them on you, and grow more confident to despise him to your own ruin; so that if he have any mercy for you, he will not hear you. But as to then your Life, continue your Health, or increase your Wealth, you will turn the edge of these against God who bestowed them on you, and grow more confident to despise him to your own ruin; so that if he have any mercy for you, he will not hear you. But as to

I have been thinking of you very much lately
 and wondering how you are getting on. I hope you are well and happy. I have been very busy lately, but I have managed to find some time to write to you. I have been thinking of you very much lately and wondering how you are getting on. I hope you are well and happy.

I have been thinking of you very much lately
 and wondering how you are getting on. I hope you are well and happy. I have been very busy lately, but I have managed to find some time
 to write to you. I have been thinking of you very much lately and wondering how you are getting on. I hope you are well and happy.

I have been thinking of you very much lately
 and wondering how you are getting on. I hope you are well and happy. I have been very busy lately, but I have managed to find some time
 to write to you. I have been thinking of you very much lately and wondering how you are getting on. I hope you are well and happy.

1 Cor. xv. 15. 2 Cor.
 ii. 8.
 2 Cor. v. 2. 20.

I have been thinking of you very much lately
 and wondering how you are getting on. I hope you are well and happy. I have been very busy lately, but I have managed to find some time
 to write to you. I have been thinking of you very much lately and wondering how you are getting on. I hope you are well and happy.

2 Cor. x. 12. Luke xviii. 11. in comparing themselves with one another, and many think they have not so much need as others to make this Confession; but it is the Law of God, and not others practice, that must be our rule, because we are all sinners; What glory was it to Tamar to be more righteous than Judab^a, or to the Jew to be holier than the Chaldeans^b when both were wicked? We shall never rightly judge of our ways, if we measure them by a crooked stick. But suppose we be better than others that doth not make Confession needless. Though a man could charge us, no nor our own Conscience yet is it not safe to plead not guilty, 1 Cor. iv 4. For ix. 15. before a God who examines so narrowly, sees so exactly, and remembers so perfectly that the best had need to crave for mercy. This Confession is general, that it is universally true of all, and so particularly applicable to every mans case, that we invite all to it; the Pharisee must not think himself too good nor the Publican doubt himself too bad to make it. The Church doth not allow of these dangerous persuasions which have puffed some up with Arrogance and Presumption, as if their sins were already absolutely forgiven; for if so, what need they be obliged to daily Repentance, or to ask for what they have already: But alas, they are pardoned only in their own opinion, and when such false imaginations make men proud, that Pride is enough to reverse the grace if God had once consented to absolve them. On the other side, we do advise the greatest sinners to repent, rejecting those discouraging doctrines of men of eternal Reprobation, which some think not reversible by any endeavours; for we do not know of any living may not be pardoned^c, we pray and beseech the good persons not to be slow because they have time, but to hasten because no more time left; for he only is in danger never cast off, who hearing these summons hears them: Let no man then go about to himself, for it is the duty of every man present to save.

^a Gen. xxxviii. 26.

^b Habak. i. 13. Id est, minus improbi, illis quidam iustiores, revera nequissimi. Drus.

[To accompany me] The Jews were never under the Law to enter into the Temple, yet alone went in every the outer part of it to the; but to the Mercy-seat Holy Place none but the High-Priest once a year, but the ways remained in the outward Court, and the; for which purpose were those Stoneremade, which the Talent of^e. The King inmitted into the inner where the Priests did^f sa-when a Prince would go into the Temple, Azariah is commending him; because the Priests alone were so near^g. But now more freedom, for every one of Gods Household though the Order of it is not taken away, yet the of the people is en-that Philo's brag is also of usⁱ, every man is left to offer up his own

^c In isto ad hoc mundo manenti penitentie nulla sera est, parat ad in-dulgenciam Dei adiens.
Cyp. ad Demetr.

^d Exod. xxx. 7. Luke
i. 10. Heb. ix. 6, 7.

^e Tract.  cap. 6.

^f 2 Kings xi. 11. 1 Kin.
viii. 22. 1 Chron. vi. 10.

^g Levit. x. 3. Sanctifi-cabor in propinquo meo.
Montani verbi. Periphrasis Sacerdotum. Pi-scat. in locum.

^h Ephes. ii. 19.

ⁱ  itegret. Philo.
1 Pet. ii. 6.

Prayers

Prayers and Praises, and that not without; for are led in by the hand to the • Ephes. ii. 18. Gr.

αὐτοῦ πατρὸς.

• Heb. iv. 16. καὶ παρὰ προΐας. See Acts xxvi. 1.

Throne of Graceⁿ by Christ the Priest, who is his represe tive, and have liberty to spe freely for our selves before

King of Heaven and Earth: which we ought esteem as an high act of favour, and most thank to embrace it; since we are now no longer to without and send in our Petition by the hands

Servant, but are admitted, nay requested to com our selves, in the company of Gods Messenger, hath the same errand for himself, and therefore is ly to be the more concerned, and importunate:

Minister is that Ambassador whom God sent to b you out of your evil ways, Acts xxvi. 18. 2 Co

18, 19. and O how acceptable will it be to Go see him return with you in his hand, and how c fortable to his Minister, when he can say, Behold and the Children thou hast given me. Wherefore him not go alone, but be you always present, join in the Confession; for otherwise if he go out you, he cannot but comp

• Isai. liii. 1. Heb. xiii. of youⁿ, and must sigh whe

17. — καὶ μὴ συνίζοντες. Lord enquires for you, w will be more your loss than he hath done his Duty in inviting, and though lose the Comfort of your company, yet you lose

Benefit of his, and the Pardon annexed; because neglect so pretious an opportunity, and you let send a daily denial by the hands of Gods special senger, when you do not accompany him.

§. XIII. With a pure heart and humble voice the throne of the heavenly Grace, saying after

The various Rites of washings and cleansings, w was used before they approached to their Table or only to mind them of purity of heart, which was known to be necessary for all that drew near to God; wherefore in their

the unclean were con-futed by the voice of a Church more ought Christians with a pure Heart, with Purity we account the requisite of the Prayer, and we require that the Heart be used as the Interpreter the desires of the Soul, and therefore it is we must pray with our hearts, as the Precept of old is to pray with an audible voice, and therefore the Doctors allow private when the lips only move in public Worship. For the manded open our voices, as when when the first offering was presented by his hand or for the sake of the of death, I have seen many who

*" I have seen many who pray with their hearts
and their lips together
and yet their hearts are not pure, and their prayers are not heard
of God."*

*" I have seen many who pray with their hearts
and their lips together
and yet their hearts are
not pure, and their prayers are not heard
of God."*

*" I have seen many who pray with their hearts
and their lips together
and yet their hearts are
not pure, and their prayers are not heard
of God."*

*" I have seen many who pray with their hearts
and their lips together
and yet their hearts are
not pure, and their prayers are not heard
of God."*

In other Prayers it will suffice to seal them with and set our name at the bottom; but this must be in our own words, and under our own hand to the God, to take shame to our selves, and to reproach our Brethren. The Scripture requires that we should confess our sins to men; but we think of those that will not confess them not in these general terms which may be the best of men too truly: Surely these are either Pharisaical, and suppose they have no need of confessing; or Hypocritical, and would not for sinners; or they are carnal and senseless feeling their load, nor fearing their danger until the Prince comes by a Prison, all the Prisoners fall on their knees, and every man begs a pardon; or two stand mute or stand off, we should if they were confident of their innocence, or in their wickedness, and fearless of the punishment.
Such a censure may too justly be passed upon who either come not to the Confession, or do not use the words of it in that humble but audacious manner which the Church requires and God expects.
God will lose his glory in pardoning thee, if thou hast not first publicly made thy Recantation, and acknowledged thy guilt with thy own mouth.

The Paraphrase of the Exhortation.

[Dearlly Beloved] This courteous Admonition proceeds from my true affection to your Souls and you must not despise, because I am one of your Brethren,] for I speak not from my self, but from the mouth of God; it is he who in [the Scripture] exhorteth us in sundry places] (as well as in the now read) seriously, to consider our thoughts and works, and then [to acknowledge and he cannot forgive us on any terms but such as are consistent with his truth and holiness. [And although we who are born in sin, and do every day more or less commit iniquity, in reason [ought at all times] every day even in our private closets [humbly to acknowledge] and secretly to bewail [our sins before God] who sees the Commission and hears the Confession of them in the most secret place, [yet ought we] not to think when we have done this in private, that it excuseth us from confessing in Gods House; for it is our Duty [most chiefly so to do when we assemble and meet together] there, for then we have many Duties of great concernment to perform, none of which can be done so as we shall be profited by them, or God pleased with them, unless we first do truly repent. As first we come hither [to render thanks for the great benefits we have received at his hands] as life and health, food and raiment, peace and plenty, and especially for our redemption, instruction, sanctification and hopes of glory; but the impenitent abuse the mercies of this life, and despise those that would bring them to a better life, and therefore cannot sincerely give thanks for either. Secondly, we come [to set forth his most worthy praise,] but without repentance all the glorious titles given unto God are nothing but complement or flattery; and such men do not believe what they speak of God; for if they did, his power would territe them, his goodness shame them, his grace would invite them, and his mercy encourage them to turn to him; and if our Praises work not this, they are in vain. Thirdly, we come [to hear his most holy Word,] which calls upon us in the first place to repent, and if we begin not there, it is likely we shall be deaf to its Exhortations, slight its Reproofs, refuse its Commands, despise its Threatnings, isbelieve or disregard its Promises, and so all :lost upon us. Fourthly, we come to this House yer [to ask those things which are requisite cessary] either towards our being or well-being, that is requisite [as well for the body as the but if we do not first repent, we know God a not sinners, nor will he give them temporal s to comfort them in their sin, nor spiritual to le under their feet : [wherefore] since we are into the house of God to worship and serve and all we can do will be esteemed but a mock-God without repentance. I the Ambassador of idd to whom you intend to pray, even [I pray speech you] in his name [as many as are here it] high and low, rich and poor, young and old, ver you are the best of the Congregation, or the of sinners [to accompany me] in making this sion to our great Lord who commanded me to you with me, and will most mercifully accept, vingly embrace us all. O then come along with and confess your sins [with a pure heart] void hypocrisie [and] also with an [umble voice] ssing the sorrow of your minds, and accusing selves in your own words, since you have deser-shame ; and fear not that your own testimony condemn you, for you are going not to a human nal, but [to the throne of the heavenly Grace] e he sits who did invite you, and doth wait for and will forgive you, do not fear it ; neither le your selves how to bespeak him who is in heafor if you be willing to go with me, I will be mouth ; only you must consent to, and seal Sentence by [saying after me] this most hearty sion following.

SECTION III.

Of the daily Confession.The Analysis or Division of the Con

THis pious Confession is so methodica sed, that it naturally falls into these
 1. The Introduction. 2. The Con perly so called. 3. A Deprecation of Evil. titution for good.

I. The Introduc tion in which is shewed

1. To whom it is made } to our
 2. By whom it is made, by us

Almighty mercifu
 we

1. In general,

that we have sinned,
 how we have sinned,

we have eri ed from like lost

2. In particular,

1. Of the Cause, improving our Original sin

we have too much ces and our own

2. Of the Effect, doing Actual sin.

in general
 Disobedience,

we have against Laws;

in sins of Omission,

we have done the which we

in sins of Commission,

we have don and we l those th

3. In a conclusion from both, we ought have don

 and the health in

II. The Confession it self,

. What we ould be livered om, and The rea- ons annex every one	1. From the guilt of sin,	{ But thou, O Lord, with the reason, because we are	{ have mercy upon us
	2. From the punishment of it,	{ miserable offen- ders :
An Argu- ent to en- ce the eprecati- n	with the reason, because we are of those	{ Spare thou them, O God,
	3. From the power of it,	{ that confess their faults :
	with the reason, because we are of	{ Restore thou them that are pe- nitent ;
Of whom we desire it,	1. From the Promises in general,	{ according to thy promises
	2. The manner of giving them,	{ declared
	3. The persons to whom they are given,	{ unto mankind
	4. The person by whom they are given,	{ in Christ Jesu our Lord.
Through whom we desire it,		{ And grant, O most merciful Father, { for his sake
		{ that we may here- after live
. What we esire,	1. To live hereafter in Piety to God,	{ a godly righteous
	2. Charity with others,	{ and a sober life,
	3. Temperance toward our selves,	{ to the glory of thy holy name. Amen.
. Why we desire it, or to what end,

A Practical Discourse on the General Confession.

§. I. A Almighty and most merciful Father,] The Church hath been curious and exact to select such titles for God in the beginning of every Prayer, as are most proper to the petitions to which they are prefixt, and most likely to produce suitable affections in him that useth them; which as it is everywhere apparent to a considering person, so it may appear particularly in the fitness of these two Compellitions to the subsequent Confession. The first is [Almighty] being an acknowledgment of the greatness

Gen. xvii. 1. Heb.
 אֱלֹהֵינוּ לXX.
 αὐταρκής, & Job xxii.
 15. παντοκράτωρ, Aqu.
 ἰκανὸς καὶ ἀλλυμῖνος.
 Theo. ἰκανὸν καὶ δυνατὸν, h. e. αὐταρκής πρὸς ἐνδυναμσίαν. Speusip-pus. Ἱπὶ 2 suis contenta opibus, nil indiga nostri.
 Lucretius.

him whom we have offended. And it denotes his being all-sufficient in himself for his own happiness (as the Philosopher defined him) as also his being able to supply all our wants: And further it notifies his absolute dominion over all the world, and his infinite power to do whatsoever he pleaseth. So that the consideration of this Attribute shews us that we have sinned against a God whom we cannot hurt by our sins; we may indeed harm our selves by them, both by stopping the current of those blessings which sustain and refresh us, and by provoking him to let loose his anger to destroy us: And if the shutting of his hand of Bounty would make us perish for want, sure then the weight of his arm of Power will crush us to pieces; which we must meditate on so long till our hearts are pierced with a religious fear and holy dread of the anger of this Almighty God; only this fear must not drive us from him, but draw us more speedily these happen so frequently that at best we go on but in contorted spiral lines, which is far from the straightness and evenness of our Rule; when these are done out of ignorance they are called errors; and though we think them small in their kind, yet they are formidable in their numbers, and next to infinite: But besides these lesser wandrings, we stray further and stay longer, we fall into greater transgressions and evil habits, these are open forsaking of Gods ways, and a plain passing over those bounds which God hath set

• 1 Kings ii. 36. ubi 777 fig. transire limi- tes, ut & Jos. iv. 1. at Deut. xvii. 2. &c. fig. peccare.

to us as Solomon did to Shimei ^d, and by so doing we forfeit our lives (as he did his) if the divine mercy did not spare us. And thus Malice and Envy, Lust and Drunkenness, Pride and Cruelty, Co-vetousness and Oppression (especially when by frequent repetitions they are become customary) may be called straying from his ways. 'Tis very like, many in favour to their own cause will count their errors no sins, and call their strayings Errors and Infirmities: But the least are committed so often, that they are not to be despised; and the greater are so heinous they cannot be hid; and we should consider, that be the sin what it will, if we repent not, we still wander further, and so an error ends in going astray: To have stepped aside may seem excusable by humane frailty, he must be more than man that doth not so sometimes; but he that sees his error and goes on, is worse than a beast, and wholly inexcusable*.

* Humanum est errare: Bellinum vero perseve-rare in errore. Cicero.

We have all erred by less and strayed by greater sins, but if we hasten our repentance, our stray-ings shall be forgiven and esteemed as errors, otherwise the lesser evils if we cherish them and neglect repen-

repentance, will increase, and become the utter deserting of Gods ways.

§. III. Like lost sheep.] The Church chuseth to express our departure from God, in the language of the Holy Ghost : for God and his Son Jesus are compared to the shepherds, and we to the sheep of their pasture^f; by our sins we become lost sheep^g, as David^h and those in Isaiah confess themselves to be. But Jesus ^f Psal. xxiii. 1. & c. 3, 4.

John x. 1, 2, & c.

^g Isai. liii. 6.

^h Psal. cxix. 176.

comes to seek and save us, Math. xv. 24. Luke xv. 4.

Alas how frequently do we forsake the safe fold, the pure streams and the green pasture which God hath provided for us, and wander into a dry and barren Wilderness, where we want all true comforts, and are exposed to a thousand evils. And then these errings and strayings of ours are fitly resembled by a lost sheep, as appears in three particulars : (1.) No creature is more apt to stray than the Sheep, which is so heedless that it would never keep right, were it not continually under the Shepherds eye : So while we greedily feed on worldly contents, we daily go forward, not observing whether we are right or wrong, so that we easily fall into offences, and seldom keep long in Gods ways. Again (2.) nothing is more open to dangers when it doth stray than this shiftless creature, which hath many enemies and no defence against them ; the Dog is too swift, the Wolf too strong, and the Fox too cunning for it, so that it becomes a prey to all : Even so poor silly man, when he hath left his good Shepherd, is intangled in the thorns of worldly cares, ensnared by Satan, oppressed by wicked men, and pursued by his own conscience, and hath neither policy nor strength enough to contend with, nor swiftness sufficient to fly from these his enemies. Lastly, the straying sheep is most unlikely of it self ever to return; for supposing it should miss the ravenous enemies, it is so stupid and inobservant that it would stray for ever, unless the shepherd find it and restore it. And just thus (God knows) it is with us, who wander up and down, forgetting whence we are fallen, and ignorant how to return again, changing the kinds of our sins sometimes, but never likely to find the right path, till the good Shepherd of our Souls (who comes to seek that which was lost) cause us to hear his voice behind us, Isai. xxx. 21. John x. 4. and we turn and follow him. Thus by this one significant Metaphor, we own God for our true Shepherd, and our selves to be his sheep; poor helpless creatures, apt to stray, and in our wandrings likely to perish by many enemies and great dangers, unlikely and unable ever to return, unless he please to forgive our sin, forget our folly, pity our misery, and come to seek and save us. We feel our selves near lost already, for we have not minded our Shepherds voice, nor heeded his steps who (as the custom of the Eastern Shepherds was) John x. 4. Psal. lxxvii. 20. did himself walk before us, we have not followed him in the right way, but either run on after one anothers bad example, or sometimes chosen the treacherous directions of the Wolf and Fox, before those of our dear Shepherd, to whom therefore we now cry to rescue and restore us.

§ IV. [We have followed too much the devices and desires of our own hearts,] Confession ought to be a giving glory to God, Josh. vii. 19. Jer. xiii. 6. and therefore we must beware ours prove not a dishonouring of him, by charging God himself tacitely with our sins. Our treacherous hearts love the sin too well, yet they would fain lay the blame and shame upon some other.

Adam

will tacitly charge God If rather than want an Ay to excuse his crimes ; and imitate his example , who e blame of their actual trans-ons upon their original cor-on, thinking they are the more excusable , bethey were naturally inclined to it : Let such the inclinations of our nature do not neccssitate sin, but we sin by complying with them, by fol-g of them and by the neglect of Gods restrainrace ; and so no blame can be imposed on him with left the Canaanites to try us, since he proand offers sufficient help and defence against nor can any excuse be made for us who love , and strengthen them , and daily make cove-with them. It is our misery, that our nature evil disposed ; but it is our

* when we reject Gods di-ons , neglect his assistance, ake these false principles and ed appetites for our guides :

efore we here confess it to be our great fault that we have these evil devices and desires, but) we have [followed] them. That which Divines Original Sin, is by the Jews the evil device, and here most ificantly [the devices and desires of hearts.] This is that uni-l corruption which hath overspread the Soul : le man retained the Divine Image , there was a ness and comprehensiveness in the intellectual ers to discern what was truly good, a readiness in will to choose it , and in the affections to make it. But now the understanding is dull, and shal-

1 Gen. iii. 12.

Natura hominis procli-vis in vitia videri vult, non modo cum venia, sed etiam cum ratione pec-care. Last. Inst. lib. 4.

* *Nemo de vitiis naturalibus, sed de voluntariis penas luit. Aug.
Civ. Dei, lib. 12. c. 13.*

1 Gen. vi. 5. Heb.
יָצַד יָדָע. Figmentum malum. Vatab.

low, confused with wrong notions and busied in devising evil, the will is misguided in its choice, the affections unruly in their prosecutions. We search with labour and industry for fine dresses and plausible excuses for sin; and then we begin to fall in love with evil and greedily desire it, so that our understanding is enslaved to our appetites and must pronounce for it. And when we have devised how to call evil good, we are hurried on to desire it with the blindness and violence ^m of unguided affections that end in ruine. Thus we [devise] how to present riches and plenty, ease and pleasure, honour and esteem, satisfaction and revenge to our selves in so pleasing a garb, that they may pass for excellent things, and then we mightily [desire] them, contriving ways to obtain them, and then pursue those ways with expence of our time and estates. with continual care, mighty pains, and restless endeavours; we suppose we cannot be happy without them, although it is most sure we can never have fast hold of them; the Child may as soon catch the Rainbow, as we these flying shadows, which have no reality but only in our imagination: But it will be well now we have wearied our selves with an endless and vain chase, if we will be so wise as to sit down, breathing out sighs, and making sad reflexions on what we have done; for if we can consider, we may easily discern that our devices have failed, our desires been unsatisfied, our expectations frustrated, and our pains unrewarded; and therefore we have good cause to confess we have followed them [too much] already, and to resolve to be abused no more, because they lead us into all sin, and yet yield nothing but vanity and vexation of spirit, for all our venture and pains.

^m Hi motus — si ratione destituuntur, in preceptis rapiuntur & rapiunt. Macrob. som. Scip. l. 2. c. 16.

~~We~~ have offended against thy holy Laws,] merciful God hath made his Lamp ^a to lighten the dark- ^a Psal. cxix. 105. !

our minds; a Counsellor ^b ^b Ibid. v. 24.

ect the weakness of our ent; a Guide ^c to conduct ^c Psal. xxxii. 8.

asteady actions, that we not miss our way to true happiness: But when ll be our own directors, and call that good

God calls evil, neglecting what he commands, ifring what he forbids, then we forsake this side, we come into a wrong way by our false

s, and we run fast by our greedy and evil deand so [we transgress Gods holy Laws] as St. John th, 1 John iii. 4. Jam. i. 17. This also is the ex-degree of sin which St. James sheweth to be con-in the devices of the mind, nourished by the def the heart, and produced by following both so it was in the first of Gods Laws which was by our first Parents ^d, and ever since; these evil prin-endeavour first a consithen a consent, and lastly necessitate us to break Gods

aws, when once they have gotten the power:

e may observe in this general Sentence, four ag-ions of all Actual Sins. 1. They are done aa Law enacted in heaven, and proclaimed over hole earth, and particularly among us, by divers

l Messengers; so that we cannot pretend igno-

2. Not only against one or two, but many

, and if we search narrowly, it will appear in things we have broken all; the Law of Nature,

Decalogue of Moses, the Precepts of Christ, and junctions of the Apostles. It is a bad sign when so many obstacles cannot stop us, and it doth increase our guilt when all these Laws will not restrain us.

^d Oculus videt, cor concupiscit, & instrumenta operis pergunt ad agendum. Fagius.

3. These sins are not against the Laws of any mortal Prince, but against his Laws who is the King of Kings, the God of Heaven, whose dominion over us is so absolute, his wisdom so infinite, and his power so great, that David (though accountable to no humane Tribunal*) thought it aggravation

* Psal. li. 4. Hieron. Epist. ad Rustic. Ambros. in loc. Isidor. Petaus. Ep. ita explicant.

Nec tam considerat quid iussum est, quam illum qui iusserit, nec quantitatem imperii, sed imperantis cogitat dignitatem. Hieron. Ep. 14. ad Celant.

enough merely to have offended him; and the lesser the sin, the greater is the baseness to offend against so glorious a King, he is', where the temptation is so slight, the gain so small, and the resistance so easie, it is highly criminal to break the command of such a Majesty. 4. These Offences are against most Laws, which none of us can plead against, that they are either unjust or unimpossible or unreasonable, because our Conscience testifies for them, and our sober Reason approves them, even when our affections entice us to disobey them. Let us then before our Confession enlarge these particulars by a serious meditation, and it will help us to acknowledge more sorrowfully, and sue more earnestly, and resolve more firmly against them.

§. VI. We have left undone those things which we ought to have done, and we have done those things which we ought not to have done.] The perfect Rule which God hath given us, doth prescribe us what we ought to do (and those Prescriptions are called the Affirmative Precepts) and also forbids those things which we ought not to do (which Prohibitions

are called the Negative.) Now the breach of native Precept or leaving undone, is called a sin of : The breach of a Negative doing what ought not to is a sin of Commission, Division comprehends all that can be committed he Divine Law, and it is e, because it is large e-

The Jewish Rabbies number 613 Precepts in all (so many as there are Letters in the Decalogue;) of which the Affirmative are 248 (so many as the Joints in a Mans Body;) and the Negative 365 (so many as there are days in one Year.)

o take in all the crimes of the world; yet too suitable to the actions of the best, who eny they have often offended in both kinds: I be tedious here to insert a particular Catalogue if we be in our Closet, and have time, we d such a Table as will help us to reckon up iculars both in the [Whole Duty of Man, and Devotion to the Altar.] And though we be in the yet if we can get any time to be private be-iod and our own Souls, because there is much a generals, I shall advise that before our Con-ve call to mind some sins of both sorts; viz. Omission, as neglecting or ill performing of ties of Prayer, Hearing, Receiving the Sacra-as also of matters Moral, the Omission of Obedience to our Superiors, Charity to our ns Souls, together with our deficiency in the lical Graces of Faith, Repentance, Humility ience. And also that we consider of our Sins mission, such as Atheism, Apostasie, Blasphemy, Rebellion, Anger and Malice, Lust with porters Gluttony and Drunkenness, Oppression eating, Lying and Slandering, Envy and Co- ices, which are against the Moral Law, together

ther with those against the Gospel and its Constitutions : And by so doing we shall avoid the Hypocrisy of obscuring our particular sins under a slight and general Confession, which can hardly be said with a humble, lowly, penitent and obedient heart, unless we know the particulars and have examined their number as well as pondered the heinousness of them : may add, that of these two sorts the least is enough to condemn us, and yet there are degrees of guilt, those of Commission being of a deeper dye ; it is worse to do evil than to neglect that which is good, because in the first there is real mischief ; and yet it is easier to avoid a sin, than to perform a duty, and that cannot be repaired as this may. Therefore sins of Omission are punished by withholding of Blessings, those of Commission by inflicting Curses.

▪ Excisionem animæ 23 vicibus minatus est in Negativis, & solum tribus in Affirmativis, viz. non observanti Circumcisionem, Gen. xvii. 14. Pascham, Exod. xii. 15. Sabbatum, Exod. xxxi. 14. Fagius ex Aben Ezra. Transgressio præcepti Affirmativi pœnitentiâ deletur, Negativi tantum pœnitentiâ suspenditur in diem expiationis. Dict. Rabbin.

omit what we ought to do, is to do what we ought not. He that gives not Alms, is always covetous

* Qui succurrere perituro potest & non succurrit occidit.

He that neglects to hear God's Word, shall become an ignorant secure sinner, and in a while be hardened : But the Lier shall be punished by Discovery, Shame, Poverty and Scorn : Which I do not remark, as if Sins of Omission needed little, but because those of Commission need much Repentance ; yet lest any should use it to excuse their leaving their duty undone, or doing it ~~in~~ let them know, that many times to often cruel, and sometimes a murderer* ; he that repents not hates God, and loves Sin, he is obstinate and presumptuous in tha

Now the poor Penitent having surveyed himself within and without, presents himself before the great Physician of Souls, and acknowledgeth his want of health, he finds the Head sick with evil devices, 1 i. 5, 6 the Heart faint with pursuing evil desires, and the whole Body (from inward corrupt principles) overspread with Egyptian Ulcers: So that if Jesus ask him what part he shall apply his Plaster, he will answer, not to his Feet only, but to his Hands and his Head, notwithstanding a Panarion can cure him: The Head is heavy with Ignorance, and dizzy with confused Thoughts; Eyes bloodshot with Wantonness, distorted with 2 Τὸ ἐνδομύλον τῶν ὀφθαλμῶν. 1 Joh. ii. 16.

vy, and inflam'd with covetous fires 2; the Ears are deaf to Gods Word, but itch after Vanity

Novelties; the Tongue blistered with Lies and Slanders, kindl'd at the flames of Hell, streaming forth filthy or blasphemous Evaporations; the Heart is cloven with Hypocrisy, decayed in the heat of Zeal and Charity; Hands are feeble, and soon weary of well-doing; Stomach is overcharged with Surfeiting and Drunkenness, and nauseates all sober Reproof; the Knees stiff with Laziness and Irreverence in Gods Worship; the Feet often lame, and always trembling in the way of Holiness: This is the sad account of our Infirmities and Diseases, some of which are almost contrary to others, yet all agreeing in this, to hasten our death, if we hasten not to him who alone hath Remedies for them. And when we are before him, we must not deny them for their multitude, nor conceal any for their loathsomeness, for this shame will make our Cure impossible b, and is not a b Plerosq; tamen hoc opus ut publicationem sui, aut suffragere, aut de die in diem deferre, pudoris magis memores quam salutis, velut illi qui in verecundioribus corporis partibus contractâ vexationem conscientiam medentium vitant, & ita cum erubescentiâ suâ perirent. Tertul. de Pœn. cap. 6.

SECRET

1. The purpose of this document is to provide information regarding the status of the project. The project is currently in the planning stage and is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

2. The project is being managed by the Project Manager, who is responsible for ensuring that the project is completed on time and within budget.

3. The project is being funded by the Department of Defense, which is providing the necessary resources to ensure its success.

4. The project is being implemented in a phased manner, with the first phase being completed by the end of the quarter.

5. The project is being monitored closely by the Project Manager, who will provide regular updates on the progress of the project.

6. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

7. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

8. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

9. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

10. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

11. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

12. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

13. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

14. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

15. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

16. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

17. The project is being implemented in a secure environment, with all data being protected by the Department of Defense's security policies.

of Humors, if the Choler of Passion, the Phlegm Sloth, the Melancholy of Despair, or the Sanguin Levity and Voluptuousness do too much abound, are in the borders of a Disease. Are we not too with Partiality and violent Zeal, nor too cold & Atheistical Indifferency, too moist with discouraging Grievs, nor too dry with unfruitful Vanity? But to be feared a little examination will discover for if not most of these Symptoms in us all, and w there but half as much to portend a mortal Sicknes our Body, we should not stay for an adviser, but

¶ — Venienti occurrere morbo.

— Serò medicina paratur Cum mala per longas in-valuere moras.

to or presently send for the Phycian^d. Let me but desire as mi-care here, where the Distempe in the nobler part, and the Da-ger Death eternal. If your Se be ill, your better half is dying and if you love your selves, make hast to Jesur & speedy help. It may be the signs are not yet so e-dent or so formidable, but by being not regarded, will gain strength and take root, and perhaps despi-a Cure at last. Aristides died of the bite of a little Weasel, which he neglected till it became incurable and then cried out in a desperate rage [O me miserum &c.] Miserable Wretch that I am! if it had been a Lion I had sought a Remedy. Happy are they that dress their green Wounds, and purge out their noxious Humors betimes, so shall they not languish under a tedious Sicknes, nor be tormented with the pains of an irresistible Gangrene. I have enlarged in to this Allegory, because it may improve our Devotion, yet the literal and more direct sense may not be neglected here. Behold therefore the Penitent (alter the full view of his many and grievous sins) looking round about to find whether there be any way to escape

II. The ...

therefore, but not saying with the Pharisee [I thank thee, Luk. xviii. 11.] but with the Publican [Lord be merciful] as the Church from his example hath taught us: Let us not ask any favours till we have first begged a removal of the evils which are upon us, viz. The Guilt, the Punishment, and the Dominion of sin; which are here so contrived into three Petitions, that every one is joyned with a Motive to enforce it, so that our Misery pleads for Mercy, our free Confession cries for a removal of the Punishment, and our hearty Reformation begs deliverance from all our contracted Indispositions. The first thing in our view is, that we are [miserable sinners] our misery is so plain we cannot overlook it, so great we cannot but feel it, and therefore we are taught to beseech our God to pity us, for Misery Misericordia est aliena miseriae quaedam in nostro corde compassio, quatenus si possumus subvenire compellimur. Aug. Civ. Dei, l. 9. c. 5.

is the proper object of Mercy. That benign Attribute is ever looking upon the Creatures present sufferings, without reflecting on the deserts of the sufferer it is moved with the sight of a distressed person whatever be the cause of his Calamity. Therefore when nothing else in God can give any comfort to a poor sinking sinner, then he can lay hold of his Mercy. The Publican that dares not look up to heaven can yet say Miserere. And as Mercy is the sinners chieftest Comfort, so it is that Attribute that moves God to forgive and pardon ^h, so that to beg for mercy and desire forgiveness are all one;

^hRom. xi. 32. Heb. viii. 12. Psal. li. 1, 2.

as in that eminent penitential Psalm, David begins with Have mercy on me, and immediately explains it by the removing his offences: In like manner here we pray for pardon in our Have mercy on us, because Mercy is the Almoner to distribute this principal act of.

● 五、

2000

[The page contains extremely faint, illegible horizontal lines of text.]

they call in earnest, when Death is before their eyes, Mercy then will not come.

§.IX. Spare thou them, O God, that confess their faults] The elder Brother that knew the fidelity and constancy of his service expects a large reward; but the poor Prodigal that was conscious of his offences, will esteem it a high favour to escape a severe chastisement, and utter exclusion from his Fathers house and presence; they that are not sensible of their guilt fear not punishment, and esteem a deliverance scarce worth the asking. But he that considers the multitude of his own offences, and Gods abhorrency of them, he that remembers the terrors of his Threatnings, the strictness of his Justice, the fierceness of his Anger, when he begins, and the impossibility of avoiding that stroke which no place can avert¹, no hands resist, no feet fly from, nor no strength endure. To this poor Soul Gods pity is desirable, and he accounts it a great mercy he hath not yet found the weight of Gods wrath, and begs earnestly he never may feel it, or however not sink eternally under it; he can pray as heartily before the stroke come, as others when the smart exports it from them. When the Israelites heard the ² Exod. xii. 13.

¹ Joshua viii. 20. Non erat [] in eis manus ad pugnandum rei pedes ad fugiendum. R.R. at LXX. Vulg. & Masius, Non erat in locis, ut Deut. ii. 37. Ch. Par. Jun. & nostr. Vers. Non erant in eis vires. Ita Drusius.

Fagius in locum.

cry of Egypt, and saw the slaughter of so many first-born². they then thought the sparing of their lives to be a Mercy worthy the celebrating with a Passover. The true Penitent esteems his Life a favour, and all on this side Hell Mercy, and the condemned Miser will be as thankful for a Reprieve, as another for a great Pension and high Preferment: The sinners request is no greater than to be spared, and argument is not because he is not guilty, or deserving stripes; that would accelerate the stroke, to such daring confidence, and convince such horridness: Nothing is to be gotten from God depending on our innocence, but the way is to confess faults; for one great end of Gods temporal punishments on sinners is to force them to do him justice by racks and tortures to extort a Confession from them that have the cunning to conceal, or the hardness to deny their wickedness. Thus God opened the mouths of Joseph's Brethren, of Adonibezek, and Mahabim, and made them to display former and almost forgotten crimes, and thus he forced Pharaoh himself to cry Peccavi, who God would cease to punish, when he had obtained his end, and brought him to Confession. Therefore ought we to stay till some command summon us, but let us of our own accord willingly confess our sins. Racks and Strapadoes for obstinate Rogues; no merciful human Prince would use them to one that with tears pleaded guilty, begged a pardon, much less will the Father of Mercies: What need is there of further witness? The humbler accuseth himself, clears his Justice, and casts himself wholly on his Mercy, doubtless he shall be spared, especially because it is hoped, that he that hath seen his danger, and needily and fully confessed his fault, designs no more to prove disobedient, if he may now be pardoned. And since the chief end of Punishment is to ^a Gen. xlii. 21. & xlii. 16.

^o Judges i. 6.

^p 2 Chron. xxxii. 12.

^q Exod. ix. 27.

Satis est, h.e. satis jam lucratus est Deus poenis suis, cum jam culpam nostram agnoscimus. Fagius in loc.

^r Matth. xxvi. 65.

Habes confitentem reum.

Nemo prudens punit quia peccatur, sed ne peccetur. Senec. prevent the sin^r, doubtless God will not be hard to be intreated to spare him, that is in the way to amendment, and whose own prudent fears have done that which otherwise a sharp Judgment must have wrought. Let us be so wise as to go in upon the first apprehensions of Gods displeasure, and take Sanctuary in his pity, and we shall not be punished temporally, unless with designs of mercy, however not eternally.

§.X. Restore thou them that are penitent,] Though we are apt to account those beggars saucy and troublesome, who from one request granted are encouraged to make a second and more considerable: Yet God (whose Rule is (Habenti dabitur.) To him that hath shall be given) is well pleased with it, nor will he interpret it impudence, if after we have prayed for a removal of the guilt, and a deliverance from the punishment of our sin, we put up a further and greater request, even to be restored; for it is not a single mischief which sin doth us, besides the stain it leaveth, and the wrath it deserveth, it doth alienate the mind of God from us and ours from him; so that after David had prayed against the fore mentioned evils, he also desires to be restored, Psal. li. 12. It will not suffice Absalom to be called home from banishment, unless he may see his Fathers face, 2 Sam. xiv. 32. So if a truly pious man were sure never to smart for Sin by any positive evil, the bare privation of the Divine Love would be intolerable, and its suspension a grievous burden, and he that truly calls God Father, will not be satisfied without a restoring to his Favour, which Sin had deprived him of: The word [restore] is also used for the rebuilding a ruined and depopulated City, Dan. ix. 25, &c. which is the sad Emblem of

III. Chapman

And now we have a very different idea of the character of the poet: we have seen him in the light of a different world, and we are to be our own judges of his South. It is a world never before seen, and the re-education of the length: Emerson is a visionary, but in the that classic of the and signifies our need ing to God's Power. It is that we did not see distinguishing under the and may have a perfect personally corrupt the every. But they make store none but him that reforms, for he that sees the heart knows that to seek only pity or deliverance, proceeds from Self-love at best, and sometimes from love to Sin; as the crasie Epicure desires health, that he may renew the prosecutions of his lust. But he that seriously desires to be restored, hates sin for it self, not for its evil company, and he that doth so is truly penitent; but they that only desire a freedom from misery and punishment, and are not grieved for these remains, will soon fall again into sin, and God who knows that, may justly deny them the peace which they use so ill. By this also it appears, that men do in vain complain of the dregs of their old corruptions, who have not truly repented, for God will leave these Canaanites on purpose to vex such half Repenters, • Numb. xxxiii. 35.

*Sæpe includent vos & introitum & exitum ne-gabunt vobis. Jos. xxiii.
 13. Cautè & tectè primo vos irretire conentur, deinde palam urgebunt vos, donec occacati estis.*
 Masius.

which will hinder them in religious Duties", and when they grow weary of resisting them, then they become snakes in their way, secretly to entrap them, and by degrees scourges in their sides, violently to drive them, and lastly thorns in their eyes, putting out the light of Conscience it self, that they may sin without fear. O do not therefore cease repenting as soon as you can believe or hope a Pardon; but let that hope encourage you to repent more, and to cast out all the reliques of the old leaven, watch and pray till you be restored to the same clearness of Judgment, earnestness of holy Desire, freedom of Will, power over your Affections, composedness of Soul, and tenderness of Conscience which you had before you fell, for till then you are not out of the danger of your Disease.

Q. According to the Promises declared unto ind in Christ Jesu our Lord,] It might well be d an high presumption in us that are offenders t God. to ask so many favours of him, but that th prevented this censure, by interposing his se that he will do what we desire ; which se is a sure foundation to build our hopes up-:cause by it we have a title to that, which we not expect before ; for God being truth it self, ged to make his word good, and by his Promise his Creature a kind of right thing promised *, or if he bound to us, he is obliged own Justice and Veracity †, is doth not abridge his free-who could discern before it could fall out, and yet obliged himself; so that his se is no more than a decla-of what he can do, and sees fit to be done, ad never been promised. Wherefore we cannot him better than to urge him with his Promises, e then we only desire what he judges fit to be d ; nor must we measure the Almighty by the neasures of a man ‡, who not to be charged with ie doth not intend or is not o perform ; but there is no seen accident can occur to ne determination of an all-and immutable God, his its have always pleased him tained their suit, 2 Chron.
 c. xx. 9. when they have d a promise in a particular temporal concern :

* Gr. ὑπόχρησις Pro-missio. Ἀλίκα γὰρ πῶς κατέχει τὴν ὑπόχρε-σιν, ὃ πρὸς ἐπαγγελίαν δεξ' ἔμελλε. Eustath.
 Iliad. β.

† Deus non nobis fit simpliciter debitor, sed sibi ipsi. Th. Aquinas.

‡ Numb. xxiii. 10.
 Homo ex quatuor causis solet promissa negare, vel quando fallaciter quid promissit, vel quando promissi pœnitet, vel quan-do offenditur ab eo cui fit promissio, vel quan-do nequit persolvere, hæc omnia à Deo absunt. E Fag. in loc.

Much

Much more shall we in these which are of so weight, and so often repeated in the Book of and so fully agreeable to his eternal purposes an stant desires. These Promises are indeed condi and we ask them not absolutely, but upon the tion on which they are made, viz. as hoping by grace that we are penitent, or else our request not be according to his promises. But in these are three grounds of our hopes. (1.) Because th mises are declared, he hath not only purposes o cy in the secrets of his unsearchable breast, but h made Promises, and communicated and put them by word and writing, from time to time, Heaven and Earth, Angels and Devils, and al that are, or were, or ever shall be. Now if h not intended to perform them, they should no been divulged before so many witnesses; but they are declared to all, they are a summons and shall be fulfilled to all that do go in to God, ing his gracious Proclamation in their hands. (2.
 are made to mankind, for the Apostate Angel permitted (as they fell, so) to lie to eternity, t in their naturals they far excelled us; but Jesu ciously snatched hold of us made a Covenant with us, f though we are offenders, v salvable; though despicable we are such as the Promises are directed to. W not pretend to any infallible revelation of our liar interest in them, nor do we plead any particul gagements made to our persons by name; yet sinc are made to all, we are thankful we are not partic excepted, and do hope we shall have a share, for v lieve Mercy on purpose contrived the Promises so that no repentant sinner might want encouragen

* Heb. ii. 16. Gr. ἐπι-λαμβάνει. See D. Ham.
 Annot.

ly them modestly to our selves, not because better than others, but because we have as need as any; and even when we see our selves full of sinners, we may take comfort in the uniformity of the Promise, because we are of mankind; we who presume and grow arrogant with the thought that they have more right to them than any are like that vain person who offered his Prince sum of money, to be permitted to salute him daily every day, that men might suppose him a near of the Kings. The better sort of humbleness being thankful for lesser favours, which are commonly more real, though less plausible. We hope in these Promises, because they are made by Christ Jesus, for he first clearly revealed them in 2 Tim. i. 10. he procured them of God, and holds them as a Mediator between both, wherefore they are made in him, 2 Tim. i. 1. And because they are made in him, 1. We believe they shall be faithfully performed, they are Yea and Amen, 2 Cor. i. 20. they were really intended, and shall be certainly fulfilled. Christ is the first, Gen. iii. 15. and the Promise, and God having given him already, hath evidenced his love to us, and manifested his faithfulness in promising, and his resolution of performing all the rest in due time, Rom. viii. 32. And, it is surer comfort that they are made in him, than if they had been made immediately to us; for if ever we had broke any condition, we had lost our right to all that was promised^b, our venture is deposited in a dishonest broker, even in him that did all that God required.

^b In pactis si vel tantillum ex dictis pars altera transgrederetur rupta sunt fœdera. Thucyd.

none can question those Promises which were freely by the God of truth, and are confirmed by

by the performance of the greatest first, and dependent on the perfect obedience of Christ Jesus, whose complete righteousness shall justify the claim of every true penitent, notwithstanding his own many failings.

2. We believe because they are made in him they shall be dispensed to us with much mercy, not like those made upon Mount Sinai, which could only benefit him that had at all times, and in all instances obeyed. For what comfort were that to him that owns himself a sinner? But these are from Mount Sion, and to be fulfilled by our gracious Redeemer whose merits are the ground of our hope and faith. He that makes them, looked on Jesus, and through him with mercy on us, and we hope for his sake to receive our portion. This clause is the exercise of our faith, in pleading the Promise through Christ, and could not have been omitted; for Faith must ever regulate our Repentance

‘ Πίστις ἐν ᾧ ἡ μετάνοια, ἐστὶν ἀντίδοτον.’
Clem. Alex.

as well as Repentance must strengthen our Faith; and these two must not be separated. The desires of a pardon without this but like the Petitioners men offer to merciless Tyrants rather to declare their grief, than in expectations of any help. To see Sin, and not to see the Promise, terrifies the Conscience, and turns into the amazing sight of trembling Cain, or the final despair of wretched Judas, and produces nothing but hideous groans such as are rebounded from the hollow caverns and infernal prisons of damned Spirits. Wherefore I advise all that would repent, not to dwell so long in the dark meditations of their own vileness, as to be unable to endure the splendor of Gods Grace and Mercy. For though a serious apprehension of sin will make the bitter, yet nothing can make God sweet, but that Faith which represents him willing to receive all those that humbly come to him.

¶. XII. And grant, O most merciful Father, for the sake,] To be delivered from all the evil and mi-serious consequences of sin hath been thus far the subject of our Petition, which we now enlarge by re-quering for somewhat which is really good. To that end again for our encouragement we call to remember our God is a most merciful Father in Christ Jesus, in whom the penitent is taught to look, and because he intercedes for us, we ask it for his sake through whom God is merciful, and we have a promise we shall prevail, John xiv. 13. If we asked these things for the sake of any Saint or Angel, we should have small hopes of success, for they are creatures to God in themselves, they depend upon him and by their what they are, and the Saints have obtained all they have for Christs sake, so that if they should ask us (which is unlikely) they could detest any derogation to the honour of that name to which they are so much indebted. But our Church believe and in every Prayer we make express as in the Scripture also doth John xvi. 23 26 to ask a Father

ators in the Heathens may be a pardonable mistake, but it is inexcusable in Christians, who know, it was never allowed by the Jews to use the intercession † Munster in Matth. iv. 10.

any Creature^t, and that Dan prayed then for the Lords for Dan. ix. 17. and that there is one Mediator, 1 Tim. ii. 5. and Jesus is he, 1 John ii. Nor is there one example (as themselves confess) any in Scripture that prayed by the mediation of Saints or Angels. The Jews were taught indeed in imi-

‡ Adonai est clavis quâ patet aditus ad Jehovam in sua essentia quasi latentem, et est Thesaurus quo ea que in cunctis sunt nobis impertiantur, est Oeconomus qui omnia dispensat, &c. Port. Lucis.

the Primitive Christians have been also, who all declare against it, as might be largely proved; but the § Qui rectè Deum invocet per filium invocet. Greg. Neocæs. in Exhort.

of Gregory Neocæs. may suffice. No man rightly calls upon God the Father, but by the Son. I might add more for the confutation of this error, if it were not better and more seasonably done by others already, so that we may leave this when we have observed the impudence of those ignorant and malicious persons, who charge the Liturgy as favouring of Popery, when every little Collect doth disown and declare against our foundation Article of their Faith, nay by consequence against all that are superstructed, viz. Merits, Pilgrimages, Shrines, Images, Indulgences, Penances of Satisfaction, &c. because we adhere only to the Me-of Christ Jesus, acknowledging our own unworthiness, but believing that he, as our Redeemer, will secure our pardon, and as our Advocate will obtain grace to help us to walk in the ways of God.

§. XIII. [What we may hereafter] The very Method of this exact Confession directs us in our Repentance to look three ways successively, 1. Inwards for Humiliation. 2. Upwards for Pardon. And 3. Onwards for Amendment; which Order we must not break nor disjoin the Connexion: For he that first looks up to God, before he hath seen his Sin, will but mock the Almighty; he that first looks forward will but deceive himself, and not be able to proceed: again, he that looks inwards and not upwards will despair, he that looks upward and not inwards will presume, and if he do both see his sin, and seek for mercy, but looks not onwards to amend, he doth but dissemble, and of all the rest we must be careful of what we are to do hereafter, because the discovery of sin and the offer of forgiveness are only to engage to a future reformation. Which consideration respects two sorts of persons who are apt to ne-

Lam.iii.40. When this sorrow hath made you h sin, and long for peace with God, it hath proceed far enough, and to continue this corroding Plaster, to protract and hinder the Cure. Experience tells that many good men suffer for want of this advi for fearing they should grieve too little, they study increase their sorrow by ever beholding the dark si of the cloud, which fills their hearts with benummi fears, their heads with unworthy jealousies, and their duties with distrust and unbelief : Whereas they would set themselves to work, and oiling the wheels with love and hope, leave their desires of pa don to Jesus to sue out, they might find more convin cing proofs of the Divine Mercy in his assistance their endeavours, than ever they shall gain by fruit less sighs and tears, sad wishes and empty speculation 2. The dissembling Hypocrite, who also looks not for ward, not because he fears he cannot (as the former but because he resolves he will not amend his life only finding his Conscience terrified and uneasy, he would say or promise any thing to be quit of the pre sent smart ; but this proceeds rather from a weariness of suffering for evil, than a hatred against doing it And such mens cries for mercy, are only to stop the mouth of their accuser, without any resolutions of becoming better if they procure their quiet ; nay per haps they do it in hopes to sin hereafter with less op position. But the miserable wretches deceive and tire themselves in an endless circle of sinning and repenting, striving for a little false peace, that they may do that which will renew their trouble, and then they repent again (as they call it) though indeed they never repent, because they never amendⁱ, and in this are Ἰ Αἱ ὅτι ὁ ὁμιλοῦντες καὶ ἐπ-ἀμύλοισι μετάνοιαι ἔδεν ἡ καὶ ἀπαρτὶς μὴ πεπιστευμένων διαφύγειν, ἢ μόνον τὸ ὁμιλοῦντες ὅτι ἀμύλοισι. Clem. Alex. Strom.2. work worse than the most blind and obdurate sinner, because they see they have done amiss, and yet will do it again. O let such consider this [hereafter] and know till they both desire and endeavour a change in their manners they cannot be forgiven.

§. XIV. Live a godly, righteous and a sober life,]

The Jews call that place, Mic. vi. 8. the Law in three words, Justice, Mercy and Humility, and S. Paul hath given us both Law and Gospel in as few in Tit. ii. 12.^a from whence this Petition is taken; for the principal end of Christs coming, of the preaching of the Gospel, and of the communications of Gods grace he there shews to be that we may live (1.) Godlily, in observance of all duties of Piety to God; (2.) Righteously, in discharging all offices of Justice and Charity to others; (3) Soberly, in performing what relates to our own Bodies and Souls; and this is the Whole Duty of Man. And truly he that confesseth he hath offended in all, and desires forgiveness of all, must needs pray for the abandment of all that hath been amiss, or his Repen-ἡ ἰσχυρὰ καὶ ἀκαταμάχητος ἐν ἡμῶν ἡμετέραν ἀποκαταστήσει τὴν ἐκείνου.

this Church who orders us to pray for Justice and Sobriety all together. Some ohaps may please us better, but they all ali-together please God : If we seek our ow-chuse what we like best, but if we truly we must embrace all, for they all depend other, and he that breaks or leaves one weakens as well as shortens the whole chaus view the particulars, 1. A godly Life, challenge the first place, in regard the of Piety are the foundation of Justice and and the neglect of these opens the door

*1 Heu primæ scelerum causæ mortalibus ægris Naturam nescire Dei.
Sil.Ital.Sublatâ Pietate tollitur Justitia.Cicero.*

ner of wickedness :
he that is a Rebel to his just to his Fellow-Sub-first then is the Fear of godly life, and it is the his due inwardly and outwardly. (1.) Inwardly complete Precept of loving him before all and more than all things, in giving him the in our thoughts, in our will, understanding so that we admire nothing more than his nothing more than his threatnings, and

*m Deut. vi. 5. Matth. xxii. 37. Toto corde ut omnes cogitationes, totâ animâ ut omnem vitam, totâ mente ut omnem in-tellectum in Deum conferas. Aug. de Doctr.
Christi.*

thing more than his is that loving God with heart, when we con-Truth, hope in his M-his omnipotence and Bounty ; and if thy heart disposed, it will discover outward signification deavours to know him, speaking honour in a readiness to praise him, to pray to worship him on all opportunities publick

This is the sum of the first Table of the L in we are commanded to love and own, honour and fear God exclusively to all others : To worship him in purity, to reverence his name, and all that bears the impresses of it, and to observe religiously those solemn times dedicated to his service, which is called walking with God ^a, and worthy of him ^o; and such a godly life is suitable to those Confessions we make of his Wisdom, Power and Mercy, and doth express we are ^a Gen. v. v.22. C.P.

Ambulant in timore coram Domino.

^o 1 Thess. ii. 12. Ἀξίως τῷ Θεῷ.

really grieved for walking in contrary paths. (2.) A righteous Life, which is more than a Negative can express, and is by some falsely confined to the doing no evil to our Neighbours. ^p The Heathens said, Do not to others what you would not have done to you. But Christ changeth it into the positive ^q, and the Christians besides avoiding all wrongs and injuries, did that to others which they would have wished done to themselves; and therefore the sum of this is, we pray that we may never do that to our Neighbour which we would be loth to suffer, as hurting his Body, impairing his Estate by force or fraud, disparaging his Name at the first or second hand; and further, whatever we would wish should be done unto us, if we were abused or oppressed, sick or sorrowful, in danger or necessity, we pray that we may do the same to them that are in such circumstances ^r; and as

^p Justitia in eo sita est, ut abstineatur alienis neque noceatur non nocenti. Ita Porphyr.
Quod tibi fieri non vis, alteri ne feceris.

^q Matth. vii. 12. Ideo mihi placent Christiani, quod quae sibi fieri velint, ipsi aliis faciunt. Severus Imperat.

^r Τὸ ὁ-χρησθῆναι πόνους ἀρετῆς πρὸς τὸ συμμερόν τ' ἑαλεῖται τοῖς ἡ ἡγεμονίᾳ. Andron.
Rhod. in Arist. l. 3. c. 1.

we expect loving Relatives, chaste Yoke-fellows, obedient Children, faithful Friends and loving Neighbours, that we may be such in all these relations : In a word that we may all, and hurt none^c, but be Vir bonus prodest qui- mon good to all we c bas potest, nocet autem with : And this will l nemini. Cicero.

pleasing to that God who common Father of all, and the Judge of all the (3.) A sober Life, which contains all that care a man ought to take of his own Body as in observance to him that created, redeemed :

 serves both ; for though in common speech be opposed to Drunkenness, the word [Ca is of larger signification, importing a prudent ration of our natural desires of meat or drink or pleasure, that the mind be not by them hindered the pursuing of what is truly good : So the man who is no drunkard is not a sober person neither the gluttonous Epicure nor lascivious do live sober lives. The full sense of this Re that we may be temperate and abstemious, and chaste, full of mortification and self-denial we may use meat and drink to serve our nature and fit us for Gods Service ; not to pamper our Devils Saddle, not to indispose our mind, our body, or shorten our lives ; that we use none but lawful pleasures, and those so moderate that they may not make our spirits vain, engross affections, engross our thoughts, nor be esteemed our chiefest good^c, and

* 1 Cor. vii. 29. uti grant us this command non frui. Aug. appetites, we shall never our watch, nor give our advantage, nor shall we at any time be unapt duties to God or Man. This is a brief account this most comprehensive Petition, every part sure we shall put up heartily, when we have ingratitude to God, our injustice to our Neighbour, and our carelessness of our Selves; together with the vengeance we deserve for all this. Now, if ever, it will appear high time to leave those evil and dangerous ways, and to return into these pleasant and safe paths for our everlasting good : And that we may heartily ask this, we must first get a firm resolution to set about these Duties, lest we mock God ; and secondly we must see our own insufficiency, lest we deceive our selves by thinking we need not the assistance of Divine Grace. If we purpose firmly we do our endeavour, but if we beg the assistance of Gods Spirit we declare our humility, and are like to stand fast in those resolutions ; and this we may assure our selves, that it is his desire as well as ours, that we should live such lives. He hath long waited to hear this Petition from us, so that when we ask it heartily he will be sure to grant it, and rejoice over us in that he is likely to reap the fruit of all that Jesus hath done for us.

§.XV. To the glory of thy holy name.] This Conclusion may either have respect to all the Petitions before, or it may particularly be applied to the last : In the first sense it is a declaration, that (though we shall be happy in having all these Prayers heard, yet) we are not so devoted to our own advantage, as to aim no higher, but we believe it will tend to his Glory as well as our Good. Nothing by us can be added to make his Perfections more glorious in themselves ; but by such incomparable testimonies of Grace and Mercy, his Goodness will be more clearly manifested to us and all men ; for we consider that his delivering us from Death to Life, retrieving us from fears of Hell to hopes of Heaven, his changing us from Sin to Grace, and doing all this for rebellious Wretches that he could easily destroy. This will be a great Manifesto of his Glory to all the world, for all

¶ 1 Tim. i. 16. Gr.
 'Εὐδελος. Gloria ejus est scintilla lucis divina cedens in utilitatem populi ejus. R. Jehud.
 l. r. Cosri.

that see will admire", and be encouraged to repent and turn to this most merciful God, and we our selves shall ever remember with joy and delight, that we have found in him a most free propensity to pity the miserable, unspeakable kindness to help the unworthy; and omnipotent power to rescue the perishing from the jaws of eternal ruin; and with these holy thoughts, the flames of gratitude will ever be preserved upon the Altar of our hearts, and from thence daily will ascend a cloud of hearty Praises and Gratulations. Or secondly, it may be annexed to the last Petition, viz. that we may not only do good, but do it well, having an eye to his glory, Rom. xiv. 5, 6. not our own estimation, or to obtain the praise of men: That we may live godlily, righteously and soberly, not to our own credit, but his Glory, and when we have done all, may in gratitude cast all at his feet, to let all the world see, by whose Long-suffering we are spared, by whose Mercy we are forgiven, and by whose Grace we are reformed: And that our holy Lives hereafter may shew, that we are so in love with God and his ways, that we esteem it our chiefest Happiness to be like him, and walk in them all our days.

§. XVI. Amen.] There is in the Liturgy as well as Holy Scripture a twofold Amen, the one Affirmative in the end of the Creed. the other Optative in the end of Collects, and particularly of this Confession; so that

* Futur. Niph. [אמן] here it is an Adverb of Wish. *
 Per Apharef. [אמן] unde Lxx. אמן. Vide Full. Miscel. l. i. c. 2.

a serious desire that God would grant all our Petitions. Thus the Jews used it at the end of their Hymns ⁷ and Prayers ², and in that CVI. Psalm the people are particularly charged, when they had heard that Psalm read, to say Amen after it : And the Rabbins enjoined the saying it after every little Prayer, as a thing pleasing to God, and profitable to Men; comparing it to the setting our name to an Epistle writ in anothers hand, which then becomes ours when we sign it ^b. The same Doctors in the Talmud also reprove three sorts of Amen (1.) Pupillum, when like children they speak it to that they understand not. (2.) Amen surreptitium, when by carelessness they say it before the Prayer be done. (3.) Amen scđile, when by sleepiness and yawning they cut it in two parts : By all which it appears they would have it pronounced zealously and reverently by all the people. From the Jews our Lord took it, and by placing it at the end of his own Prayer, Matth. vi. 13. declared he would have us Christians to subjoin it to all ours; and accordingly it appears the Apostles ordered it, for the most ignorant (who could only join with others, that prayed for him) was appointed at the end to say Amen ^c. Which we may the rather believe they ordained in the Church, because we find the Masters of Israel appointed those who could not pray for themselves nor read, to go to the Synagogue ^d, and hear what others then prayed, and by saying Amen

⁷ 1 Chron. xii. 36.

² Ed voce testati sunt omnes se probare ea qua recitantur. Grotius.

^a Quicumque finit singulis precatiunculis dicit Amen in hoc seculo, dicet etiam Amen in seculo futuro. R. Jehud. Tanch. Ille facit ut redemptio nostra acceleretur. Alter RR.

^b Buxt. Synag. Jud. c. 7.

^c 1 Cor. xiv. 16.
Gr. ἰδοὺ τα.

^d Buxtoff. Synag. Jud. cap. 5.

heartily to their Prayers, they made those Prayers (as they taught) to become their own. From the practice of the Apostles, it is sufficiently proved to have descended

 Nos simul Amen dicimus. Irenæus. Si pro ipsius Salvatoris pacto in consensu duorum quocunq; petierint fiet; quid igitur futurum ubi ex tot tantisq; populis in unum congregatis, una vox respondeatur acclamantium Amen. Athan. Ad similitudinem cœlestis tonitrue Amen populus reboat. Hieron.*

into the constant use of the Church in all ages * ; so that all know the People in the Primitive times, used in the conclusion of all Publick Prayers to answer with an Amen loud as a clap of thunder. And I wish our times (which pretend to so much zeal) had never laid aside this holy custom, which besides the prescription of Antiquity hath the records of Scripture to produce for its observation. I wish I might be a happy instrument to restore the use of it. Let us, I beseech you, resume this most useful Conclusion, and all speak it heartily and audibly, to testifie both to God and Men, that we have all one Lord, one Faith, one Hope, and one Mouth : And as we pronounce it let us reflect on all the sentences of the foregoing Prayer, (especially such as vain thoughts hindred us from attending) and sum up all our desires in one devout Amen. Lord let all and every of these things be granted to us. If you forbear to say Amen out of dislike to the Prayers, do but study them, and I am confident you will be reconciled to them ; If you omit Amen out of negligence, pray consider how you can expect God should accept that Prayer which you never owned nor consented to : You might as well be absent if you join not with the Minister. And therefore that God may say Amen to all our Prayers, he grant us Grace to say it devoutly unto our own : Amen.

The Paraphrase of the Confession.

O most glorious and dreadful Lord God, who art mighty in thy Power, and of absolute Authority, to destroy us and yet willing to spare us, and who hast shewed thy self a gracious [and most merciful Father,] thy pity encourageth us to confess un-we with shame and sorrow ; That [we] thy poor creatures [have erred] and daily gone aside out of thy paths, by frequent, sudden and unobserved sins, [estranged] many times into voluntary, deliberate habitual transgressions ; whereby we have strayed far and wandred further [from thy ways] of pleasures and paths of peace, where we might have been so safe and happy : And now we are [like lost sheep] without our good shepherd, exposed to many subtle and powerful enemies, unable of our selves to resist them or flee from them, and unlikely to return to thee, unless thou come to seek and save us. O Lord, we now find to our sorrow that [we have followed too much] and too long after false notions even [the devices] and false principles of our corrupted understandings ; yea we have been led headlong after our mistaken choice by the blind affections and desires of our own hearts,] and thus by forsaking thy conduct, and pursuing all that a mistaken judgment could devise, or a wicked heart desire [we are] daily in thought, word and deed, most grievously [offended against thy holy Laws,] though we are not ignorant of them, nor can we make any excuses against them. Who shall plead for us, that we have been fully instructed in our Duty, and yet through laziness, forgetfulness or worldly-mindedness have very often [left undone those things] which our

our Duty to God, our Love to our Neighbour the Care of our own Bodies

f Here reflect upon what you read S. 6. and 14. calling to mind what you have omitted of your Duty to God, your selves or others.

Souls required? All [we ought to have done] most sincere and cordial re- but these we have either or else performed so slightly they might almost as well been left undone; by which thou hast been pro- to give us up to the deceits of Satan: So that [have] besides these sins of Omission frequently [those things] also which have tended to Thy- our, our Neighbours hurt, and to the pre- our own Bodies and Souls

g Here remember your Sins of Commission (as hath been said) and call to mind your breaches of the second, third, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth Commandments. -

least of [which we ought have done] to have gain- whole world. O thou Ph- of Souls, our heads are evil devices, our hearts c- desires, our lives are over- with the loathsome sores of transgressions, [And there is no health in us power to help or save our selves out of this n-

'Tis true we have wilfully brought our selves this estate, [But thou, O Lord,] who seeest c- straits, [have mercy upon us,] let thy bowels ye- on so wretched a spectacle, and forgive that guilt that doth amaze us; for though we deser- pity, yet thou knowest we are [miserable, c-] like to be eternally condemned by thy Justice, i- dost not pardon us; and certain to perish un- Vengeance, whensoever thou beginnest to puni- But for thy pity and compassion sake [spar- them, O God, that] (knowing they have de- thy wrath, and fearing before it comes) do o

own accord [confess their faults] in hopes to find mercy and a deliverance, if not from temporal judgments, however from eternal. Although, O Lord our God, when thou hast removed thy judgments, unless thou also take away the security and presumption that our sins leave behind, we shall want thy favour still, which is our only happiness : Therefore we further pray [Beseege thou] that health and peace, wisdom and strength we had before we did offend ; we now relent and are of the number of [them that are penitent,] and resolve, if thou wilt cleanse us from the dregs of these corruptions, never to do so like again. We confess we have no merit to deserve these things, and so no ground in our selves to expect them ; but we hope thou wilt grant us all these requests, O thou God of truth, because they are [according to thy promises] which thou madest us freely, and resolvest so fully to perform. O Lord, thou hast openly [declared] and proclaimed these thy precious intentions [unto mankind,] on purpose that such poor sinners as we (who are not excepted) might not despair, but lay hold on those comfortable Promises which are made [in Christ Jesu our Lord,] who purchased this favour for us, and in whom thou art reconciled to us ; so that we not only hope for a pardon, but mindful of his intercession, we beseech thee further to give us thy Holy Spirit. [And grant, O most merciful Father, for his sake] who is now pleading in heaven for us, [that we] who have earnest desires and unfeigned purposes to amend, though we cannot satisfie for the time past, [may hereafter] give all diligence to [live a godly] and religious life in observance of all our Duties to thee ; that we may love and fear thee, honour and adore thee, believe in thee, and rely upon thee, long for thee, and delight

light in thee above all the world, daily seeking to know thee, praying for thy help, praising thee for thy mercies, and waiting in hopes of the eternal enjoyment of thee; that by serving thee we may be enabled also to lead a [righteous] life in all justice and honesty, love and charity to our Neighbours, hurting no man in thought, word or deed, but ready to relieve and help all to our power, doing ever unto others what we would have done to our selves. And lastly, grant that by thy Divine aid, we may live temperate, a chaste [and a sober life,] mortifying our lusts, moderating our desires, and restraining our appetites, so that we may avoid all carnal delights that would cloud our reason, engross our thoughts, pollute our bodies and souls, or unfit us for thy service: which if thou shalt please to do for us, thy Mercy in forgiving our grievous sins, thy Pity in delivering us from apparent ruin, and thy Grace in strengthening us to live a reformed life, will not only be our advantage, but turn [to the glory of thy holy name,] which shall be praised by us and all the world for these incomparable testimonies of thy unspeakable loving-kindness to us poor sinners both now and evermore. And in token of our earnest desire of all this, we unfeignedly sign it by heartily saying [Amen,] Lord grant it may be so.

SECTION IV.

Of the Absolution.

§. I. Of Absolution in general.

SIN doth abridge the Soul of its free Converse with God, binding it down by its terrors, and holding the wicked fast in its chains unto the Judgment of the great day, wherefore it is compared to a Bond^a, and sinners are said to be holden in its Cords, Prov. x. 22. but since Christ came to loose these Bonds, Isai. lxvi. 1. they are now prisoners of hope, Zach. ix. 12 because Jesus hath the keys of Death and Hell, and he can loose whom he pleaseth, by forgiving, that is, absolving and unloosing those Bonds. But because he is now invisible and employed in heaven to intercede for us, he has his deputy

^a Acts viii. 23. Græc. Quidamque desinas.

so much abused by the Papal Church : So that it perhaps help the Devotion of many, if we disc the true meaning of Absolution, and the mistake our Adversaries on both sides ; as well those make it nothing, as those who urge it instar omni those who would rob us of it, as those who w ensnare us by it. (1.) The true Judgment of Church of England concerning Absolution, may be gathered from the Liturgy, in which are t Forms of Absolving set down : The first declara here, which is a solemn promulgation of Pardon a commissioned person, repeated every day when whole Congregation confess their sins, wherein t are assured of forgiveness, if they repent and belie and this is fitted for a mixt Company of good : bad men, where many Hypocrites feign Repentance but this Absolution gives no encouragement to si only it assures all that there is a Pardon, and sh on what terms it may be had ; so that to those w truly do repent it is present Remission, to those t do not it is a Monitor that they may repent ; it co forts the godly, and allows not the wicked to presu no nor yet to despair : And this being pronounced all the people, every one is to take his portion. T second Form is petitionary in the Communion-Servi where the Minister lays down the Promise, and that ground, by virtue of his own Office, begs God to make that Promise good, and this is m than the Prayer of another person ; because the Mi ster, who is sent to assure men of Pardon, upon th Faith and Repentance, when he sees such lively sig of both (as most shew at the Lords Table,) may w authority and confidence, request Almighty God forgive them who in all likelihood are come up his own terms : As a Captain when a besieged Tow r.IV. The Absolution.

III

yielded upon the Articles sent by the General, confidently require him to seal them. So that Satron came to S. Basil, and desired from him remission of her sins, and when he answered, God would forgive, she answered, I know that, and yet I desire the Prayers of you his Officer may be added to him for me. And we read in Gods Word a petitionary Absolution, Acts viii.24. James v. which is something more than the former, because at the Holy Sacrament, our sight of sin is clearer, conscience quicker, and our fear greater; so that then we need more comfort than to be told barely there is remission, and are fit to receive more, because there are now more signs of Repentance. The third is justified in the Office for the Sick, wherein the Priest declares there is a Pardon, and prayed for the person, doth by Gods Authority, and as his Substitutes, declare him [whom he sees truly penitent] loosed from the guilt of his sins by Christs blood.

Quantum in se est sacramentum reconciliat-ionis homini impendit.

But this so high and so-ber Office is not by our Church prescribed to be performed but only to a weak or dying man, nor to rest upon his hearty Confession, and being full of grief and sorrow; and when he shall desire to hear remission from the Priests mouth, before he go to the Tribunal: In such case out of pity to this distressed Soul, and to fortifie him against the agonies of death (upon evidences of his true Repentance) this Absolution may be given: If he be deceived*, the man is deceived; if he be not deceived, the better by having the benefit of his Pardon antedated in need. Now by all this it appears

 Deus non semper sequitur judicium Ecclesie, quæ per surriptionem & ignorantiam interdum judicat. Pet. Lom. Sent. l.4.*

appears, that our Church neither refuses to give Absolution, after the solemnest manner in some cases some among us have fancied, nor yet applies the Form to every Confession, as the Romanists generally do, who scarce ever use the two first sorts of Absolution. To this brief account we shall add these Considerations. (1.) Those who think the Priest ought not to absolve any persons, are grossly mistaken: For why then did Christ repeat this Commission so often? Are all those Lines wholly insignificant? They must take them so to be, who fancy this but a personal Privilege dying with the Apostles: The Primitive Church did not so understand them, for it is easie to prove that Absolution was used frequently in the three first Centuries, and therefore why may not we use it now since penitent Sinners need comfort now as well as any did then, and why should the Remedy cease while the Disease remains. Christ gave the power of these Keys to all the Apostles and their successors; and S. Pe-

¹ Acts ii. 32.

² 2 Cor. ii. 10.

³ ἢν ὡς ἡμεῖς ἔχομεν.

⁴ 1 John v. 16.

ter absolved the penitent Jews;

S. Paul the Submissive Corinthians; and S. John applies it to all Ministers; and why should any be offended at our exercise of it upon a weighty occasion. If it be objected, Luke v. 18 that God alone can forgive; we grant it, that none but God can absolve in his own right; but 'tis certain, that this power may be communicated to an Angel, Exod. xxiii. 20, 21. or to Men, for the Apostles were men (though holy men) and they had it; God recorded, but unto us (saith S. Paul, 2 Cor. v. 18.) is committed the Administration of it. He the Lord, we the Stewards of these Mysteries; nor does this invade God's Prerogative any more, than it would impair the Kings Privilege (of pardoning condemned Malefactors) if re of his Attendants shall by Royal Appointment deliver the Pardon sealed to him that must have the benefit of it. It is therefore no absurdity to say, *God pardoneth when the Minister absolveth according to the Evangelical conditions of Pardon, and if he be not forgiven upon it by God, it is not by want of right in the Priest, but for want of Penitence in the party; and no doubt in such case if the Minister judgeth to the best of his skill, he doth his Duty: though where Faith and Repentance are wanting, God himself will not forgive; nay where they grow worse, he revokes his own purposes of Mercy, as well as the Ministers sentence: But we may suppose he will the sooner forgive, when his commissioned Servant hath piously and prudently proceeded so far. But (2.) we do lament to behold this sacred Privilege abused by the Roman Church to serve the ends of Pride, Avarice and carnal Policy. And first we disallow that Arrogance of fixing this Power to S. Peter's Chair or those Authorized by it: because we know all the Apostles had as much right to absolve as S. Peter, John xx 22, 23. and from them descended (say we) to Gods Ministers, not only to him that calls himself) Christs Vicar Secondly, we reprobate that accursed Simony which they use, to sell pardons, prostituting the Top-Jewel of the Priestly Mitre for filthy lucre; and not only so but by this means they cherish Vice, fill the World with Atheism and Profaneness, disgrace Religion, and ruin many Souls who rely upon such broken reeds, I mean bought Pardons. Thirdly, we disclaim that Machiavillian Policy of making Absolution an Art

• Dens quoque peccata dimittit per eos quibus dimittendi tribuit potestatem. Ambros. in Luc.

† Crescit enim ibi multitudo peccantium cum redimendi peccati spes datur, & facile itur ad culpas, ubi venalis est ignoscentia gratia. Aristob. l. 7.

to advance the Priests in estimation with the People, and to give them opportunity to pry secrets of Princes ; for under pretence of ex- Spiritual office they aim at Temporal things. these ends they enjoin Auricular Confession, |

² Sacerdos est Judex condemnare vel salvare.
Bellarm. de Poen. l. 3.
c. 2.

Attritio virtute clavium fit contritio. Cor.
Gl. ad Dist. 1. de Poen.
Negatur remissio iis quibus noluerunt sacerdotes remittere. Bellarm. sup.
³ Optat. Milev. in Par-men. l. 5.

⁴ Homines autem in re-missione peccatorum ministerium suum exhibent, non ius alicujus potesta-tis exercent. Ambros. de Spir. San. l. 3. c. 19.

⁵ *Vid. Biel. in 4 Dist.
14. Quæst. 2.*

⁶ — Secundum quod potestas mihi tradita se extendit — & quantum
P. Martin.

Priest in Gods throne ⁷ Audian Hereticks of old ~~nam~~ disciples ⁸ did ; corthe antient Church of nay to their own Opin-Practices ⁹ in former tintherefore we may and clare our abhorrency of uses of Absolution, thougsober, moderate and usener we do perform it, w-vary from the prime int-Christs Commission, and Etice of Antiquity ; Al-was instituted by Jesus, have been corrupted by rwill cast away the Cor-not the Ordinance it self debeo & possum. In vet. for §. II. The Analysis or Division of the Absolution.

The Absolution contains three things.	1. The Com- mission, in which is shewed,	1. From whom it comes, { That God who is	1. Able, { Almighty God, 2. Wil- { the father of our Lord ling, { Jesus Christ,	{ who desired not the death of a sinner, but rather that he should turn from his wicked- ness and live :
		2. On what occasion,		{ And hath given power and commandment to his Ministers,
		3. To whom, Ministers,		{ to declare and pro- nounce to his people being penitent, the Absolution and Re- mission of their sins.
	2. The Exe- cution of it, by declaring	4. For whom, his People,		{ He, viz. Almighty God.
		5. About what,		{ pardoneth
		1. Who giveth,		{ and
		2. What is given, viz. Deliverance	{ from the Guilt and Punishment,	{ absolveth
		3. To whom, viz.	1. How many,	{ all them
			2. How qual- ified,	{ 1.] that truly repent and 2.] unfeignedly believe his holy Gospel.
		1. For what we must pray,		{ Therefore let us be- seech him to grant us
		2. Why we must pray, for these, viz. that we may have	1. Present acceptance,	{ 1.] true Repentance,
			2. Future assistance,	{ 2.] and his holy Spirit,
			3. Endless happiness,	{ that those things may please him which we do at this present, and that the rest of our lives hereafter may be pure and holy. so that at the last we may come to his eternal joy, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.
		3. How we must pray for them,

A Practical Discourse on the Absolution.

§.III. Almighty God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,] There is nothing in the world more desirable than the peace of a good Conscience, especially to those who have felt the smart of a Conscience disquieted by sin. The pardon of sin, which removes those terrors, is most welcome news to such, and the messengers most acceptable, Rom. x. 15. but he that hath been truly humbled, will make a stop

* Luke i. 34.

Gr. ἢ ἔγωγε ῥέω, non dubitantis sed admiran-tis. Grot.

(either out of doubting or admiration*) when a Nathan is sent from God to tell him of a pardon, 2 Sam. xii. 13. he wishes it might be according to that word; only the greatness of his desires awaken some little Jealousies, lest the message be too good to be true, and therefore such an one may ask us by what Authority we do this (Math. xxi. 23.) we answer we are but deputed Servants (Heb. v. 4.) in all we do, much more in this transcendent part of our Office, 2 Cor. v. 8.

We shew them our Commission from Almighty God, whose power none can question, it being a part of his name, Exod. xxxiv. 7. to be the pardoner of iniquity, transgression and sin, viz. of all sorts in thought, word and deed. His Laws indeed forbid sin, and his word decrees punishment for it, but this doth not tie his hands, nor take away his privilege¹ to forgive, by which indeed he shews himself Almigh-ty² [Ἀυτοκράτωρ] supreme Lord

¹ Deus cum legem pone-ret, non ademit sibi o-mnem potestatem: sed habet ignoscendi licentiam. Lactant.

² Imperator licet sententiam revocare renunciare absolvere, & ipsi ignoscere, quia non est subiectus legibus quæ habet potestatem leges ferre. August.

of all the world, above us and his own Laws, so that he can dispense with them : He that bound can loose without appeal or control, Revel. iii. 7. We come from him who is the offended Party, and the Judge, who if he please to forgive, can do it so fully, that neither Men nor Devils can call you to a further account, Rom. viii. 33. Now if this term of Almighty prove dreadful as representing an Almighty Justice who remits not without blood, Heb. ix. 22. so that the poor Soul ask (with Isaac, Gen. xxii. 7, 8.) Where is the Lamb ? I answer, God hath provided ; and in the next words, Behold the Lamb of God, Jesus Christ ; for this Almighty God is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, and in him the Father of mercies and God of all comforts, 1 Cor. i. 3. For being satisfied with that all-sufficient Sacrifice, God now can be just and yet forgive us, 1 John i. 9. He that sends us, can pardon by his Supremacy easily, may do it by his Covenant in Christ Jesus justly, will do it through his love in him certainly. And now methinks the pious man should be transported with ecstasies of Reverence and Love ; Reverence to this mighty God, Love to this merciful Father. Behold that glorious God whose anger thou hast provoked, and whose Commissions for thy final ruin were issuing out to be executed by the destroying Angel ; he is now the father of Jesus, and for his sake, and at his intreaty hath sealed thy Pardon, and cancelled that Warrant signed for thy Execution, Ezek. xviii. 4. and sent thee a full and free Absolution by the hands of a Messenger of Peace ; what posture is lowly enough to receive it ? What Love great enough to return for it ? O blessed change ! Now thou seest what Jesus hath done for thee ; look not so much at the Hand that brings it, as the Power that sent it, and the Merits that purchased it : So shall thy Faith be firm, thy Comfort sweet, and thy Peace durable: so that nothing but wilful renewed affronts against him that sent it, can alter thy Pardon, abate thy Joy, or disturb thy happy Peace.

§ IV. Ubi non desiteth not the death of a sinner. These are the very words of God himself, Ezek. xviii. v. 23. and for better confirmation they are again repeated, Chep. xxxiii. 11. and are strengthened by an Oath, which he is pleased to take by his Life, that is,

* Nam. xxiii. 19.

*וְיָדָהּ יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ וְיָדָהּ יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ
וְיָדָהּ יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ
וְיָדָהּ יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ.*
Philo.

* *Deus loquitur nobis cum lingua filiorum ho-
minum. R.R.*

himself, Heb. vi. 13. Not that he needs such bonds * to keep him to his Promise, but for the confirmation of our Faith, and as a condescension to our Infirmary *. Indeed all Gods-words are most true, but not many have an Oath annexed as this hath, which he

(that will not have us swear but upon weighty occasions) would not have added, but because the belief of this is the foundation of all Religion, since no man can begin to seek to God, till he believe that he delights in Mercy, Heb. ii. 6. and is willing to receive those that turn to him. Wherefore let us not doubt b O beatus nos quare causa Deus jurat? O miserum est et deo jurare videtur. Tert. de Pcenit.

c *LXX. Mō Seaiōm
Seaiōm. Vatah Nān desiteth not to die?*

so great and necessary a truth confirmed with his Oath *, who assures us he wills not the death of a sinner *: He doth not will nor desire it, as we do those things which we have pleasure in, but is even forced to it against his inclination. Which gracious nature of God is here set before the sinners eyes, to discover that probability there is for his granting our such a petition, because he that desirith not the death of such, is very likely to offer such a Pardon: It is i deed only said he wills not their death, but this Phrase means, he desires the life, even the everlasting life of all Penitents ^d: So that if the hopes of Remission will support them, and give them encouragement to seek for happiness, they shall find enough in him.

^d Negatio mali in SS. notat accumulationem boni. Joh.iii.18. Joh. xi.26. vide 1 Tim.ii.4. 1 Thess.v.9.

To do good is the nature of God, he doth this willingly and readily, without the consideration of Merit or expectation of Reward, but Punishments are extorted from him ^e by mens wickedness; and when he inflicts them, he expostulates with himself like an indulgent Father about to correct a disobedient Child ^f: So that it is no incredible thing, that he should send a Pardon.

^e Lam. iii.33. Non afflixit ex corde. Vatab. Non est proprium Dei affligere & castigare homines, sed alienum. Annot. ejusdem.
^f Hosea xi.8. Ezek. xxxiii.11.

It is the device of Satan to picture the Almighty so dreadful, that he may be a terror to his Supplicants, to make men fear, and hate, and flee from him, rather than love him with delight. But God is Love, and especially kind to men ^g, who have no reason to dishonour him by dismal apprehensions of him. Remember I beseech you, the Price paid for you, the Covenant made with you, the Promises given to you: Call to mind how justly, frequently and easily he might have cut you off, if he had not designed to be reconciled; and think of the earnestness of his Invitations, continuance of his Patience, the arts of his Providence, and all other means used to preserve you; and then blush at your selves for having ever had hard thoughts of God, or doubting he would not absolve you: Whoever hath so conceived of God is as bad as an Atheist;

^g Οὐδὲς Θεὸς ἄσπαστος. Plato. 1 John iv.8.

for one takes away Gods Being, and the other his Goodness, as if like the Scythian Deities^b, he rejoiced in human Sacrifices; yea we our selves had rather be reported to be dead, than traduced living; but though this unbelief do attempt to dishonour God, the mischief lights

^b Melius esset nullos credere Deos, quàm esse putare, sed sanguine casorum hominum letatos existimare. Plutar. de Superst. Scyth. & Gall.

upon itself; for God is glorious still in Mercy, and he that does not believe it, is void of Love and Hope, ⁱ Et faciunt animos humiles formidine divùm, Depressosq; premunt ad terram. Lucret.

weak in Faith, full of Fears, and dismal Expectationsⁱ; and when he that is persuaded of Gods Mercy, can rejoice in hearing this Absolution; the other quarrels with the Messenger or suspects the Master, and tortures himself with endless scruples.

§. V. But rather that he should turn from his wickedness and libe,] We must be cautious while we endeavour to prevent Despair, that we encourage not Presumption; and lest any should think, when they hear of Gods kindness to sinners, that he will allow them their sins, Rom. vi. 1. this is added to shew that he so desires our Happiness as the End, that he desires our Holiness as the Way thither: He would have us live, viz. in eternal Glory, but his desires cannot be accomplished, if we continue in our wickedness, because then God is obliged in Justice to destroy us; therefore he labours to turn us from those evil ways which end in death, and to bring us into the safe paths of holiness, which are the beginning of heaven upon earth; for the felicity of heaven is but an addition to, and the perfection of holiness. In vain then does any trust to this Mercy of God who lives wickedly still: For what Father would spare his obstinate Child.

IV. The Absolution.

121

or what Prince pardon his rebellious Subject, on condition they will not renew the same. It is possible indeed to obtain a Pardon from when the offenders mean not to reform; Cæsar was pardoned by Brutus a reconciled enemy, whom he had pardoned for his Son; Cicero was beheaded by Popilius whom he had saved from publick Justice. But the all-wise God knows your purposes, and can tell what you will do hereafter; so that you may deceive your selves by hoping for forgiveness while you turn not from your wickedness; but you cannot deceive him. If he really grant it, he will not make his mercy the support of your iniquity; he would undo sinners, if he would too easily forgive; such a Pardon before true Repentance makes sin cheap, and encourages men to do wickedly. Therefore before he sends his Ambassador to proclaim his gracious intention of saving you, lest any should grow desperate with Cain, Gen. iv. 13. and as a hardened Traitor, resolve to die in their Rebellion, but these Ministers of God are first to turn themselves from their iniquities, and if they are in that, they have a Pardon ready sealed, and are made partakers of life everlasting. That God who is unwillingly will freely forgive, it is most likely he had rather give you life, and will rejoice to accept it, and if you miss it, it is because you prefer sin and die, not because he had rather you should perish.

Ἡ δὲ Τάχυν διαπραγμαται, ἢ πρὸς καλὴν ἡγή-σιν τοῖς διαπραγματοῦ-μενοις, κατὰ φύσιν, ὡς ἐν ἡμέτῃ τοῦ καλῶς, ὁ δὲ πρὸς τὴν φυλακὴν ὁμοῦ πρὸς τὴν αὐτῇ, ἐν αὐτῇ ἔστιν. Orig.
ἐν ἀρχ. l. 3.

And hath given Power and Commandment to Ministers,] Whoever hath a just Right and absolute authority, may either exercise it in person, or depute

✓

depute others by communicating to them their power to act subordinately, and then these Substitutes have a Ministerial Right, so far as their Commission extends. A Temporal Prince can do thus, and choose which of his Subjects he pleaseth, to act in his Name and by his Authority. Much more may the God of Heaven do so, and we are taught whom he did choose Matt. xxviii. ult. viz. The Apostles and their Successors, who are his Ambassadors, 2 Cor. v. 20. his Ministers and Stewards of Divine Mysteries, 1 Cor. iv.

¹ Heb. xiii. 17. Græc. ὑποτάσσουσιν. ¹ Thess. v. 12. Gr. οὐκ ἀποτάσσουσιν. ² Lev. x. 13. עֲבָדֵי פְּרִיָּתִי דֵּי פְּרִיָּתִי פְּרִיָּתִי דֵּי פְּרִיָּתִי. Prophetae Dei. Fagus in locum.

³ Jud. ii. 1. Ch. Par. Ascendit Propheta in locutione à coram Domino.

• Πρεσβυτέρους καὶ ἀγγέλους τὰς τῶν θεῶν ἐκκλησίαις καὶ τοῖς ἀνθρώποις ἀγγεῖον καὶ τῶν βασιλέων. Philo de Plant. Noc.

Δαίμονες — Divinarum sunt patesfactores — Traducunt divina ad nos & nostra vicissim ad divina perducunt. Jamblich. de Myster.

Supreme Power of the sender, in disallowing the Subordinate Power of those that are sent. A condemned man may be told of a Pardon intended to him, but he will then believe and humbly rejoice in it, when his Princes Herald approacheth with it in his hands.

may the Presidents of Souls¹, and the familiar Friends of God², the Scripture calls them Angels³, because they have the same employment which the Ancients ascribed to Angels⁴, to convey messages between God and men, to present their Prayers unto him, and bring back the news of his Love, and especially to bring this Pardon to the Penitent, yea to proclaim it even to the impenitent. Wherefore let those that despise the Priest, or who invade his Office, or allow no difference between a Pardon pronounced by him and an ordinary person, take heed of condemning those whom God so highly honours, and beware they intrench not upon the

And should not we shew as much reverence and joy upon the news of a greater Absolution; as that learned Professor did^p, who though in some things he dissented, ^p Dr. Reynolds.

yet in this of Absolution was so clear, that he declared it on his Death-bed, and kist the hands of his Mother-Professor^q who at his earnest Request had absolved him.

^q Dr. Holland.

But besides their Power, as the Ambassadors of Christ, they have a special Charge and Command to restore them that fall, Galat. vi. 1. to comfort the feeble-minded, 1 Thess. v. 14. and under the Allegory of Shepherds, Ezek. xxxiv. 4, &c. are severely threatened, if by their neglect, the diseased, broken and scattered ones of the flock shall perish; and certainly if sinners grow desperate because they know not of a pardon, it will be heavily charged upon these Shepherds, who do not proclaim this (as we do in our Church every day) to bring such to a hearty Repentance. A Power we have always, but when there is any truly humbled, then we have an express Command to loose them of their bonds.

§. VII. To declare and pronounce to his people being penitent, the Absolution and Remission of their sins,] As the Priests of the Law were to pronounce a Blessing upon the offerers, Numb. vi. 24, &c. So those of the Gospel are to dispense the Blessing of Absolution unto the Penitent. And we declare it in this daily Form according to the power which God hath given us; but upon great need and especial occasion, are ready more solemnly to pronounce it to those that are prepared for it, according to the particular charge we have received; and in both cases we can assure those that truly repent, that the guilt of their sin shall be absolved, and the punishment remitted:

ted: But God himself will not forgive any but those that are penitent, and therefore his Servants cannot whose power in this is limited and regulated by God's Will. Indeed we cannot see the hearts of men, nor infallibly determine of the Sincerity of their repentance; but yet we see external signs of it, Prostration, Confession, and in some, Sighs and Tears. Wherefore

1 Cor. xiii. 7.

Iustus est occulta de manifestis præjudicare, quam manifesta de occultis prædamnare. Tertul. Apol.

Ἐὶ δὲ οὐκ ἔστιν ἀμάρτην τὸ ἀδικῶς ἀπολύσαι, ἢ τὸ ἀδικῶς ἀπολύσαι ὁσόντιον. Antiphon.

2 Credulitas error est: magis quam culpa, & quidem in optimi cuiusque mentem facillime irrepit. Cicero.

Charity obligeth us to judge favourably in dubious cases, & it is better to commit an error on the right hand of Mercy, than a horrid crime by Cruelty; & good men, especially Ministers out of tenderness should hope the best. The Rabbins say in a cause of Bloud, if one have a casting voice, he must ever be on the merciful side, and give his suffrage for sparing; and the same reason holds here, especially in a cause in a mixt Congregation many are truly penitent; and some of them much distressed, and these must not starve for fear others should be so, lest we destroy the righteous with the wicked. Wherefore we hold out a daily Pardon, but we sufficiently exclude the ungodly, because we declare it only belongs to the Penitent. Yet though the Minister is to judge charitably, the People are to examine impartially, because though the Servant cannot, the Master can distinguish between the penitent and impenitent. And though the Minister shall have reward for his Charity, the obstinate Sinner shall not have the benefit thereof. Let it therefore be your duty to examine your hearts and repent truly, that ye may not only have a Pardon from Man, but from

IV. The Absolution.

125

God also ; for he that truly repents, and then unably to receive this Absolution, shall have ing it to him.

I. ~~The~~ pardoneth and absolveth,] The unjust for flattery and advantage, doth in his own private compacts, diminish and remit his debts, without his consent, Luke xvi. 5, 6.
e Priests are false Stewards to the God of Hea-to in the same manner acquit sinners. But r the Priests of the Roman Church may get fraudulent dealings, sure I am God keeps so Debt-Book, that he will lose nothing, only lulous Debtor shall suffer by his rash belief, is called over to a new reckoning ; but bedelity is the most necessary qualification in a , 1 Cor. iv. 2. we do not pretend to do this own names ; but being to publish a Pardon, in nomine Domini (not we but he pardoneth)
; Gods sole Privilege to forgive sins : The and Pharisees called it Blasphemy for any to to this power, Luke v. 21. and the Fathers of istian Church prove Christ to be God, because ive sin^u, which none can God^r and his Son Jesus also very God, and pur-this mercy of Absolution is own bloud^r ; where-e give to God the things re Gods, and plainly dene is the Author, we the lers only of this favour, the les and Messengers to bring news thereof². The su-
ille largiri qui peccata nostra portavit. Cypr. ² En, fili, e remissa tibi esse peccata; hujus me testem habebis. Vade
Per. in Matth. ix.

^u Ergo qui remittit De-us est, quia nemo remittit nisi Deus. Hilar. in Matth. Can. 8.

^x Ἀμάρτηματα γὰρ ἀφ-είναι μόνῳ τῷ Θεῷ δυνατὸν. Chrysost. in 1 Cor. xv.

^r *Ille solus peccata di-mittit qui pro peccatis mortuus est. Ambr.
Veniam peccatis quæ in ipsum commissa sunt, so-*

ille largiri qui peccata nostra portavit. Cypr. ² En, fili, e remissa tibi esse peccata; hujus me testem habebis. Vade

Per. in Matth. ix.

preme

preme Judge, he from whose Sentence is no pardoneth thee; fear not then the state of Agag Saul had pardoned, but God had not; while Samuel hewed him to pieces in the midst of his hopes that the bitterness of Death was past. doneth that hath no Equal to examin or approve less Superior to disanul his actings: Our Abs

^a Tunc enim vera est absolutio Præsentis, cum æterni arbitrium sequitur Judicis. Gregor. Hom. 26.

therefore is profitable while persons are meet to receive but the stamp of God will it currant in Heaven itself Priests Pardon is not correct till it be ratified there; while are holding out this Absolution, he that know among you are true Believers and really Penitent to such seal their Pardon in Heaven, which will ours to be valid: For it is our great Master that solveth, because what we do is pronounced in his Name, dispensed by his Authority, offered on his conditions, and confirmed by his Approbation.

§.IX. All them that truly repent and unfeignably believe his Holy Gospel,] Repentance and Faith by Christ; Mark i. 15. and his Apostles, Acts 2 made the conditions of all the Gospel-Promises without them no Absolution can be had. Those have these no man can condemn, but without these no man can acquit. It was therefore a great gance in those Ecclesiasticks in St. Jerom's time, imagined they could save or destroy at pleasure^b, and it was great a vanity in any to believe a Servant acting contrary to his Masters known Will. When

^b — ut vel damnent innocentem vel solvere se noxios arbitrantur. Hierom. Com. in Matth. l. 3. Ne Angelus nec Archangelus potest, nec Dominus ipse, si peccaverimus nisi per eius deferentiam non relaxat. Ambr. Epist. 28. ad Theodol.

ny by Hypocrisie shall think to surprise an Absolu-; or if he that dispenseth it, act by Prejudice or ruption, it will be insignificant, because it is he t ratifie the Pardon who can see whether these fications are in him that receives it or no, and ugh we hold out this Act of Grace to all, yet our ster pardons none but such as do repent truly and eve unfeignedly; and how many soever do so, ugh they have been the worst of sinners, they shall ry one be forgiven. Let us then take care to come With an bumble, lowly, penitent and obedient heart, rowing and being ashamed, fearing exceedingly, essing humbly, and resolving heartily against all ; let us beware that a hard Heart, a customary cession and hypocritical Pretences do not ruin our pes and blast our Desires; for he only pardoneth : real Penitent. 2. Let us bring with us an un- guessed Faith in his Gospel, trusting in the assurances his Promises, persuading our selves of the necessity d excellence of his Laws, and confirming our Souls the expectations of his Rewards; and this Faith feigned will (1 Tim. i. 5.) open the door of Mercy: t for that bold challenge which some make to the omises and the Benefits of the Gospel, while they e void of Hatred to Sin, or Love to God; it is onfeigned to stifle the accusations of Conscience, to rd off the threats of the Law, and to give the in liberty to sin. God will never accept such a mission, who have no other ground for their con-ence, but only because they had persuaded them-ves of a falshood. Remember you come to him that rebeth the heart for a Pardon, and strive that your repentance may be true, your Faith cordial and sound, d learn by this order first to repent of your former il ways, before you entertain too particular confidences

dences of Gods Love and your Interest in Jesus when you have truly repented, the more firmly believe, the greater will be Gods Glory, the more your Comfort, and the sooner will your Absolution be confirmed. Though your Iniquities are heinous and innumerable, if upon this sight of them, you condemn your self, with real purposes of amendment and notwithstanding your unworthiness, do trust in the Merits of Jesus, and believe all the gracious promises of the Gospel; I doubt not to assure, this Repentance and Faith, shall pass the Test of himself, and your desires shall be satisfied in Mercy.

§.X. Wherefore let us beseech him to grant true Repentance and his holy Spirit,] The Duty of a Minister chiefly consists in Instruction and Exhortation, the first to convince the Understanding, the second to engage the Affections; both which parts of his Office the Priest doth here exercise: hitherto he hath testified there is Remission to be obtained, and now he exhorts to seek for it. In this paragraph we are directed how to obtain, in the following we are encouraged by the benefits to be thereby. Now this present Exhortation is a conclusion inferred from all the former parts of this Absolution, which in this word [Wherefore] are urged so many Motives to quicken our addresses, viz. 1. S. God who is full of Power and Mercy would not death of us sinners, but desires we may live; then we may cheartfully come to him for help, who will be as well pleased with the opportunity of giving us with the mercy of receiving. 2. He hath commissioned Ministers to be the Heralds of his willingness to forgive, wherefore let us in answer to this Acts ii. 40. Gr. ὁπρὶν ἔσται καὶ περισσέμνη.

clamation, go in and submit to him, who be the offended party, first sent to us to iled. 3. He hath assured us he will absolve hout true Repentance; wherefore let us beg of requires this condition to give what he re-

Upon all these consideet us beseech, &c. If we ke not our applications,

be a despising his Love, his Message, and sending back his Servants

O let us earnestly pray for true penitence, we urged by his gracious nature, engaged by his offer of a treaty, urged by necessity, as be-like to be forgiven without it. Further, we these favours of him, from whom comes and perfect gift, Jam. i. 17. and if we con-it we ask, viz. Repentance and the Holy Spiritual easily discern they must not be sought any where. Repentance is a change of the notions of the choices of the will, the actings of the and passions, induing us with new joys and hopes and fears, desires and averfations: So a kind of new Creation*, one that brought life out

, and light out of darkness, to bring us from the death of sin and darknefs to the life and light ness and piety†. We can not by our own weight, but not rise out of this narrow pit without help, sink lower, for our hearts are as backward as forward to sin, and by frequent Commislove Sin more, and are more loth to part with yesterday we mistook by accident, to day to be again in such circumstances, to mor-

*Domine, da quod jubis, & jube quod vis.
D. Augustin.*

Eph. iv. 24. 'Ενδύουσαι τὸ καρδὸν ἀνδραπν.

Nulla sine Deo mens bona. Senec.

8 — Viresq; acquirit cundo.

now we shall run into them^s, so that we must seek Repentance from God, and his Holy Spirit also, which is therefore called Hu, because it only proceeds from him. Now these two being both so necessary for us, and of so incomparable advantage to us, let us humbly on our knees beseech God to grant them to us; which word [grat Acts ii. 18.] denotes a free act of Grace from a Prince to his Subject, though few offending Subjects can have a Pardon granted upon their Repentance; yet God deals so with us, and hath not only promised to forgive us when we do repent, John vi. 37. but to give us grace that we may repent, Acts v. v. 31. and if we have this gracious assistance, no doubt we shall repent truly, and not fall into Ahab's Hypocrisie, Israel's Treachery, Psal. lxxviii. 34. nor Judas his despair. O let us pray for his Holy Spirit of Grace which will open our eyes to see our sins, soften our hearts to mourn for them, and strengthen our purposes to amend them; and this is true Repentance, yea this is an unfeigned Faith also (which is here understood though not expressed;) for Faith and true Repentance are so inseparably joyned, that in Scripture Repentance is put for both^a; because he that is truly humbled and really purposed to amend, doth ever trust in Gods mercy; or else Faith is left out here because when we pray for his Holy Spirit, it is, that it may produce in us all Graces, especially Faith which is that gracious fruit of the Spirit of Adoption. Gal. iv. 16. by which we call God Father, and as such rely on him. 'Tis certain if we can prevail with God by his Holy Spirit, it will bring Faith and all Graces with it, and will assist us to do good: When Repentance hath taken us off from our evil courses, this will

^a Matth. iv. 17. compared with Mark i. 15.

at those hills which Repentance began to exclude ; let observe Repentance goes first, for we must not expect this holy Dove will abide in impure places ;, since even the clean Spirit expects his House to be swept and garnished, Matth.

Pietas inducit Spiritum Sanctum. RR.
— Ad candida neta columba.

44. We may then hope to see our Prayers for Gods Holy Spirit heard, when Repentance hath prepared his lodgings in our hearts.

45. What those things may please him which we are to present,] Having thus taught you who to pray to, and what to pray for, it remains that we show the great advantages of having these Prayers heard, that so you may not put up so weighty Requests without such hearty Desires and zealous Affections as are suitable to them. For this one Petition granted will procure you, (1.) Present Acceptance, (2.) Future Assistance, (3.) Endless Happiness; but if you pray not so devoutly and earnestly as to obtain Repentance and the Holy Spirit; your Absolution must be cancelled, your Services rejected, your Souls continued polluted here, and be condemned to endless misery hereafter : So that we hope your own interest will quicken you most passionately to beg for them : to which purpose consider them severally. 1. If your Confession, Prayers and Endeavours be such as can revall with God to give you a true Repentance, and his Holy Spirit, then all the Duties now performed shall be acceptable, particularly and in the first place, that which we Ministers are doing, viz. pronouncing the Absolution ; this shall be confirmed by God, and he will assent to it, so that your Pardon shall be inrolled in heaven, and then all other Duties that we and you do, shall be pleasing to God and beneficial to you ; your mutual and common Prayers shall be answered, our Praises accepted, our Hearing shall be converting and salutarious, our Communicating an infallible Conveyance and irrevocable Seal of Grace and Peace. But without Repentance all our Prayers and Praises

* See of this at large before in Sect. II.

and all we do * shall be rejected as a mocking of God : Without his Holy Spirit also all our Observances are harsh and unpleasing, flat and dull in Gods account ; it is this good Spirit that makes our hearts and tongues agree, this enlightens our minds to see our wants, quickens our memory to remember them, toucheth our hearts with a sense of them, confirms our faith that God can supply us, and enlarges our affections to beg the relief of them. In a word this Spirit of God helps us to ask, inclines him to give, and fits us to receive all we pray for ; so that God is not pleased when we worship him without it Gal. iv. 6. John iv. 24. Rom. viii. 26. and denies nothing

¹ Τὸ ἄγιον πνεῦμα, Luk. xi. 13. is τὸ ἄγαθόν, Matth. vii. 11.

when we have it : Yea, our Saviour accounts ¹ it the same to give us the Holy Spirit, and to give us all good things that spring from it. And now who would not earnestly beg for such a true Repentance, as might invite this Holy Spirit into their hearts, which will be the Seal of their Pardon, and make all they do well-pleasing to God. To please him is the Christians highest aim ; it was David's Prayer, Psal. xix. 14. and the greatest blessing the Priest could wish, Numb. vi. 24, 25, 26. Psal. xx. 3. that Almighty God might accept them. Poor Socrates after many a tedious sleep in a virtuous but afflicted

^m An deus placent que
i nescio, nec autem
i nescio, mihi sedulo hac te ut placerent.

state ^m, could not tell whether he had given content to his Deity or no : But whoever of you have the grace of Repentance and the Holy Spirit, are not in those uncertainties; but have Enoch's testimony, Heb. ii. 5. that you do please God.

§. XII. And that the rest of our life hereafter may be pure and holy,] This is the second Benefit and Motive earnestly to pray for these things; for so you shall not only be welcomed at present with a gracious smile, but all your lives long be reputed as the Friends of God, and by his help shall be preserved pure as a true Repentance hath made you, and holy as those are who are under the guard of the Spirit of Holiness. Pray therefore with all your heart for a true Repentance, or else as soon as your Soul is washed it will return to its impure wallowings, and all your labour is in vain hitherto*; for a feigned Repentance sends this Abalom away for a while, but upon the next interview it will hurry us with more passion into his embraces: Whereas the deep wounds of the true penitent make Sin hateful to him while he lives, and he that gets on a white garment with so much pains, will not easily sully it, but carefully preserves it from all which are part of Gods Image, Ephes. iv. 24. are parcels of the Divine Perfections: Blessed is he that is so far advanced, that God is not like to forsake him, because he hath made him holy, put and a fit Temple for the inhabitation of his Spirit nor is he likely ever to forsake that God, whose Mercy hath saved him, whose Grace doth refine him, whose Ways please him, and whose glorious Bounty (which Faith discovers) doth allure him to press forward to nearer Union and unseparable Connexions: No state under the Sun is to be longed after and wished for like this which a true Repentance and Gods Holy Spirit bring us to.

* 2 Pet. ii. 22. Lavum lavare.

§. XIII. So that at the last we may come to his eternal joy, through Jesus Christ our Lord. A M E N.] There is nothing more desirable than the sweet Peace of a good Conscience, but the End and Perfection thereof, even that Happiness which is infinite and endless, which the Scripture calls an Eternal and Everlasting Joy, Isa. xxxv. 10. Chap. lxi. 7. and Chap. li. 11. which neither Men nor Devils can lessen or interrupt, nor less take from us. If God give us true Repentance it will preserve us from the Sins which forfeit the Joy; and if he add his Holy Spirit, it will safely conduct us into those paths of Righteousness which lead to that bliss, where we can desire no more, because we have all that is desirable. There are no Cares to disturb, no Fears to allay, nor Sorrow to abate those Ravishments of Delight for ever there is Joy which far surpasseth the half-sad and mixed Pleasures of this World, being nothing else but pure Delight, which pleaseth by its own Excellence, and by having no Fears nor possibility of Defaillance in degree or continuance : We tast something of it in the pleasing calm of a strong Faith and a quiet Conscience and chearful expectations of Gods Love ; but this is but the Landscape of our heavenly Canaan which Jesus hath purchased for us, and God the Father will grant unto us, and the most Holy Spirit will be our Guide thither. The whole glorious Trinity will put us into possession thereof, and then rejoyce over us to all Eternity. The Father who forgave us, the Son who died for us, and the Blessed Spirit who wrought effectually in us, will communicate this their joy with us and to us for ever. And lastly, to shew that you thankfully follow these Directions of the Ministers, and are in your own heart and thoughts most devoutly petitioned God for a true Repentance and his Holy Spirit (by means whereof all these incomparable Benefits may redound to you ;) in testimony, I say, hereof, you sum up all in a Petitionary Amen, desiring it may be so, and assenting also to the truth of all this : It is most true, and therefore so be it unto you. Amen.

Defaileth

o Psal. li. 14.

LXX. Πατέρα ἡμῶν.

The Paraphrase of the Absolution.

Be it known unto every one of you that hath confessed his sins with an humble, lowly, penitent and obedient heart, that [Almighty God,] supreme King of Heaven and Earth, whose Royal Prerogative it is, fully to acquit or finally to condemn, he being [the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,] is now by his Merits, of an angry Judge become a tender Father, and hath solemnly sworn he is one

[who desireth not] neither taketh pleasure in [the death] or damnation [of a sinner,] though never so justly deserving it, [but rather] chuseth to have opportunity to shew mercy, and therefore he useth all possible means [that he] who hath sinned [may turn from his wickedness] which would bring him into condemnation, that by leaving these paths of death he may be forgiven [and live] in Holiness and Comfort here, and in everlasting Joy hereafter. [And] to confirm this and keep penitent sinners from despair, he [hath given Power] by virtue of his Supreme Authority [and Commandment] for the Exercise of his power on special occasions [to his Ministers,] which are lawfully chosen to be his Ambassadors, ordering them [to declare] at all times his willingness to pardon, [and] to [pronounce] Absolution more particularly [to his people being] grieved and truly [penitent] for all their offences (as you now from your hearts seem to be :) Know ye therefore that we are authorized in Gods name to bring to such this Message of [the Absolution] from the guilt, [and Remission] of the Punishment [of these sins:] and by virtue of the Power and in obedience to the Command given to us by God, we do now proclame, that not we, but [he] that can do it by his own right, [pardoneth and absolveth] both from guilt and punishment [all them] that are qualified for a Pardon, by those conditions which are by him required, even them [that truly repent] and grieve for all their evil ways, longing to be delivered from them, and seriously purposing to amend them; these shall never be condemned, if they will trust in his mercy [and unfeignedly believe] the Promises of [his holy Gospel,] particularly accepting this message of his therein manifested. [Wherefore] since God is able and willing to pardon, and hath sent his Ministers to offer a Pardon to the penitent and believing. Let us not lose the benefit of so gracious an offer, let [let us] all, since all are sinners, go together to the Throne of Grace upon this courteous summons, and [beseech him] earnestly [to grant us true repentance,] such as he can work in us, and such as he will accept to our forgiveness; and having thereby cleansed us from by-past sins, let us most heartily beg the help of his Grace [and his Holy Spirit,] to purifie our Hearts, strengthen our Faith, and bless our endeavours of Reformation; which Petitions we must ask fervently, (1.) [That those things may please him,] even our Absolution, our Prayers, and all the other Duties [which we do at this present] perform in his House: [And (2.) that the rest of our lives] which formerly have been so sinful, [hereafter may be pure] from wickedness, sanctified [and holy] to the end: [So that (3.) at the last] when Death puts an end to the tedious sorrows and short contents of this mortal life [we may come to his eternal joy,] which is unconceivable and endless, without mixture

SECTION V.

Of the Lords Prayer.

§. I. WHat hath hitherto been performed by the Church, was rather a Preparation to Prayer than Prayer itself, for the Confession and Absolution answers to the Heathen Washings, and those the Jews used before they approached their Altars: So that we may say the first place is by us assigned to the first and chiefest of all Prayers which should have stood in the front of all, but only that till we had repented of our disobedience, we ought not to call God Father, and till we have his Pardon, we cannot with comfort call him so. He that hath been in Rebellion must have his offence forgiven before he presume to petition for Aid of Grace; so we being predisposed by Confession and Absolution, begin with this Prayer. And sure this deserves to be first, since it was made by Jesus, and inducted by his Divine Spirit, to be a Guide to, and • Luke xi. 1. λέγετε.

Matth vi. 9. ἕως ἐν αὐτοῖς λέγετε. Vid. Lxx. in Numb. vi. 23. ἕως λέγοντες.

• Debet Benedictio ista proferri lingua sancta, cum nomine Dei proprio.
Fagius in loc.

a Part of our daily Devotions to be used as oft as we need our daily Bread, saying these words or praying in this manner, which is all one as when the Jews are commanded to bless after this manner they do keep both words and language in the Pronunciation. This Prayer Christ had delivered in his first Sermon, Matth. vi. but it seems his Disciples did not under then understand it for a Form^c, so that the next year they requested him for such a Form as the Doctors among them were wont to give to their Scholars, to be a badge of their relation to such a Master; and then ~~the~~ ^{the} xi.i. our Lord prescribed this set Form, which for Words and Phrases he took^d out of the Jewish Forms with little variation^e, to shew how far he was from all affectation of Novelty in Devotion: And certainly we may discern in it a lively resemblance of its Author, who was the highest and lowest, the greatest and the least, God and Man:

The Comprehensiveness of it is the admiration of the wisest^f, the Plainness suiting still the meanest capacity; for it is so clear that all may understand it, so short that any may learn it, so full as to take in all our wants, and so exact as to shew us what we should be^g, as well as what we should ask, and is the Epitome^h of the Gospel. Herein we glorifie God in desiring his Honour may be made manifest, and are mindful of our selves in praying for all Graces, Reverence and Fear, Sanctification and Purity, Submission and Obedience active and passive, Faith and Love, Diligence and Zeal, Constancy and Perseverance: And for our Bodies we beg Food and Raiment, Health and Strength, Riches and Friends, a good Name and a long Life, so far as they are good for us. We look back to our Sins past, and humbly crave Remission; we look forward, first to our Duty, engaging

^c See Mr. Mede, Distrib. on Matth.vi.9.

^d Tam longè absuit Dominus Ecclesie ab omni affectatione non necessarie novitatis. Grotius.
^e Vide Capelli not. in Crit. Sacr.

^f Quantum substringitur verbis, tantum diffunditur sensibus. Tert.

^g unusquisq; nostrum sic discat orare, & de orationis lege qualis esse debeat noscere. Cypr. de Orat.

^h Breviarium Evangelii. Tertul. de Orat.

engaging our selves in purposes of holy Charity, and then to our Danger, earnestly intreating his preventing Grace and Pity may preserve us from Sin and Punishment, the Snares of Men and Devils: Finally we look upwards in an humble acknowledgment of his Goodness, his Greatness, and just deservings of all Honour and Glory from us and all the world. In this one Form as we represent all our Wants, so we

Quot simul expunguntur officia? Dei honor in pa-tre, fides testimonium in nomine, oblatio obsequii in voluntate, commemo-ratio spei in regno, peti-tio vite in pane, exomo-logesis debitorum in de-precatione, sollicitudo tentationum in postula-tione tutela. Tertul. de Orat.

exercise all Graces¹, here is our belief of his Goodness, our persuaſion of his Love, our desire after his Holiness, our subjection to his Authority, and hope of his Kingdom, our willingness to suffer, and readiness to do his Will: here we declare our dependence on his Providence, and contentedness with his Dispensations: our Penitence for former sins, and resolutions of Amendment, our sense of our own Frailty, and our trust in his Mercy and Grace, and all this ending with acts of Faith and Love, Joy and Praise, Devotion and Adoration: So that this Divine Form is fitted for all times and all places and all persons. The Ignorant must use it, because he may understand it; the Knowing, that he may understand it better; the Sinner, that he may be holy; the Holy man, lest he become a sinner; the Rich prays thus for the sanctification of his gifts; the Poor for the supply of his wants; in Private it extends to particular needs, in Publick it unites us all into one soul, and makes us equally desirous² of other good with our own, being in-

¹ Non singulis privatam precem mandavit, sed oratione communi & concordâ prece pro omnibus jussit orare. Cyprian. Epist. 8.

fit in a Publick Stile, so that though it be useful every where, yet it is especially fitted for the Assemblies of the Church, where all Antiquity used it as the Salt of all other Offices, and we in imitation of Sal omnium divinorum officiorum. For our Church prescribes

After the Absolution, for repentance; after the Word of God read, and the recital of the Creed, for Assistance in Holiness, and Confirmation in Faith; in the Letany for Deliverance from evil; in the Communion-Service to dispose us for a penitent hearing of the Laws of God; never too often, nor never superfluously (as you shall be afterwards :) For how can we too often join the most perfect Prayers to ours that are so imperfect, since by him both we and our Prayers are alone made acceptable? Those that presented Petitions to the Roman Emperours drew them up by the Direction of some judicious Lawyer: But we have this sacred Form from the Wonderful Counsellor, who came out of the bosom of his Father, and knew his Treasures as well as our Wants; he best could inform us what was fit for us to ask, and what most likely for him to grant; he was to go to Heaven to be our Advocate there, and he hath taught us to use this here, that there may be a Harmony between our Requests and his. What Zeal and height of devout Affections are sufficient to offer up this Prayer, which was drawn up by the great Master of Requests, and orderer of all intercourse between God and Man? How sure is this of acceptance, which is stamped with his Image, signed with his Hand, and sent in his Name?
His Power will make it preva-

Animata suo privi-legio ascendit cælum, commendans Patri quæ Filius docuit. Tertul.

lent,

etiam Filius de alio quam Filio de unit ad Patrem Inquiritur, quod non videtur.

Therefore reverently and heartily, and doubt not his hand.

but, and Gods Love to his Son, most acceptable; for who can please the ears, or melt the heart of a tender Father, more readily than the Voice of his only and beloved Son; who

The Division of the Lords Prayer.

S. 11. The Lords Prayer hath three parts?

51. The Preface or Compellation, expressing,

I. Charity to Men,

2. Faith in God,

3. Fear of God,

Our Father
which art in heaven,

1. The Reverence of his Attributes,

2. The Exercise of his Authority,

3. The Fulfilling of his Will,

Followed by the name :

Why Kingdom came :

Why shall be done in earth, as it is in heaven :

I. Temporal Sup-

2. Remission of sins past,

3. Deliverance for the future from } Sin, Punishment.

Give us this day our daily Bread:

And forgive us our trespasses as we forgive them that trespass against us:

And lead us not into temptation :
But deliver us from evil :

For thine is the kingdom, the power,

and the glory,
for ever and ever.
AMEN.

2. The fix Petitions,
which concern

Or our own Good,
in

3. The Conclusion or Doxology, being an Acknowledgment of God

I. As Supreme,

2. As Omnipotent,

3. As Gracious,

4. As Eternal,

A Practical Discourse on the Lords Prayer.

§.III. Our Father which art in Heaven,] This was the usual Preface to the Jewish Forms of Prayer, who stiled God their Father, which was

• Pater noster qui es in caelis fac nobis gratiam. Sed. Tephil. Lusitan. Deus noster qui in caelo manens es. In Lib. Mus. R. Gal. iv. 6. Servis & ancillis non permissum Abba vel Imma dominis suis dicere. In Gemara.

in Heaven*. But since they owned not God the Son, they could not justly call God Father, and being in bondage to the Law, they were Servants rather than Sons, and such (by their own rule) might not call their Master by the name of Father. So that this Appellation suiteth us better who are by Jesus adopted to be the Sons of God, and by his Spirit (who obtained that Privilege) we are taught to cry Abba, Father, Gal. iv. 6. He that is the eternal Son of God himself, who hath alone right to this name, hath put the words in our mouths: And what fitter words to begin our Prayers than these two which include the principal requisites of Prayer, Faith and Charity. No man can call God his Father but by Faith, and he must be in Charity that can add Our Father, which cannot be said devoutly but by him that is free from wrath to Man, or doubting concerning God, 2 Tim. ii. 8. 'Tis certain God is our Father, for he hath created us after his own Image, and begotten us again by the washing of Regeneration, he feeds and cloaths us, preserves and provides for us: he teacheth us what is right, and correcteth us when we do amiss, and finally he hath done like a Father in providing an eternal Inheritance for us

2 Cor. xii. 14. even such as men make for their Children⁹. He hath ever exprest a Fatherly Love to us, a Care of us, and Tender-ness toward us : And this Jesus obligeth us to acknowledge, Isai. lxiii. 16. that while we call him Father, we may be grateful to him, and have the affections of Children upon us, when we come to him in our needs, trusting in his Mercy, persuaded of his All-sufficiency, rejoicing in Hope, and filled with Love and Joy and comfortable Expectations, because we are going to Our Father. And lest if we were uncharitable to our Brethren, that unlikeness to God should confute our calling him Father, Matth. v. v. 45. Psal. cxlv. 9. who is loving to every man, we must by adding [Our] shew a universal Charity to all the world, not arrogantly confining this Privilege to our selves, and out of Pride or Passion excluding others from it ; but we must comprehend all men within it as our Brethren, Sons of the same Father, making a common Prayer to the common Father of all Mankind ; not looking sordidly to our selves alone, but as members of the same Mystical Body, 1 Cor. xii. 25. having a feeling of each others wants, and desiring the preservation of the whole, rather than our private satisfactions ; we must therefore when we begin this Prayer, lay aside all Malice and Envy, and with loving hearts, joined Hands and united Voices, address our selves as so many dear Brothers and Sisters, to our Father ; so shall we cause the Angels to sing Ecce quàm bonum ! Psal. cxxxi. 1. How pleasant a thing it is ! &c. and no Musick will be more pleasing in the ears of our heavenly Father. But many Children have gone to their earthly Parents in their needs and found no relief, because they had no means to help, and many^a could could no otherwise know the Love of their dear Fathers, than by a Sigh or a Tear, O my poor Child, ~~cannot help thee~~; whereas we need not fear such returns, for our Father reigns in Heaven, the Centre of all Happiness, so that he can do what he pleases Psal. cxv. 3. for Omnipotence and All-sufficiency annexed inseparably to that Royal Throne. And here our Lord Jesus presents us with the Seat of his Glory to mind us to acknowledge his Dominion and Power and to adore his Infiniteness and Immenstity; for whom we pray to hath all things under him, to be ordered by his Will; and all Creatures, even millions of blessed Angels, to execute his Commands. Which should heighten our minds to ask things more excellent than the perishing vanities of this world: The remembrance that he is in heaven should strengthen our Faith in his Power and Mercy; for what shall his Children want on Earth, who have a Father in Heaven that can do all things, and who is so full of Goodness, that he is not moved by all his Glory to despise us; but whatever advantages he hath, his Love makes them all ours? He is in Heaven now, and intends to bring us thither to him; yet while we are upon Earth we must approach with lowly address and all reverence; because we come before him who is in Heaven, and adored by the blessed Angels with low prostrations and veiled faces.

§. IV. Wallowed by the name,] The Glory of God which is the principal end of our Creation, ought to be the first of our desires, and we are doubly obliged to pray for the Honour of his Name, both because he deserves it upon the account of his glorious Perfections, on which ground all men are bound to adore the Name of God; and also because he is Our Father, so he may expect peculiar Honour from us. If we much desire the Honour of our natural Fathers*, that no good Children can endure to hear them reproached, how much more should we long after our heavenly Fathers Glory, and pray that none might abuse his sacred Name, which (if we be his true Sons) will

* Nullum probum interabilius ignominia parentum : Quis non commotus est ? —

— Καὶ δεοῦσθα γὰρ τοῦ ὄντος ἡμῶν, ὅπως μὴ ἐν τῷ ὀνόματι αὐτοῦ καὶ ἡμεῖς ἡμεῖς καὶ. Grot. ex Euripi be unsufferable to us; how can we but desire it may be treated by us and all men at all times with that Reverence and religious respect that befits so great a Majesty? He is separated from this lower world as far as Heaven is above the Earth, and therefore his Name is to be esteemed as no common thing, but as separated and set apart from all other Names; which is the meaning (†) of ballowing of it, the regarding it as a thing truly excellent; it is in itself so holy that it cannot be prophaned by Men nor Devils, so as to lose any part of its essential Purity, even as the Suns illustrious Beams cannot be polluted with the evaporations of a filthy Dunghil. The Blasphemies of Hell itself can do no Prejudice to Gods Name, any more than the barkings of Dogs and howling of Evening Wolves do to the splendor of the Moons shining. And for this cause it were needless to pray that Gods Name might either be or remain holy; but only that since it is holy in itself, it may by us and all men be looked on as infinitely above us, and used with Reverence and an awful Regard. Now this Name of his, is himself and all that is his, it is himself as he can be known* by us, for it signifies his Attributes, and all, that his Name is called upon, all that represents him to us, or relates to him, his Works, his Worship, his Sabbaths, his Viceregents and Officers in Church and State, and all that is given to him or his; and since we cannot behold Gods Essence which is incomprehensible, our Reverence to him will appear by our respect to his Name, which is all we have of him with us here on earth. Then his Name is hallowed by us and all people, when we love his Goodness, trust in his Mercy, believe his Promises, fear his Threatnings, acknowledge his Wisdom, adore his Power, and live answerable to his Attributes; when we praise him for his Works, speak well of all he doth, and worship him with Humility and Faith, true Affections and hearty desires; when we keep his Sabbaths, obey Kings (his Substitutes,) respect Ministers (his Messengers,) love his People, and inviolably preserve all consecrated things; and finally when we demean our selves towards God and all that is his, as may suit so great a Majesty and so gracious a Father. And further we must be careful, since we are called by the name of Christ, that we do not profane that holy Name, 2 Tim. ii. 19. by wicked lives, but strive to shew our Reverence and

† Levit. xx. 24. Deut. xxvi. 18, 19. Sanctificatio est separatio per modum excellentie. R. D. Kimhi in Isai. lvi. 2.

* Rom. i. 19. Gr. Τὸ θεῶν Θεῶν.

• *Sanctificetur Nomen
tuum per opera nostra.*

• Quocunque tempore faci-mus quod bonum & rectum est, sanctificamus nomen ejus magnum.

Drus. (ē libro Musar.)
in Matth. vi.

• Ἀγαλλίζεν λέγον ὁ Θεὸς οἱ ζῶντες ὁρῶντες. Cyril.
Alex.

Admiration of so holy a Name by becoming holy, and by separating from all Sin, as his Name is separated from all Pollution; it becomes us who are honoured with his Name, in whatever we do or speak or think, to be careful that by defiling and abusing our selves) we cast not dishonour on him that hath condescended to such a relation. O let us beware we do nothing wilfully to occasion Religion to be slandered by the Enemies thereof, for otherwise our Lives will be a contradiction to our Prayers.

.V. Thy Kingdom come,] It is the Observation every good man, that although God is, and ever I be a glorious King * what-become of this lower world; the Devils hate him, wicked rebel against him, and the er sort do not fully submit to ; while the great King of

* Psal. x. 16. and

Psal. xxix. 10.

In diluvium Deus sedit, h. e. perditis omnibus creaturis, tamen regnum ejus manet. RR.

gs seems to connive at it, seldom exercising his ver to subdue, or his Justice to punish and destroy Enemies, so that the whole world abounds with iety and Confusion; and then what wonder if Children of God, who know their Fathers Power

Goodness, do earnestly desire he may more visibly n amongst them, for his Glory and their own od, yea for the Benefit of all the world; for his gdom is Regimen Paternum, and consequently our rest † and our Happiness, and refore our Prayer; for when † Illi deputamus quod ab illo expectamus.

Tertul.

heavenly Father doth thus rcise his Authority, then his hful Servants shall be secured from their Enemies, plied in all their needs, and satisfied in all their
 res. Now the Kingdom of d or Heaven ‡ signifies either Kingdom of Grace or that of ‡ Vide supra, Sect. I.

 §. 6.

ry. His Kingdom of Grace we pray may come i double sense, first by an outward Profession, viz.
 t the Gospel may be embraced in all the world, n there where now they are slaves to the Devil l their own Lusts, by those who are Servants to the nce of darkness, Ephes. ii. 2. doing his Work, ob-ving his Laws, and paying him Tribute by Sacris as their liege Lord: We pray that these poor ils may be converted, believe and be baptized, resounding their old Master, and professing themselves Subjects of Jesus and of the great King of all the world. (2.) We pray his Kingdom of Grace may come by a real Subjection where his Sovereignty is owned; because without this an outward Possession is but like the Mockery of the cruel Jews, who saluted him Hail King, and then smote him on the face and so doth every professed Christian that lives worldly. Wherefore we pray, that his Kingdom may be within us as well as among us, Luke xvii. 21. and whereas now his Laws are broken, his Messengers despised, his People abused, and his Enemies cherished; that by the power of his Grace in all our hearts, our unruly Passions may be tamed, our rebellious Limbs mortified, and our naughty Desires extinguished; we all own his Authority, fear his Displeasure, and obey his Edicts as we ought to do: And if any be obstinate as still to refuse him for their King, Leviticus

xix. 14. we pray that our Lord Jesus would exert his Royal Power in punishing all such, that others may see and fear, Psal. lvi. ult. Every good man desires for himself that this righteous Prince, Psal. xlv. may subdue every opposing thought in his heart, 2 Cor.
x. 5. and may have the absolute Command over all the members of his Body, and faculties of his Soul; and then he hopes his Corruptions will be restrained, his Graces quickned, and all his inward Man in more better order; he knows if Christ rule in his heart, shall have more Freedom, Comfort and Peace, than ever he had before. O it were happy for the Christian World and every truly Christian Soul, if our Father's Kingdom were set up in all our Hearts, since we all own it with our Mouths, Lord, let thy Kingdom of Grace now come. Secondly, the Children of God pray for his Kingdom of Glory, viz. for that visible and glorious manifestation of the Kingdom of Jesus, when he shall come to dispense a final Pardon to his faithful Servants, to admit them to be sharers in his Joy and partners in his Kingdom, and to pronounce the fearful doom upon his obstinate and miserable Enemies, to make them suffer the just deserts of their wilful opposition and desperate Rebellion, in inexpressible and eternal Torments. In which acts the glory of his Kingdom, the mightiness of his Power, the truth of his Word, the infiniteness of his Love to his own, and the exactness of his Justice to his enemies, shall be so clearly demonstrated to all the world, that his faithful ones shall be rapt with Joy and Wonder, and glorify him for it to all eternity. Here alas, they serve, there they shall reign, here they are despised and afflicted, vexed with their own corruptions, grieved for the sins of others, poor and disconsolate, full of cares and fears, which when Christs Kingdom comes, shall not only be done away, but exchanged for endless Glory and boundless Felicity. And who can blame them who are weary with Slavery * to wish for Liberty, and long for that happy day which is the end of all their evils, and the beginning of that incomparable Joy that never shall have end. Let ungodly persons fear and tremble at this dreadful day to them; let their Tongue falter when they wish for it, and their own confusion. The holy ones of God can join with their brethren under the Altar in saying, Come Lord Jesus, come quickly; the sooner he comes, the sooner shall their Souls be delivered and their desires satisfied in seeing and enjoying their Lord and dear Redeemer. 'Tis true, when a good man considers how dreadful

^a Optamus maturius regnare, non diutius servire. Tert. de Orat. Regnum Dei — Votum Christianorum, confusio nationum, exultatio Angelorum. Idem, ibid.

Vengeance will then seize on sinners, out of pity to them that pity not themselves: They pray that these desperate sinners may first submit to his Kingdom of Grace, they are well pleased with the deferring of that day ^b, and can pray with the Primitive Christians for the putting that time further off, though it be to their own loss, because so God will be more glorified, Heavens Quire fuller, and the Musick sweeter, the more are brought home; therefore they pray, that though the Kingdom of Glory be their Happiness, yet the Kingdom of Grace may first come into the hearts of all that will receive it.

^b 2 Pet. iii. 9. *Pro morā
sui. Tert. ibid.*

§. VI. Thy Will be done in earth as it is in heaven. As Gods Kingdom doth always abide, so his Will is ever done; and so it may seem superfluous to request it may be done, because it is the Rule by which all Creatures act, and they all do bring about his Will, Psal. cxv. 3. Rom. ix. 19. when they intend it, and when they do not, and God himself always doth his own Will ^c, which is the limit of of his infinite Power, for he can do and doth what he will, and thus we had sufficiently asked it before in Thy Kingdom come, because this is the pro-

^c Deo non posse nolle est, & posse velle. Tertul. in Prax.

^d Ποιεῖν ἃ βέλεῖ ἀν-θρώπων. Herodot.

perty ^d of a King, to do what he pleases. But as Gods Kingdom is scarce visible upon earth, so neither is the accomplishment of his Will, for those that renounce his Authority become Lords, Psal. xii. 4. to themselves, and do their own will, even where it displeaseth God, and though his Will be at last done upon them in their final ruin; yet this is not so properly his Will, not (Voluntas Beneplaciti) his Pleasure; as the Malefactor doth not his Princes Will, when

the

he suffers death by his Laws for a capital Crime, because he that made that Punishment did appoint it to terrifie from the Crime, and it was not his intention any should suffer by it : So it is the Will of God that all men should live holily here, 1 Thess. iv.3. and happily hereafter * ; yet if any will be wicked, it is also his Will they shall suffer for it, but then his Will is not so properly done on them that suffer, but only upon supposition they were obsti-

* 1 Tim. ii.4.

ut salvi simus in caelis & in terris, quia summa est voluntatis ejus, salus eorum quos adoptavit. Tertul. ut supr.

nate sinners, which he would not have had them to be : Wherefore we pray that his first and principal Will may be done in the Conversion and Salvation of all men

And having lately viewed the upper part of his Kingdom, where they are ever happy by a full and free obedience to his heavenly Will, we wish and desire that this lower part of his Kingdom, (where so many are yet totally in Rebellion, and others frequently revolting though they do profess Subjection) even that this World were modelled by that heavenly pattern ^e, as exactly as is consistent with the frailty and mutability of such a state ; for 'tis easie to discern, that all the Miseries in this world spring from our disobedience to the Laws, and our acting contrary to the Will of God ; so that if the corrupt Affections of the better sort were subdued, and the evil Actions of the more impious did cease, and all did guide their ways by the Will of God, we might be very happy even in this World, and should begin our Heaven upon Earth ; wherefore we also pray, since 'tis Gods Will for all to live holily ^f, that

^e Εἰκὼν ὅτι τὰ θεοῦ ἑστίν· Ἐκκλησίαις ἡ ὁπίγειος, ὅπως ἐν χρόνῳ καὶ ὅτι τῇ γῆς ἡμεῶν τὸ δέλημα. Clem. Alex. Strom. 4.

^f Quid autem Deus vult nam incedere. nos secundum suam disciplinam. Tertul.

this

his Will of his may be accomplished; and considering our heavenly Father hath innumerable blessed Spirits to perform his Will, which do it cheerfully and readily, fully and constantly; we see how much our endeavours come short of them, and how little reason we have to be puffed up for our imperfect Duties, which are begun with reluctance, deferred by sloth, or interrupted by vanity, carried on heavily, shaken with fears, and sometimes broken off by sin. This Prospect may humble us while we behold the Angels flying on the wings of Love and Zeal, and our selves creeping by Fears and Uncertainties; and if it do trouble us that we can do the Will of so great and good a Master in no better manner; then we shall strive and pray that we may know Gods Will as fully, desire to do it as fervently, and be enabled to accomplish it as pleasantly and as constantly as the glorious Hosts of Heaven do; both the Lights in the lower Orbs which

Et sic caelestia semper Inconcussa suo voluntate sidera motu

Omnes in ei obsequium ad unum deum et Dei Cupiditas, et et sui meriti et despontis in ei suavitati et in ei deum devotionis et in ei Clem. Constit. l. 2. c. 56.

exactly observe the Laws of their Creation, and those glorious Angels, and blessed Spirits which in the regions of Bliss, do delight continually to serve him. O what Affections are vigorous enough to pray for the same Obedience and Unity, Consent and Uniformity among Gods Children, as is there above! Where every one moves in his own place without disturbance, thwarting or opposition, making perfect Harmony, and keeping exact Peace, and this is Gods Will. But the word [be done] seems to others to have a Passive signification, viz. that whatever happens to us or any by the Will of God, whether good or evil, it may not be displeasing to us. And this further

Secus

shews why we prayed his Kingdom might come, that so he may administer all things as he pleaseth, for we are not jealous (as the Subjects of earthly Princes sometimes are) lest our God should make his Will an Arbitrary Law; for his Holiness and Mercy, Truth and Justice are his Will; so that we are most sure, whatever is his Will, that is best for us, be it Judgment or Mercy, Plenty or Want, Health or Sicknes, Life or Death; it is the best for us, whether we apprehend it or no, and we ought to wish it may be done, because we know he wills no evil to us^h, and if something which we think ill, descends from him, we may say as Melito did to the Emperor about the Persecutionsⁱ, If thou commandest them, they are good, because enjoined by a just Authority. Surely, though it may seem hard at present, it is judged fittest for us by him that knows our temper and need. The Author of this Prayer learned Submission, Matth. xxvi.42. and illustrated this Petition by his own example, and so did also St. Paul^k. To murmur against Gods choice was forbidden by a Heathen, and is so impious and foolish, that it wisheth God out of his Throne, and the reins out of his hands, that we might sit there, and rule all things by our own Will, as if we wished our former Petition unsaid. Sure we must not only cease to be Christians, but sober Men, before we can fanſie our selves wiser to contrive, and fitter to dispense all things than God himself is. Socrates his Prayer was for what was ^h — Eo nobis bene optamus quod nihil mali sit in Dei voluntate. Tert.

ⁱ Si quidem te iubente hoc faciunt bonum credamus, quicquid iusto Imperatore iubente committitur. Euseb. lib 4. Hist. Eccl. c.25.

— In hoc dicto ad sufferentiam nos ipsos admonemus. Tert.

illustrated this Peti-

^k Acts xxi. 14. Μη ἀντιτίθεν ὃν θεοῦ βουλὴν τῇ σεαυτοῦ. Pythag.

ἢ Μὴ μοι θέλω δὲ βῆλομ' ἀλλὰ δὲ Συμφίην.

Permittes ipsis expen-dere numinibus, quid conveniat nobis, rebusq; sit utile nostris. Juven.

convenient, not what he might desire¹, that is plainly, that Gods Will might be done. If we were our own Carvers, we should through rashness and folly, passion and prejudice, ever choose the worst : So that (having such experience of our mistakes) Jesus teacheth us to desire of God to order us as he pleases; and if we can live this Petition, believing the Pleasure of God to be always best, we shall have comfort in all conditions, and shall glorifie God more by such noble opinions of his Wisdom and Power, of his Love and Mercy, than by whole Burnt-Offerings and Rivers of Oil : For he that can thus fully acquiesce in Gods disposals of all things, must needs believe him to be Supreme and Almighty, of infinite Goodness and Mercy. And for this the Angels are our Examples, who keep those stations and do those offices God appoints them, and not what they choose for themselves; and so are all those glorified Saints above, from whom we may learn that the Will of God is to make us eternally happy at last : And why should we not give him leave to accommodate us by the way as he pleaseth, and in such manner as may bring us safest to our blessed Brethren now in Glory.

§.VII. Give us this day our daily Bread] Having thus sought the Kingdom of God in the first place, we now proceed to beg a supply for our Bodily Necessities : For our Saviour, who commanded us,

^m — *Post cœlestia, i.e.
Post Dei nomen, voluntatem, regnum; terrenis quoque necessitatibus pe-titioni locum facit. Ter.*

Matth. vi. 31. to seek that first, hath placed it first^m in his Form of Prayer, because that which is for Gods Glory, is also for the good of our nobler.

Part ^a the Soul; and the Grace of God is more necessary and beneficial, than our bodily Food, and accordingly we ought to pray for these in the morning before we eat our daily Bread: Yet when we have prayed for spiritual things, we that are Flesh and not Spirit are forced to beg temporal things also. We have declared that we do in all things submit to his blessed Will, only we crave that which we cannot subsist without, we desire to do his Will and observe his Pleasure as exactly as the blessed Angels in Heaven; but as he does not expect ^b we should live like them without Food; so we may desire him to remember the difference of our natures, and give us Our daily Bread, which is so necessary for us in this frail estate, that we cannot do his Will without it. If this Petition had been wanting, this Prayer had been deficient; nor is there any need for the ancient Doctors ^c to allegorize this Phrase, as if we asked Christ the Bread of life, and the Communication of him in the Sacrament for the food of our Souls; for though I can admit this may be understood by way of allusion ^d, yet I cannot allow it as the principal sense; nor is it below us to ask that which God knows we cannot be without. By Bread then we understand all manner of Food, meat or drink ^e which is necessary for the preservation of life, and also 1 Tim.vi.8. whatever is required to support our frail Nature

^a — Pars hæc pretium corpore majus habet.

• Conversacionis quidem diligentiam eandem à vobis efflagito, non tamen impossibilitatem requiro. Chrys.in Matth. Hom. 20.

^b Vide Hier. in Matth. l.1. & Tit. c.2: & Cas- sian.collat.9.ut & Ter- tul. & Cypr. &c.

^c Πᾶς ἀνθρώπου ἔχοντος δύο ἰσχύς — καὶ διὰ τὸτο ἢ ἐν ἐνστάσει ἰσὶα ὡς ἐπὶ τῇ αἰσθητικῇ αὐτοῦ. Athan.

^d Ita Panis significat, Num.xv.9.Prov.xxiii. 6. Ezek. iv. 16, &c.

(which

(which the Roman Laws comprehended under one word Vidui) viz. food and raiment and shelter; for the shortness of this Form doth by one word (Bread) express the supply of all our outward wants, as of Life and Health, Safety and Success in our honest Callings, Riches and Friends, as far as we need them, and as God shall see us fit for them. The things we here pray for are temporal, yet if we say this Petition aright, we exercise many Graces; for by desiring him to give, we own his Providence, and acknowledge that he is the Fountain of all good things, and that our labours are ineffectual without his Blessing; we confess his Wisdom in leaving it to him, to give so much as he knows we need, or shall be pleased to dispense. We declare that we are persuaded of his All-sufficiency and Bounty, and therefore we desire not to have our portion all at once, or in our own

Ἰνα μὴ ἐαυτῷ φύ-λαξαι τῶν ἀγαθῶν, ἀλλὰ τὸ φιλόδοξον ἀπο-φύγῃ. Philo.

hands, lest we should be too lavish of it; but that he may be the Storehouse of all good things, and that we may every day resort to him, of whose Love and Liberality we do not doubt, and who we know will be as able to relieve us to morrow as he is to day. We disclaim all unreasonable Cares and Fears concerning what shall become of us hereafter, Matth. vi 33, 34. because our heavenly Father, that hath all things at his disposal, will daily take care of us; and as the Israelites went every day to gather Manna, Exod. xvi. 4. that no day might pass without a Memento of Gods Providence; so are we willing to come to him day by day, to keep our hearts free from unreasonable Cares (which hinder us in seeking better things) and to make us daily mindful of our constant dependence upon him. Here we express also the moderation of our Desires, not seeking

seeking Riches or Honours *, Jewels or Ornaments, Banquets or voluptuous Satisfactions, but only so much as is convenient * for the condition we are in, Judg.viii.20. and necessary to strengthen us to do the Will of God; if we have not Food and Raiment, the Body cannot minister to the Soul in Duties of Religion *; so much therefore we crave, but not more, lest it should not help * but hinder, not strengthen but weaken us to all good. We ask not these out of any love to them, but merely out of a sense of our need: Nay it is evident our chiefeſt care is about ſpiritual things; for we ask them firſt and indefinitely, as much as we can get, even to ſerve us to eternity; but (having no abiding-place here) we deſire no more of theſe but neceſſaries in our Journey, we provide only from hand to mouth (being as the Greeks phrase it καθήμενοι ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ) for it is a fooliſh thing to load our ſelves with much Proviſion in our Inn, where we know not whether we ſhall ſtay one night. We only ask from day to day, that we may always ſhew our readineſs to depart whenever God ſhall call us, for overmuch plenty makes us unwilling to die. Herein we vindicate our ſelves alſo from Sloth and Injuſtice; becauſe we pray for our own Bread, that is, that which we ſhall get by Gods bleſſing on our honeſt labour; for a good man will (not like an idle Drone prey upon others labours, but) earn and eat his own Bread, 2 Theſſ.iii.12. and had rather want it than tear it from others by Violence, Oppreſſion, Sacrilege or Rebellion; or rather than he would by

* Panem peti mandat quod ſolūm fidelibus neceſſarium eſt, cetera nationes requirunt. Tert.
 * Prov. xxx.6. Ἐπιζητεῖτε καὶ μὴ λαμβάνετε.

* Λίμνη γὰρ ἐκ οἴκου ἡ ἀρετὴ συνιστάται. Procop. Goth. 4.
 * Ἰαχέτερον μὲν ἢ ἡ σπουδὴ, αὐτὸν δὲ ἀργότερον αὐτὸς καὶ οἰκία καὶ ἀδελφίαν. Porphyr. ἐπὶ ἀποχ. l.i. §.46.

Frank or Flattery, Lying or Cheating, deceive his Neighbour of what is justly his. If any here object many rich men have Goods laid up for many years and need not ask their daily Bread. I answer; the Rich need Gods Blessing to prosper and preserve what they have, as well as the Poor to give them what they have not; nor can their Meat nourish them, Matthew their Garments warm them, or their Palaces defend them, without his Blessing. What one hath more than another is here confess'd to be the gift of God; and Christ teacheth the Rich Humility, by shewing them whence their Abundance came, and by whom it is continued, and lest they should despise the Poor, they learn that if God withdraw his Blessing, they will soon become both alike; wherefore he that hath as well as he that hath not, must every day on his knees beg a piece of Bread, or a Power to use it, and a Blessing upon it. And thus we have begun to pray for our selves, and Jesus teacheth us to begin at the lowest step, and first to ask Relief for our Bodies, assuring us that our Heavenly Father cannot hear his Children cry for Bread and not supply them; and when he hath done so, we may from his kindness in lesser things, be encouraged to ask for our Souls, which he is more concerned for; but it would seem Presumption for us to ask the greatest first, who do not deserve the least, Gen. xxxii. 10.

§. VIII. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us,] The Particle [and] connects this to the former Petition, and declares we are continuing those requests which concern our selves; for we must look further than our earthly needs, lest if we obtain a supply for them, from his Bounty, and do not procure a Par-om his * Mercy, our Food l only fat us for the Slaugh-

If we did rightly apprehend inger of our Souls, all the nents of this Life could io more pleasure to us, than rious Fare presented to that

2 Consequens erat ut observata Dei liberalita-te, & clementiam ejus precaremur; quid enim alimenta proderunt, si illi reputamur reverè quasi taurus ad vitti-mam? Tertul.

Captive (designed to be sacrificed) when he re-red the Knife and the Altar. The fears of Gods l Vengeance will embitter all our abundance; erefore we add a Prayer for forgiveness, with-hich we cannot relish our daily Bread; nor do we our Food so necessary, as the Remission of our es; the want of that could but bring us to a ral Death, but without this we shall lose ever-Life, and die in eternal Misery. And the Neis also as universal, for as no man can live it Bread, so no man can live comfortably here or y hereafter without mercy;

l men have sinned*, and sins cannot be done away it Mercy; which every man ves by Bread must pray for,

 Rom. iii. 23.
Sciebat Dominus se solum sine delicto esse.
Tertul.*

ie best of men; and as often as they pray for (even every day) they must also ask Pardon of hty God, because no day is wholly inoffensive. ord Jesus would here set our sinfulness daily our eyes, to make us constantly sensible, that unworthy of the meat we eat, and of all the d Blessings which we receive; and to make us ually humble and penitent. He knew before en the best of men had sin, and prescribes this n as daily useful to all his Disciples; and those ut of Ignorance or Pride think they have no i exclude themselves out of the number of his

Scholars, who have all learn'd to pray for Absolution. But to be more particular, let us observe how many Duties are exercised in these few words, even all that becomes the address of a true Penitent; Confession and Self-Accusation, Contrition for and Aggravation of his Sins, Deprecation of the Punishment, with acknowledgment of the Justice thereof, Faith in a Redeemer, and Hope in his Merits : First, we herein daily confess our sin, our very asking Pardon is an Acknowledgment we are guilty, and we appropriate them to our selves^b ; for though Jesus did suffer the Punishment, we acted the Crimes ; which here (being mindful of his bitter Passion) we do own with sorrow, calling them our trespasses ; and in that word we signify the vast number of our transgressions ; this Plural indefinite word declares them very many, which we have committed against God and our Neighbour ; not against one, but against all his Laws, not once but many times. And further we confess they are as heinous as numerous, viz. Trespasses and Injuries, done against God himself by us his poor Creatures, 1 Sam. ii. 25. either in his own person or in his Subjects (our Neighbours) of whose Rights he is the Protector, and the Avenger of their Wrongs ; we have broke down the hedge of Gods Laws by our Disobedience, dis-

^b Exomologesis est Petitio veniæ, qui petit veniam delictum confitetur. Tertul. de Orat.

^c Matth. vi. 12. Ὁφειλόμενα the same Luke xi. 4. τὰς ἀμάρτίας Confer Luc. xiii. 2. cum v. 4.

owning his Supremacy, and denying that Duty which we owe to him, whereupon Sins are called Debts^c, because God being our supreme Lord, Creator and Preserver, we are bound to obey all his Pleasure, and to do his Commands; specially having voluntarily promised this in our Baptism: Wherefore if we pay not God this due and vowed Obedience, we are Debtors to him, and must discharge and satisfie by suffering the Penalty^d, unless we can find a Surety to undertake for us. O what can set out the heinousness of Sin more lively! It is a Wrong and Injury done by us poor miserable Wretches, against the Laws, the Authority, and the Rights of that God who made us, and whose Covenant-Servants we are; and to this we must add that we are liable to his just and severe threatnings, and may (when God pleases) be summoned to his Bar, indicted for this Debt, nay condemned to eternal Torments for the satisfaction of it, but behold his Mercy and Wisdom hath found a gracious Redeemer who hath taken these trespasses upon himself, and made a fuller satisfaction for them than we could have done by eternal Sufferings. It must be supposed, we believe the Satisfaction of Christs Death, and by it hope for a Remission; or else what encouragement have we to ask Pardon, or confess a Debt to a just and true God that must have satisfaction; this were to ask impossibilities, to desire God to be unjust. But our Lord Jesus who paid our Scores hath sent us to his Father with these words in our mouths, and he calls them truly our Trespasses; to shew his Love in redeeming us, and Gods Mercy in forgiving us, not to make us fear them as unpardonable: For when we remember our Redeemer, we have lively hopes in the midst of our humble acknowledgments; because he that paid our Debts, makes the same Request in Heaven for us, viz. That God would cleat a Si non reddit faciendo justitiam, reddet patiendo miseriam. August.

Τὰ ἀμάρτήματα εἰς ὀφειλήματα ἀναγέγραφε. Chrysost. de Pœn. 2. Debitum in Scripturis delicti figura est, quod perinde judicio debetur, nec evadat justitiam exactiōis nisi donetur exactio. Tertul. ut supra.

us and charge our Iniquities upon him. But because we are so apt to remember our needs and forget our Duty ; to pray for good things to our selves, and neglect the doing them to others, our Master hath annexed one of the greatest Duties of the Gospel so close to this necessary and desirable Request, that we cannot ask forgiveness of God , but we must promise the same to our Neighbours, that so Christ may make peace in Earth as well as Heaven : We must declare not only that we lay aside our groundless prejudice against our Brethren, but that we quit all pretences of Malice or Revenge, even against those who have not paid us the returns of Love and Duty which they were obliged to , and against our very Enemies that have wronged and harmed us by thought, word or deeds. Not that our Pardon from God depends only upon this, or is merited by it ; but because it is most reasonable, that we who request forgiveness of our Offences against God , should forgive the lesser Debts of our Brethren to us ; which are fewer in number, smaller in value, committed against a meaner person, and commonly upon some provocation on our part. He that doth so strictly exact his due in these petty Injuries, deserves to be strictly accounted with himself, and may blush to ask of so great God to abate of his rigor, when he a mortal Creature will not do it to his Equal. How can such malicious person be sensible of the kindness which God sheweth in forgiving him, when he is a stranger to those Compassions? Such a mans person must be hateful to our heavenly Father, because he is

• Veniam det facile cui veniã est opus. Ecclus. xxviii.3. Matth.xviii. 24. ubi Domino debentur 1000 talenta, h.e. 1870500 l. nostræ monetæ. Servo autem tantum 100 denaria, h.e. 3 l. - 2 s. - 6 d. Vide Waserus de nummis.

unli

him^r; and his Request is, because it is unreasonable impudent. Wherefore take care lest by your malice and credulity you involve your selves into the wrath of God for your own greater Injuries and damages.

X. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil,] Temptation doth not in its prime in Scripture signifie a solicitation to evil, but any trial, in order to the discovery of what we are; whether done by a Friend, as when tempted Abraham, Gen. xxi. 1. glorified him as some read) as a design to manifest the truth of his Faith; or by an Enemy, as when Satan desired St. Peter, James i. 13. not to tempt him, but to manifest that mixture of Chaff which he would find in him; and because evil objects shew what we are, and declare us to be evil, if we comply with them; therefore the setting evil things before us which lead us into sin, are also called Temptation; but Satan never tempts thus, he may try us by Afflictions, to purify us in the Fire as Gold, 1 Pet. i. 6, 7. to separate the precious from our Dross, nay he will do it, Zech. xiii. 9.
This is a sign of his Love, Heb. xii. 6. and ought to be the cause of our Joy, Jam. i. 2. and David begs it as his portion, Psal. cxxxix. 23. Nor do any but Cheats and Hypocrites fly this Trial, or fear to be enquired of: Gods Children are willing their Father should try them and tempt them here, with intentions of helping them, so they may escape the severe trial before the ^r Matth. v. v. 4, 5.

^r Tioi al. lib. δμοιον Grot.
^r Ὅστις ἐν δοκιμασίᾳ βέ- βαιότερος γίνεται, ἀφιεῖς π-μαρείας χαίρειτω μᾶλλον ἢ λαμβάνων. Libanius Sophist.

^r 2 Cor. xiii. 5. Heb.
xi. 29. and is expressed both by δοκιμάζω and πειράζω.
Due sunt tentationes, una quæ decipit, altera quæ probat; secundum eam quæ decipit, Deus neminem tentat. Aug.
Tract. 43.

last Tribunal. As to these Trials and Temp-Christ would rather teach us to pray to be sup-under and carried through them, than never to into them; because if Gods Grace be with us may be for our Advantage and Honour, and b-ty. Wherefore by Temptation here, we are ra-understand the being inticed to commit sin, or ever a trying whether we will sin, and thus

*¶ ut non de remittendis tantum, sed etiam de avertendis in totum delictis supplicemus. Ter-
 tul. de Orat.*

*Illud ut præterita expientur; hoc ut futura vi-tentur. Oros. de lib.
 Arbit.*

let us consider, that our Enemies are many and ty, vigilant and politick, that we are natural and willing to be deceived, rash in our choices, less of danger, neither considering before, nor ning afterwards, and so shall certainly fall eve-ment, if God in mercy do not help us: Yet if

*ἵ Τὸ ἐν σωάτων; ἀνα-μάπττον ἢ δὴ εἶ; ἀμάχανον ἀλλ' ἐκείνο σωάτων πρὸς τὸ μὴ ἀμάρτανον τεταῖος διλυνῶς. Arrian. l. 4.
 c. 12.*

follows the former Petition having considered the heinture and dangerous conse-
 of former sins, we pray the forgiveness of them; that Prayer were real, we but desire we may never be such desperate circumstangain; and to quicken this humble and fear, and hear for aid against sinⁱ (althou should fall sometimes) we our hatred of it, and if not totally free, yet we n a desire to be free from it for this we rely not on ou strength, but as Jesus hath us, we humbly beg strength from heaven eve-against it. But some may wonder why we desiwould not lead us, &c. Sure he that hates sin fectly, and so lately forgave us, will not tempe commit more, Jam. i. 13. 'tis most true; Satan is the Tempter^a (and so his name Sathan in Hebrew signifies) he being miserable by Sin¹, desires to make men partners with him both in Sin and Misery, by working on those Lusts, Jam. i. 14. which do draw us into Sin. But the Devil himself is under the command of the Almighty, who sets him bounds that he cannot pass, and gives permission to him to tempt us^m: So that he could have no power against us, except it were given him from on high, John xix. 11. but he obtains leave from God sometimes to try us, and Christ was led, Matth. iv. 1. by the Spirit of God to be tempted of the Devil: In such a case our frailty might make us fear and pray that we might not fall by such a trial. But other times God in his displeasure for one sin, suffers us to fall into another; not by enticing us, but by withholding that Grace which should restrain our evil desires, and by loosing Satans Chain, and leaving us encompassed with opportunities and engaging circumstances, which we are likely to fall by; and this the Scripture phraseth *entring into temptation*ⁿ, and the Jews in their Forms call it being led into the band of Temptation or Sin. And now let us remember how often by one sin, and desires after more, we have provoked God to expose us to such circumstances as will infallibly bring us into some grievous transgression; but if we henceforth take God for our guide, he will direct us and lead us in the right way; he foresees the enticing Baits, the evil Objects, and wicⁿ Matth. xxvi. 44. Ne me inducas in manum peccati nec in manum transgressionis. Seder Tephil Lusitan.

^a Matth. iv. 3.

¹ Solatium perditionis sue perdendis hominibus operatur. Lactant. de Orig. Er.

^m Job i. 12. Ch. Par. Exiit Sathanas cum licentiâ à coram Domino.

ked Company, which are in ambush for us; and if we rely on his mercy, and follow his guidance, he will conduct us so as to miss them all, or give us strength to overcome them, though we have neither wisdom to discover, nor strength of our own to avoid the danger: Wherefore we pray him to lead us, who can restrain the powers of darkness, and desire we may not provoke him to lead us into evil circumstances and dangerous occasions, nor to let loose our infernal foes, nor yet to leave us to our selves, which is the prime intent of this Petition, in its first branch. As to the last clause of deliverance from evil, Tertullian and many others take it to be a fuller explication of the former*, and by evil understand the evil of Sin; as if we were not unwilling to be tempted by Afflictions or Solicitations, if it be our Fathers pleasure; provided he would by his Grace prevent us from sinning and falling into iniquity by them. Temptations and Trials, if they occasion not our Sin, may humble us, and quicken our Prayers, mortifie our Lusts, and exercise all our Graces; and therefore we only desire whether God or Satan (by his permission) try us, we may be innocent: Or with the Antients we may take the word Πονηρῆς for the Evil One, p. 1 John iii. 12. Eph. vi. 16. Matth. v. 23. Castal. à Diabolo. Tertul. à maligno.

* Et respondet clausula interpretans quid sit Ne inducas, hoc est enim, sed devehit nos à malo. De Orat.

Πονηρῆς ἐνταῦθα ὁ διάβολος καλεῖται, καλεῖται ἡμᾶς ἀπονοθεύειν καὶ τὸν πύλαμον. Chrys.

that is, the Devil, who is so called in Scripture†, and thus we shall avoid a Repetition, (which cannot be supposed in this compendious Form) and the sense will be, that God would not deliver us up to sin, lest our enemy the Devil taking advantage thereby, seize our hearts, when God hath abandoned them, and we become his Slaves, and forfeit to destruction. Or lastly, we may by Evil understand the Effect of Sin, the Evil of Punishment, viz. that we may not be drawn into any Wickedness, nor into that which certainly follows it, Sickness, Losses, Crosses, Death temporal and eternal, which are the Wages of Sin, and of which the Devil is the Executioner: So that the two last Senses may very well stand together, viz. That God would not put us out of his Protection, nor deliver us up into Satans power, neither as a Tempter first, to entice to Sin, nor as a Tormentor afterward, to execute and inflict upon us what those sins deserve in this world or the world to come. The sum is, that Sin is a dreadful thing, it gives Satan power over us and possession of us; it makes us liable to be hurried on to more wickedness by banishing Gods Holy Spirit; and by taking away his favour, it opens a way for all the miseries and mischiefs of this world and the next to fall upon us: Upon the serious consideration whereof, we not only crave the Remission of past sins, but earnestly beg that we may never more fall into transgression, and then we doubt not but to be safe from all Evils Temporal, Spiritual and Eternal.

§.X. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever and ever, A M E N.] Some have imagined this Conclusion was not spoken by Christ, but added by the Greek Church to this Prayer, because all the old Latin Copies want it wholly, and all the Greck Copies in St. Luke, and some in St. Matthew, nor is it expounded by the Latin Fathers; others plead it is agreeable to the Jewish Forms, and generally found in the Original of one Euangelist, and in the Syriack and Arabick, both antient Translations, and is expounded by St. Chrysostom and Theophylact.

But

But our Church hath chosen a middle way, and hath annexed it here in the first repetition of the Lords Prayer, and in some other places she hath omitted it, not as if it were not of Divine Authority, but sometimes following St Luke, as here and elsewhere St. Matthew. It is very unlikely those holy Fathers should presume to add their own inventions to this venerable Form of Christs own compofure: It being more probable, that our Lord delivering this Prayer twice, did add this Doxology at the first time which is recorded in St. Matthew, and leave it out the second, which is set down in St. Luke; and hence the Latin Copies (which were very confused and full of error) might leave it out in both, lest the Euangelists should seem to differ in so considerable a matter: But howeuer it was, it is most for our profit to wave these enquiries, and labour truly to understand it. It is known that the Jews concluded all their Prayers with a Doxology or Form of Praise, yea sometimes (as

¶ In Matth. vi. 13.

Quia tuum est regnum, & in secula seculorum regnabis gloriose.

¶ Phil. iv. 6. With Thanksgiving.

Drusius saith) in these very words, and our Lord Jesus delighted in imitating their customs, though here the reason is weighty; for a Prayer is scarce complete without Praises, it being sordid to ask all from God, and return nothing to him. Prayers may seem more necessary, but Praises are as much our Duty, and more lovely. Petitions fit the Earth, but the glorifying God is the imitation of the Celestial Choir, who sing a Song much like this Conclusion of the ¶ Rev. v. v. 12, 13. &

Chap. xi. 15. — Nos
Angelorum — Candi-

dati jam hinc celestem illam vocem in Deum, & officium future claritatis ediscimus. Tertul. de Orat.

to use it there. We began these Devotions with his Glory, and now we end with it, that this may be the beginning and end of all our actions: We now give that to him our selves, which we prayed before might be offered him from others. As to the sense of these words, they may be an acknowledgment of his infinite Perfections, who is not praised by Flattery, but by a bare Confession of what he really is and hath, in, by and from himself; yea, we fall short of what he is and deserves in our most exact acknowledgments, for his Kingdom is everlasting and universal, his Power infinite and unlimited, his Glory transcendent and incomprehensible; we may repeat them, but can neither fully comprehend them, nor express them but by Silence and Admiration; only we confess our own Subjection, Weakness and Misery, by ascribing all these to him; Kings must lay down their Crowns, mighty men their Strength, and the honourable men of the earth their Glory at his Footstool. These words considered in themselves thus, are an act of Praise, but being connected to the Prayer by the Particle for, they are a proper Conclusion to this divine Prayer, and seem to contain a reason of every Petition; for we are obliged to pray that his Kingdom may come, because he is right and lawful King of Heaven and Earth; and to desire his Will may be done, because he hath the just Power and Supremacy over all, to command what he pleaseth; and to wish his Name may be hallowed, because he is glorious in himself, and deserves all possible Praises from all the world. So likewise in the three last Petitions, of him we ask for a temporal supply, because his is the Kingdom over all Creatures, and all Provisions are his; of him we beg a Pardon,

* Rom. xi. 36.

Horat. Od. l. 3. Od. 6.

Hinc omne principium, huc refer exitum.

for he only hath full Power and just Authority to dispense it ; and of him lastly we request deliverance from Sin and Damnation, because he may have the same Glory from us as he now hath, and ever shall have from the blessed Saints, whom he hath brought to his heavenly Kingdom ; or if this seem too nice, and we reflect upon the whole Prayer together, here we are struck with reverence in remembrance of that great King we have spoken to ; we declare why we make our address to him, and what ground we have to hope for acceptance with him. His is the Kingdom, therefore we his poor Subjects do petition him ; and it is his Prerogative to help, and by his Supremacy he may do it. His is the Power, therefore we his weak impotent Creatures look up to him and rely upon him, who is able to do all we desire, and being Almighty can perform it. His is the Glory, and therefore we vile Sinners that can do nothing without him, though we deserve nothing from him, yet we present our necessities before him, that by his free Grace he may have that Glory from us which he hath from all others that he hath formerly relieved. Leave thy Prayers then with much comfort in his hands, who is thy heavenly Father, and may do abundantly for thee by his Right, and can do it by his Power, and will do it for his Glory, both this day, to morrow and for ever. Come when thou wilt, he is, and hath Kingdom, Power and Glory, from everlasting to everlasting ; this is no mortal King, nor fading Power, nor transient Glory, but all endure longer than thy wants, even for ever and ever. O how hearty an Amen maist thou say to this Prayer, since as thou hast great reason to desire all these things should be granted, thou hast as good ground to believe they shall, Amen.

The Paraphrase of the Lords Prayer after the Absolution.

Most merciful Lord God, who hast owned us for thy Children by creating us, preserving and providing for us, and after our manifold disobedience hast by this gracious Promise of Pardon again encouraged us to call thee [~~Our Father,~~] thy Mercy in receiving us ~~expresses~~ the compassions of earthly Parents; and thy infinite Goodness and Power do evidence thy Glory [~~which~~ art in heaben,] and therefore canst do whatever thou pleasest in all the world. Lord, we are so transported with thy admirable pity towards us and all poor sinners, that forgetting our own wants we desire thy Glory in the first place, even that by us and all men [~~balloted,~~] sanctified, revered and for ever feared may [~~be thy name,~~] from which we have had our help, and thy Attributes in which we have our comfort; that we may ever express a fervent Love and dutiful Regard to thee, and all belonging to thee. We lately were (as many yet are) in rebellion against thee; but since we have found thee so merciful a Prince, Lord, let [~~thy Kingdom come~~] into all our hearts, to rule us by thy Grace, and to fit us against thou shalt come in Glory to crown thy Servants; and to condemn thy Enemies, whose Misery thou delightest not in, but deferrest thy coming, because it is thy Will, that we all should live in Holiness here and Happiness hereafter. Dear Father, let this [~~thy will be done~~] both by our obedience to thy Word, and by our submission to thy Providence; for then shall we be truly happy when thy good Will and Pleasure is done by us and on us thy Servants [~~in earth,~~] as readily and fully, as constantly and chearfully [~~as it is in heaben~~] by the blessed Saints and Angels, whose food

food it is to obey thy Commands. But Lord, thou knowest the frailty of our nature, and the misery of our condition, which needs continual support and supplies, and forceth us to beseech thee, who hast all blessings at thy disposal, to [give us this day,] which for any thing we know may be our last, and therefore we look no further nor ask no more than [our daily bread] even so much Food and Raiment, Health and Wealth, Prosperity and Success, as thou seest is necessary and convenient for us in this state of life, in which thou hast placed us; so much as may enable us to serve thee, not encourage us to forget thee, or entice us to increase the number of our sins, which are too many already: But we will daily acknowledge and bewail them, and remembering the Vengeance due unto us for them, we now earnestly beseech thee to pardon [and forgive us our trespasses] against thy righteous Laws and just Authority for Jesus sake, who hath made satisfaction for them: Gracious Lord, by his Merits forgive us [as we] by the help of thy Grace, the injunction of thy Gospel, and the example of thy Mercy [forgive them that trespass against us] in fewer and lesser matters. We tremble at the remembrance of all those amazing miseries which our former sins have made us liable to: And though we deserve to be deserted, yet O let us never fall again into those dreadful circumstances [and lead us not] into any dangerous occasions or opportunities of Sin; but though many Snares be laid for us, guide us so by thy Providence, that we may seldom fall [into temptation] and never fall by it; let not Satan who desires our eternal Ruin, again get power over us and advantage against us; [But deliver us from] all the [evil] which he enticeth us to as a Tempter, and will punish us for as a Tormentor, that we may neither deliver our selves

selves over to him by Sin, nor be given up to his Malice to execute thy Sentence upon us for it. These Mercies we need, and though we are unworthy, yet we petition thee for them; thou maist help us, [for thine is the Kingdom,] thou canst do it, for thine is [the Power,] and we hope thou wilt do it, for thou hast freely and frequently relieved poor penitent Sinners; for which Men and Angels do acknowledge thine is the Praise [and the Glory,] and we shall by thy Mercy to us be obliged also to join in this just acknowledgment, which shall be made to thee in Heaven and Earth [for ever and ever] world without end. [Amen] be it so.

SECTION VI.

Of the Responses.

§.I. AFTER this devout Address to God in that incomparable Prayer which Jesus taught, are added some short and pithy Sentences, in which the people are to bear a part ; according to the manner of the Primitive Christians^a, who used this so constantly, that Eusebius^b brings it as an Argument to prove the Essenes were Christians, because they sung by turns, answering one another. It was indeed the custom of all the Jews, among whom this Duty was performed by the Priests and Levites only : But Christians have a greater privilege, and every man is so far a Priest, 1 Pet. ii.9. Revel. i.6. as to have leave to join in this spiritual Sacrifice ; which is for the Benefit as well as the Honour of the People, if they did rightly understand it ; for

^a August. de Verb. Apost. Serm. 12. Ὁ λαὸς τὰ ἀκριβοῦς ὑποτάσσεται. Constit. Ap. l.2. c. 5.

^b Euseb. Histor. Eccl. l.2. c.17.

First, This shews their full consent to all that is prayed for, and Christ teacheth us that we must agree ^c Matth. xviii. 19.

Gr. Συμφωνήσασιν.

in our asking, that so our Prayers may be heard^c. Nor is their Silence sufficient to express such a

Consent as is here required ; for they must not only be willing these things may be prayed for ; but they must desire that God should look on it as every ones particular Request ; and accordingly Minister and People must with one mouth as well as one mind, Rom. xv 6. praise God.

Secondly,

Secondly, this quickens their Devotion by a grateful variety, making those holy Offices pleasant, which our corrupt nature is so apt to think tedious; and by a different manner of address making the time seem short^d, the devotions new, and our affections as fresh as in the beginning of our Prayer.

^d Breve videbitur tempus quod tantis operum varietatibus occupatur. Hieron. Epist. ad Lat.

Thirdly, This engageth their Attention, which is apt to stray, especially in sacred things, and most of all when the people bear no part: But when they have also their share of Duty, they must expect before it comes, that they may be ready; when it is come, they must observe that they may be right, and after take heed to prepare against the next Answer they are to give. How pious therefore and prudent is this Order of the Church, thus to intermix the peoples Duty? that they may be always exercised in it or preparing for it, and never have leisure to entertain those vain thoughts which will set upon us, especially in the house of God, if we have nothing to do^e. And assuredly the peoples general neglect of answering in their course hath introduced so much laziness, sleeping, irreverence, inadvertency and weariness into the house of God. Our pious Ancestors may make our Devotion blush when we see them all the time of Prayer in procinctu, with their knees bended, their hands lifted up, their eyes fixed on the Minister, and their hearts and mouths ready to say Amen, and to answer wherever it was required: And if ever this Devotion be restored in the Church (which all good men passionately wish) it must be, by learning the people zealously and conscientiously to join in these pious Ejaculations allotted to them; which that they may do, I shall now explain them to every ones capacity.

^e Nihil agendo male agere discimus. Senec.

¶ II. Open thou our lips: And our mouth shall shew forth thy praise.] This Sentence with many of those that follow, are indited by the Spirit of God; taken out of that excellent repository of Devotion, The Psalms of David; from whence the Jews took the greatest part of their Liturgy, and the Primitive Christians collected their Prayers, and composed their Hymns out of it; because it contains variety of Prayers and Praises, exactly fitted for all persons in all circumstances, as pertinent as if they had been made for the present occasion; and so we shall find this to be, which we now consider. The words are to be found in Psal. li. ver. 15. and were antiently transcribed into the Christian Liturgies; for they are ordered to be three times repeated in that antient one attributed to St. James, (not to mention them of latter date.) And nothing can be more pertinent when Minister and People are about to begin to praise God; for Speech is the gift of God, Prov. xvi. 1. Exod. iv. 11. it is that in which Man excels all other Creatures, and was given us to this end, that we might glorifie him; whence the ¶ Psal. xvi. 9. Gloria mea. LXX. ἡ γλῶσσά μου. Vid. Psal. xxxvi. 12. & cviii. 1.

Tongue is called our Glory, because it is the Instrument of his Praise. But here we do not only acknowledge our Speech was given us to this end, but desiring now to make the right use of it, we beg his help, and confess from him we have the faculty and the exercise of that faculty in every act; especially in holy things; wherein unless he open our lips, we cannot set forth his praise. This is the sense of the words considered absolutely and alone. But if we observe whence they are taken (viz. out of the most famous Penitential Psalm) and where they are set (viz. soon after the Confession) it will afford us another profitable Meditation. David useth them after the Confession of his grievous Sin, and earnest Supplication for pardon, and we use them in the close of the Penitential part, before we begin our solemn Praises and Petitions, intimating that till we have some hopes of our pardon, we cannot proceed any further, and so we briefly, but zealously renew that great suit for Mercy, because sin and the guilt of it doth stop our mouths, and shut our lips that we become tongue-tied^b, speechless, and mute, as Judah (the most eloquent of all his Brethren) being taken in a fault, Gen. xlv. 16. knew not what to answer, being full of inward confusion. Nor hath sin this effect only on evil menⁱ, but as much if not more on the best; whose ingenuity produceth a shame that will stop their mouths as much as the wicked mans terrors, of which the famous Origen is an instance, who having been once compelled to sacrifice^k, was long after struck dumb with reading the 16th verse of the 50th Psalm, but unto the ungodly, saitb God, what hast thou to do, &c. and broke off with tears not able to proceed further; which that it may not happen to us, viz. that a guilty Conscience may not spoil the musick of our Praises, or seal up our lips in Prayer, we here do beseech him (by speaking peace to our Souls) to give us hopes of his forgiving Mercy; that whereas our Fear, Shame and Grief makes us now stand mute, as so many guil-

^b Matth. xxii. 11.

Gr. Ὁ ὅ ἐπιμύθη.

ⁱ ut leprosi labium tegitur. Levit. xiii. 45. ita os peccatoris obturatur. Cyril. Alex.

^k Epiphan. Panar. l. 2. Tom. 1. Hæres. 64.

ty persons, we may have (ἡμεῖς) a freedom of speech in his presence, when the Terrors of offending Slaves, are changed into the Liberty of reconciled Sons: which mercy if he grant, we do all engage to use it to his Glory, and resolve it shall kindle the flames of Gratitude and Love in all our hearts, and if he Open our lips, our mouth shall set forth his praise: And when we praise him for other things, we will think of this pardoning mercy, and redouble our Eucharistical gratulations; and doubtless this Petition shall be heard, for we desire it not only for our own Benefit, But to fit us to set forth his Praise. We have cause when we go about to glorifie God, to cry out we are of unclean lips, Isai. vi. 5. but if God send hopes of Remission, when the Seraphim toucheth our lips, and taketh away our iniquity, then we shall be fit for all holy Duties, and with that Prophet readily say, Here I am, Lord send me.

§. III. O God, make speed to save us: O Lord, make hast to help us. These words are frequently repeated in the Book of Psalms; and are not much varied from that form of Exclamation¹ which the Jews contracted into Hosanna, which signifies Save now, Lord we beseech thee; but the old Latin Liturgies² do assure us they are taken out of the 70th Psalm, though they are found also, Psal. xl. 13. where you may behold David surveying his sins more numerous than his hairs, more weighty than his heart could bear; terrified with which sad spectacle he breaks out into this passionate Ejaculation, which may well besit our mouths, who so lately have been confessing our Offences; for

¹ Psal. cxviii. 25.

Heb. הוֹשַׁע נָא

Obsecro 'Jehovah serva hunc. Jun. & Trem.

² Deus in adiutorium meum intende. Plxxx. 1.

Vid. Gr. Verf. D. D. Dupont: — Els & Bon Deu הוֹשַׁע נָא ut LXX.

it contains all that any penitent sinner, about to put up his Petitions, need to sue for by way of Preparation; viz. deliverance and safety from evil, and help in that which is good. We suppose our selves like a besieged City, our Sins behind threaten us, and our Corruptions have blocked us up before, and Fear is on every side, yet still the way to heaven is open, and we send these Prayers upwards to the place where the King of Heaven resides, for a speedy rescue to be granted to his distressed Subjects, 1 Sam. xi. 4. 2 Chron. xx. 12. When we look back and see our innumerable Iniquities, we cry out, O God, make speed to save us: When we look forward to all those Duties which we are to do, and the great opposition we are sure to meet with, we say, O Lord, make hast to help us. Our guilt will make speed to pursue us, Satan to destroy us, and evil Thoughts to hinder our Devotions. Wherefore we must beg that our gracious God will also make hast to save and help us just now, when we are in danger and need, and it will doubleⁿ the kindness: Nor will he call these speedy cries Impatience or Presumption, but account them prudent fear of our imminent danger, and a right apprehension of our urgent necessities; and for our comfort let us remember, they that are the most liberal are the most speedy^o in doing good. He that we make request to hath charged us (see Prov. iii. 8.) never to put off a necessitous person till the morrow, if we have it in our power; and he ever hath it in his, to help us; wherefore we may be assured he will save and help us this day, and by the speed of his help, give us cause in the next place to sing Glory be to the Father, &c.

ⁿ Bis dat qui cito dat, Seneca.

^o Proprium est libenter facientis cito facere. Id.

§.IV. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost : As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end.

Amen.] Although the words of this excellent Hymn are not in Scripture, yet it is a Paraphrase on the Song of the Seraphims, and is expressly grounded on Gods Word, 1 John v. v.7. not only as it is an act of adoration to Almighty God ; but as it is a particular address to each person of the Blessed Trinity ; who being equal in their Godhead, ought equally to be worshipped, as might here be fully proved, but that it is sufficiently done by others. This truth indeed by the malice of the Devil, and the envy of ambitious and wicked men, hath met with more opposition than all other Christian Doctrins : The Arrians, Subellians, Eunomians, Apollinarists, Macedonians, and almost all Hereticks denied either the Divinity of one, or Equality

¶ Multa quippe ad fidem Catholicam pertinentia, dum Hæreticorum callidâ iniquitadine agitantur, ut adversus eos defendi possint, & considerantur diligentius, & investigantur clariùs, & instantius prædicantur.

Aug. de Civitate Dei, lib.16.cap.2.

of all the persons ; but the Church got this advantage^a by it, that this fundamental Article, was more narrowly examined, clearly explained, and fully proved than otherwise it had been ; and among other good effects of these bad causes was the composure of this Eucharistical Hymn (as some think) or rather the enjoining it in daily use (which I rather believe,) for there are many footsteps of it before Arrius time, or any of those Councils which condemned him, and though before the danger of this Heresie, every one of the Fathers had a Form of Doxology of his own, yet with little variety of words they they all expressed the same thing, viz. to ascribe all Honour and Glory to the three persons of the glorious Trinity. Nay these very words are set down by Clemens of Alexandria^r, as the Christians Form of praising God [above 100 years before the Council of Nice, Anno 190.] besides it appears it was used in the Service of the somewhat very like it^r, because the Arrians did alter the antient Form into Glory be to the Father by the Son and in the Holy Ghost; for which they are sharply reprehended by the Orthodox Fathers: who afterwards annexed it to their Publick Devotions^r, almost in this Form in which we now have it. All which doth not only prove the Antiquity of it, but teach us that it may serve for two purposes; First, as a Form of praising God, and glorifying every Person of the Trinity, which was the first design of those that invented it. Secondly, as a shorter Creed and Declaration of our Faith of the Trinity in Unity, which was the use it was fitted to afterwards. I wish we might have no occasion to make use of it in the second sense as a Test for Hereticks (though the Disciples of Socinus and Fanatick Enthusiasts do even still deride or deny this Mystery) but if there were no such, it might still serve its principal end, to be a Form of ascribing all Praise and Glory to the Supreme Being, and an act of Adoration to each Person, which we are obliged particularly to pay, because every one of the Persons in the Trinity hath done peculiar benefits for

^r Αἰνῶντες τῷ υἱῷ πατρὶ καὶ ᾧ ἁγίῳ πνεύματι. Clen. Alex. Padag.

Church before, or

^r Gloria Deo Patri, honor item & adoratio, cum Filio Collegi, una cum sancto vivificatore Spiritu. Athan.

who afterwards

^r Δόξα πατρὶ καὶ υἱῷ καὶ ἁγίῳ πνεύματι νῦν καὶ ἀεὶ καὶ εἰς τὰς αἰῶνας ᾧ αἰώνων. Aulu.
Litur. S. Chryl & Basil.
Et aliquando Ὁ πᾶσι σοὶ πᾶσα δόξα, &c.
Et Σοὶ τὴν δόξαν ἀναπέμπουσιν πατρί, &c.

us : So that it is our Duty to praise the Father for our Creation, the Son for our Redemption, the Holy Ghost for our Sanctification. The Father hath sent us into the world, and preserves and provides for us in it. The Son hath lived with us and died for us, and being returned to his glory is still mindful of us. The Holy Ghost doth come to us and stay with us as a Guard and a Guide, a Comforter and an Advocate; clearing our Minds, cleansing our Hearts, quickening our Affections and enforcing our Prayers : And shall we not then be highly ungrateful, if we pay not a particular tribute to every person in special as well as to all in general. Remember the Angels sung praise to the undivided and ever-blessed Trinity in the morning of the Creation, in the beginning of all time, Job xxxviii. 7. and they and all the world do it now, and both Men and Angels shall continue this Jubilee to eternity. As long as Goodness endures^a, Gratitude and Praise cannot cease. This was and is and ever shall be done in all ages and generations, Psal. cxlv. 4. The Patriarchs and Prophets did it in the beginning and first ages of the world; the Apostles and Martyrs in the first planting of the Gospel. And all these, though removed to heaven, continue to sing praises to the Trine God there, as we and all pious Christians do here; and there will never want Tongues in Heaven and Earth to sing this gratulatory Hymn for all generations. Observe further the comprehensiveness of these few words, which extend to all things as well as to all times and persons; and present at once to our view all the mercies of God past, present and to come. They are an acknowledgment that all the good that ever was or shall be

^a Omnes tam Orationes quam Oblationes cessabunt in seculo futuro, sed oblatio gratiarum nunquam cessabit. R. D.K. Psal. c. v. 4.

be done, or that is now enjoyed in Heaven or Earth, hath proceeded from this All-sufficient and ever-flowing Fountain, to whom this tribute of Praise is and was and ever will be due. Behold then, O pious Soul, a glorious Choir of Angels, Patriarchs, Prophets, Apostles, Saints and Martyrs in Heaven, with all holy men and women in all the world, at once with united voices and joyful hearts singing this triumphant Song; Let this inspire thee with holy Raptures and Ecstasies of Devotion whilst thou singest thy part here on earth, and when thou art taken hence, thy place shall be supplied by the succeeding generations, and thou shalt be advanced to a state as endless as his Mercy, where thou shalt praise him to eternity. What better Form can we have to glorify God by than this, which is a declaration of our Faith, a discharge of our Homage, in which we acknowledge his former mercies, confess his present favors to us and all the world, and glorify him for both? We hope in him for those that are to come, expecting all from him, and promising those returns of Eucharist which we will for ever make to him. How can this be done too often, or repeated too frequently? Surely his Mercies are more frequent than our Praises can be. Those that censure this as a vain Repetition, would ill have digested the hundred Blessings * which the Jews are bid to say every day; and might be offended at David's seven times a day, Pj . cxix. 64. and St. Paul's charge to rejoice always, 1 Thess. v. v. 18. Phil. iv. 4. but as God never thinks it too often to relieve us, let us never think his Praises too many, tedious or impertinent; but in Psalms, in Litanies and every thing,

* Deut. x. 12. RR. logunt pro ןב ןב:
pro quid, leg. centum:
unde dictum, unus-
quisque tenetur centum Benedictiones quotidie reddere.

thing, let us give thanks; and when Gloria Patri is not in our mouths, let it be in our hearts, that we may never forget his benefits.

To this we shall only add the particular reason why the Church hath placed it in the close of the Penitential part of daily Prayer; and that is in imitation of holy David, who commonly when he hath made his Confession, declared his Distress, and begged pardon and deliverance, then he turns his Petitions into Praises, because of his lively hope of acceptance, Psal. vi. 9. and cxxx. 7. So we being full of hopes that our gracious Father will forgive us, for his Sons sake by the ministry of his Spirit: We, I say, do now give Glory to the Father, who granteth this Absolution; to the Son, who purchased and obtained it; and to the Holy Ghost, who sealeth and dispenseth it to us; and we also call to mind those innumerable instances of the like infinite Mercies to poor Sinners which have been, and ever shall be to the worlds end: And what Heart can conceive, or Tongue express that Ecstasie of ravishing Pleasures, which we shall feel at the last day! when we and all true Penitents that ever were or shall be shall all join in singing Songs of Praise to our dear Redeemer, whom we shall love much, because much is forgiven us. We can foresee those Anthems which shall then be sounded on the battlements of Heaven by millions of glorious Souls rescued from destruction, and we by Faith have such a sense hercof, that we begin now that Song that we shall sing for evermore.

¶ G. V. Praise ye the Lord: the Lords name be praised.]
The first part of this, or the Verseicle, is no other than the English of Hallelujah, which of old was accounted so sacred, that the Church used it (quod nec Latino nec Barbaro licet in suam linguam transferre) Ebræo omnes gentes vocabuntur de cantare. August. in Pascen. Ep. 178.

in its native Language; so St. John in the Revelations keeps the word Hallelujah, Rev. xix. v. 1, 3, 4, & 6. but our Church hath made it more intelligible to her Children by teaching it to them in their own Language; for in our tongue it is exactly rendered. ^a Praise ye the Lord. Now this Hallelujah was the name of a Hymn in frequent use, Tob. xiii. 18. among the Jews, who used also after the Passover to sing six Psalms [from Psal. cxiii. to Psal. cxviii.]

^a Ἀλληλούια αἰνεῖτε τὸν κύριον θεόν. Hefych. (quæ ἐκponit per τὸ αἰνεῖν) vel Αἰνεῖτε τὸν Κύριον, (Ἦν est contractio Je-hovæ.) Theodoret. in Psal. cxl. & cxlii.

which Hymn (Matth. xxvi. 30.) they called the great Hallelujah, because in those Psalms this Word is often repeated; and perhaps to distinguish it from some lesser Hallelujah of daily use in the Temple-Service. From the Jews St. John learned it, and the Christian Church from both; for it was ever annexed to, and frequently repeated in all their Liturgies, which was so well known, that when Olympius the Heathen Philosopher heard an Hallelujah sung early in the morning, in the Temple of Serapis in Egypt, before any man had come in thither, he fled from the place, gathering by this Prognostick, that the Heathen Temple should become a Christian Church ^a. It was constantly sung in all Christian Assemblies, though with some variety; at Rome most solemnly at Easter, in other places ^b all the fifty days after till Whitsunday, which were days of greatest joy among them. But every where it was used on the Lords Day ^c. And thus we imitate the Forms used by pious and

^a Soz. Hist. Tr. l. 9. c. 29.

^b Soz. Hist. Tr. l. 9. c. 39.

^c ut autem Hallelujah per illos solos dies quinquaginta in Ecclesiâ cantetur, non usquequaq; observatur, nam & in aliis diebus variè cantatur alibi, ipsi autem Dominicis diebus ubique. Aug. Ep. 120. Vid. Id. Psal. 106. Item Ambros. Apol. pro Dav. & Paul. Diaconus, l. 15.

Primitive Antiquity : And if any ask why it is placed here? I answer, First, as a return to the Patri, in which having worshipped the Trinit here adore the Unity, worshipping and praising Persons and One God. Secondly, it may look ther back to the Absolution; for Hallelujah is an Victor, a Triumphant Song for Victory over our enemies. It was first made on that occasion, saith a] a Centum & tres Psalmos, dixit David, & non dixit Schira Canticum, donec vidisset ruinam improborum. R. D.K. in Psal. civ.

Moses, Exod. xv. began his Song of Victory, Minister begins this, and all the People echo after the same strain^e; when we hold our Sins (the Egyptian ruled us with rigor, and put us with guilt) lie dead before our eyes, then it is proper to sing Hallelujah. Thirdly, it may look for † Hallelujah is the title to many Psalms. See Dr. Hammond on Psal. cvi.1. and Psal. cxi.1.

to the reading of the Psalms serve as a Preface thereto^e cause Praise is the subject-matter of most of them, and therefore call it the Book of Praises which we being about to praise God, do mutual courage one another with most excellent 8 Canticle, some think is the Song of Angels in Heaven, with whom we hope at last to bear a part.

Doctor^d; and St. John, Re 1,3,4 6. applies it to that which the Saints sung for the overthrow of their Enemies doth old Tobit also, with reference to Israel's Restauration: A

Moses, Exod. xv. began his Song of Victory, Minister begins this, and all the People echo after the same strain^e; when we hold our Sins (the Egyptian ruled us with rigor, and put us with guilt) lie dead before our eyes, then it is proper to sing Hallelujah. Thirdly, it may look for to the reading of the Psalms serve as a Preface thereto^e cause Praise is the subject-matter of most of them, and therefore call it the Book of Praises which we being about to praise God, do mutual courage one another with most excellent 8 Canticle, some think is the Song of Angels in Heaven, with whom

SECTION VII

Of the XCV. Psalm.

THe Holy Spirit being the Enditer, and David the Penman of this sacred Hymn, the matter of it is unquestionable, Heb. iii. 7. iv. 7. and the placing it here to be used in the daily use, doth further confirm (what we may every where observe) the prudent and pious care of the Church in her choice; this part of Scripture being as preparatory to all the succeeding Offices, as is to be found in all the holy Word of God. It contains 1. Directions and Exhortations to Praises, Praying and hearing Gods Word, which (as was shewed before ^a) are the Duties of our Church-Assemblies; and its very ^a Vide Sect. II. §. 8. Exposure shews it was designed for the Publick Service, Grotius thinks for the Feast of Tabernacles, ^b Calvin and others for the Sabbath-day, Heb. ^b Calvin. in Psal. xcv. 7. but St. Paul, Heb. iii. 15.

Of whose Authority we follow, thinks it fit for every Church; and by his application of it, we have sufficient ground to adopt it into the Christian daily Worship; being also the Testimony of many Jewish Writers, that it belongs to the time of the Messiah, as also Greek Euchologion, to shew it was particularly used in the Eastern Church, according to the Liturgies both of St. Chrysostom and St. Basil, and St. Austin's Testimony, that it was sung in the African Church

De Verb. Apostol.
Serm. 10.

Church. And it is too the sluggishness of our all holy Duties, mak powerful Exhortations necessary to awaken strong Arguments to convince us, and the ful Threatnings and Examples to warn which are contained in this Psalm, as will a the following Scheme.

contains a threefold Exhortation:

I. To praise
God,
ing

II. To

and spirit rejoice in

CV. Psalm

into the
in the ize his bes glad nd still is about to

I Sam. xvi καλαγμός
rot. in Jolh besiege his own ckwardne nich we never we h one anothe ritual Song rage one patheticall s in these ig (after t vers word was fitted still use i come let us come, &c.)

; the court
eople do r oint resolu
ffice that c 16:47. but

190

De
Ser

pow stro ful whi
the

A Practical Discourse on the XCV. Psalm.

I.V.1,2. O Come, let us sing unto the Lord, let us heartily rejoice in the strength of our salvation. Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and shew our selves glad in him with Psalms.] It hath ever been, and still is the custom for Soldiers, when they were about to join in battle, to encourage one another with a general shout ; to which we may compare this joyful Acclamation of the Church

d 1 Sam. xvii.20. Gr. ἀλαλαγμός. Vide Grot. in Josh. vi.5.

stant ; we being now about to besiege Heaven with our Prayers, every man shews his own forwardness and reproves his neighbours backwardness, with come let us, &c.] This is that which we are commanded to do by the Apostle, whenever we meet in the House of God, viz. to admonish one another, Heb. 25. in Psalms and Hymns and spiritual Songs, Eph. 5.19. Coloss. iii.15. And to encourage one another, the Minister and People do most pathetically in this Psalm, stirring up each others hearts in these two first verses to praise God ; the same thing (after the Poetical manner) being expressed in divers words ; from which it appears that this Psalm was fitted for the two sides of the Choir, and so we still use it The first beginning the Exhortation (O come let us sing, &c.) and the People answering (Let us come, &c.) thereby proving the advice and returning the courteous Invitation, and both Minister and People do mutually perform the Duty, and express their joint resolutions to glorify God. In private it may suffice that our hearts and spirit rejoice in God, Luke i. 46,47. but we are now

now in publick, and therefore as God hath bestowed his favours, 1 Cor. vi. 20. on both Soul and Body, we must (both in Heart and Voice) glorific him by both. We must sing his Praises, and thereby shew even to Men who cannot see the heart, that we are glad and joyful in remembring his Goodness. We must not stand mute, but our tongues must affect our hearts, and the hearts of all about us; that every mans light may shine clearly, and our neighbours torch may be kindled at our fire, till the several sparks of gratitude that lie hid in single hearts be blown up and united into one flame, bright as the blaze of the Altar; and till we be turned into holy Joy and Love, which will be the effect of our zealous performing the outward part. But we must also be sure to let our Heart make an Unison with our Tongue, Eph. v. v. 19, &c. Rom. xv. 6. even to rejoice heartily, or else the grunting of Swine is not more harsh and unpleasant in our ears, than the best harmony of their voices in Gods, who only dwell on the sounds, and never observe the sense, nor excite any devout Affections: As a Caution against such Formality, there are four good Considerations proposed in these two Verses: First, the Person to whom these Praises are addressed, [unto the Lord] who sees our hearts, and cannot (as men) be deceived with verbal complements. Secondly, the reason why we praise him, because he is [the strength of our salvation] a rock of defence to us, and a mighty champion for us, and powerful rescuer of us, on whose Power and Mercy relies the strength of all our hopes for this world and the next. Thirdly, the Place where we praise him, we are [before his presence] in those Assemblies where he peculiarly manifests himself. The

* See D. Hammond Annot. on Psal. lxxxix. ver. 26. [1] Syr. Potentissimus meus liberator. Et LXX. Ἀντιλήψωρ, &c.

Jews were before the Ark, but St Paul teacheth us that we come into the Holiest of all, for we Christians are admitted into the Presence-Chamber, and if we mock him, we do it to his very face. Fourthly, the manner in which he expects to be praised, even that we be [glad in him] and rejoice in the Lord, not with the mirth of a Theatre, loose and voluptuous, but with the joys of Cherubins, and all those Celestial Orders, whose Joy is kindled from the pure beams of the Divine Love. These things as seriously thought on as they are frequently repeated, would spiritualize our Joy, and help us both in heart and voice to glorifie the Fountain of all good.

§.IV. Ver. 3, 4, 5. For the Lord is a great God, &c. 'Tis impossible we should do any action chearfully till we are informed of the reason why it must be done; but when the Understanding is convinced fully, the Will chooseth freely, and then all the faculties of the Soul and members of the Body, lend their help readily to put it in execution. For which cause these three Verses contain the Reasons of and Motives to that Duty of praising God in heart and voice, to which the former Verses exhort us: For as the Subjects of great Princes celebrate their Masters Praises, and with proud Hyperboles set forth the greatness of their Power, the multitude of their Vassals, the largeness of their Dominions, and the excellency of their Atchievements: So we do here praise the King of Kings and our particular Benefactor; for we are more obliged to glorifie him, and can more justly commend him upon all these accounts, than the Favourites of the greatest Monarch upon earth; they are forc'd to magnifie small matters, and add many, to fill up their Lords Character; but we need only relate the truth, even that our God is (1.) infinite and immense in himself, (2.) absolute solute and supreme in his Authority, (3.) universal and unlimited in his Dominions, (4.) glorious and admirable in his works; all which will quicken our Praises, if we consider them severally as they are laid down in order in these Verses.

§.V. Ver 3. The Lord is a great God,] First, let us view his essential greatness and immensity, which places him without the bounds of our apprehension;

† Hoc est quod Deum aestimari facit, dum aestimari non capit. Tert. Apol.

Nec videri potest visu clarior, nec comprehendi tactu purior, nec aestimari sensu major est, & ideo sic eum dignè aestimamus dum inæstimabilem diximus. Cyp.

Β Αὐτὸς ἑαυτοῦ τίπας, καὶ αὐτὸς ἑαυτοῦ πλήρης, καὶ ἰκανὰ ὄντα πληρῶν, καὶ περιέχων, αὐτὸς δι' ὧν ἕδενός ἄλλα περιέχεται. Philo.

but he is so much the more to be esteemed^f, because he cannot be comprehended : Our Senses cannot represent him, nor can those Thoughts (that can measure both Heaven and Earth) contain him, who is not so properly said to be in the World, as the World is in him; for he is every where^g, but is confined no where, and though to pursue this Contemplation would amaze our Understandings, rather than help our Devotion, yet it will teach us to be humble, and to supply with Admiration what we cannot conceive clearly nor explicate fully; and it will engage us to extol him as much as is possible, that our Praises may bear some proportion with his Greatness. Yet let us believe that whatever we say or think of him here, is so far short of what he really is, that when we are admitted to the Beatifick Vision, we shall confess with that Queen, that the one half was never told us, 1 Kings x. 6, 7, 8.

§.VI. And a great King above all Gods.] Secondly, let us take notice of his Supremacy over all, not only Men but Gods; for though there be no other

God

God, but he alone, yet there are many to whom that name is given, 1 Cor. viii. 5. Idolaters give it to deceased Heros and Demons, of which Eusebius out of Hesiod reckons 30000, and St. Augustin advances the sum to 300000, every one of which was honoured with magnificent Temples, sumptuous Altars, costly and pompous Rites and Sacrifices, curious Images and rich Statues; they were attended with millions of Priests, maintain'd at the publick Charge, enriched with large Donatives, advanced to the highest Dignities: And all this done by Kings and Emperors, Senators and Philosophers; the greatest, richest and wisest in the world, in honour of a Creature, nay a Devil, which is but a slave to our great and glorious God; and if such honours are paid them, what doth he that is both their and our Master, deserve from us? O ye Christians, when ye go about to praise the true God, behold the smoking Altars and bleeding Sacrifices, the triumphant Processions and solemn Addresses which are paid so freely by the slaves of Satan, and be ashamed of your rude and cheap worshipping him that is far above all Gods; consider the pleasing Harmony of rarest Voices and sweetest Instruments, which wait upon the Hymns of those that tremble at the Name of your Lord, and blush to offer up either flat or feigned Gratulations: As you have the greatest God, so let him have the noblest Adorations. Again, Angels are called Gods^b, and it may be applied to them; they are so glorious that those holy men to whom they have appeared could scarce refrain from giving them Divine Adoration: They are truly admirable for the brightness of their Presence, the swiftness of their Motion, clearness of their Knowledge, and greatness of their Power; yet these are but the Officers of his Courts and Executors of his Will, who pay him their Duty with loud Praise veiled Faces and submit Prostrations. Now if the Attendants be bright as the Sun, quick as Lightning and powerful as Thunder; what is he that is the Lord? What Songs of Eucharist doth he observe. Lastly, the Governors of this world are also called by the name of *Gods*¹, but they are his Creatures, and they have no power but from him; Exod. xxi. 6. Ps. lxxxii. 1. & cxxxviii. 1 no honour but as they administer his Rights and represent his Person; and can you see their large Retinues and solemn Observances, or hear the strained Praises which their flattering Parasites cast upon them, who are your Lords Servants and Tributaries; and will you give less to the King of Kings, the Lord of Angels and Men, even of the highest of the Rulers of this Earth?

^b Psal. viii. 6. & Psal. xcvi. 7. compared with Heb. i. 6.

¹ Βασιλεῖς — Οἱ ἐν ἀνδράσι. Pythag. apud Stob. Principes inter Deorum. Tacit. Annal. 2.

§. VII. Ver. 4. In his hand are all the corners of the earth; and the strength of the hills is his also. Thirdly, let us take a prospect of the Vastness and Immensity of his Empire, which hath no other limits than those of the Universe; for both Sea and Land are in his hand, that is, in his power, under his command, and at his disposal; so are the most hidden and secret corners² of the earth, into which mans eye cannot search, and also the inaccessible tops of the loftiest mountains¹ which are scarce to be reckoned among the Dominions of earthly Kings, being either fortified by Robbers and so impregnable, or deserted by the Husbandman and so unserviceable: Yet the dark

² Abstrusissima terræ. Varab.

¹ Lassitudines montium. Heb.

darkest Caverns and highest Rocks and Mountains, which own no other Lord, even they are his, his Eyes discern the one and his Power can reach the other. His Dominion reacheth to the corners or uttermost parts of the earth (as some here read ¹) to far as no Princes Armies could penetrate nor perhaps People inhabit; yet these parts of the world are his, and those vast Mountains (whose immovableness is the emblem of his unshaken and eternal Principality) are as so many natural Bulwarks for the defence of his Kingdom, which takes in the Inhabitants of Heaven, the Armies of the Abyss, and is larger than the World, stronger than the most inassailable Mountains. This King of Kings and Lord of the Universe may challenge the most hearty and humble Praises from his Servants: Which we might further improve from their Allegorical Exposition of these words, who apply them to the several conditions of men, Psal. lxxii.3. & cxlviii.9. for although he be so great, the meanest and poorest are not below his notice, and though he condescend so far, yet the very richest and greatest (terrible as the Hills of the Robbers) are not above his Power; but he rules and orders all, so that nothing happens to Kings or Slaves but by his permission, and therefore he may expect Glory from all sorts of persons.

¹ LXX. μέγιστα. Vulg. Fines. Psal. cxxxix.7.

§.VIII. Ver.5. The Sea is his, and he made it, and his hands prepared the dry Land.] Fourthly, let us consider the greatness of his Works, and we shall see the Arch of Heaven, the Pillars of the Earth, and the Fountains of the great Deep, were contrived by his Wisdom, and finished by his Power; so that without boasting, he may say of this goodly Fabrick, as the vain Assyrian did of his Royal City, Dan. iv. 30.

and none can contradict him. The words Sea and Land are the two principal parts, and put for the whole World, and these are his by right of Creation, which sure is the justest Title. But the making of the Sea, and adorning the dry Land, is rather here mentioned, because there is a special mark of his Wisdom and Providence in making that separation (observed by the very Heathens.) "For he hath bound that unfixed Element in a girdle of Sand which it cannot break; and not only restrained it from overflowing us, but made it serve our necessities, and lend its help for the intercourse and mutual supplies of the most distant Nations. And by these two words of Sea and Land, we must understand all the Furniture of both, which yield us such variety of Provisions: All these are Gods Creatures, but by him freely assigned to our use, desiring no other tribute from us, but to pay those Praises to our bountiful Lord and noble Benefactor, which none of the dumb Creatures can do; and since he hath given us Tongues, we shall be most ingrateful, if we glorifie him not with them. Philo tells us of a Prophet, who upon a sight of the whole world (before the Creation of Man) was asked if there wanted any thing to complete so brave a Work; he answered there needed nothing but one to explain that goodly Work, and glorifie the Maker of it: And then (saith Philo) was Man created and brought into this stately Theatre to do those Offices. It is pity you should have Eyes to see, Ears to hear, Mouths to tast, and Souls to judge and apprehend, if you have not Hearts and Tongues to sing the Encomiums of this great King, who hath made all things so wonderfully, and given them to you so freely. You are Pirats and Robbers, if you seize the Provisions of

^{See} Grot. de Verit. Relig. Christ, l. i. c. 7.

Sea

Sea or Land, and do not heartily give thanks to the Lord of them. Let the serious apprehension of all this tune your Hearts and Voices to sing Praises in the highest, to so great a God, so high a Lord, of so vast Perfections, and endless Dominions, of so infinite Power, and such noble Bounty, that you owe your selves and all you have to him.

§. IX. Ver. 6, 7. Come let us worship and fall down and kneel before the Lord our Maker : For he is the Lord our God, and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand.] The people of the East exceeded all others in their expressions of Reverence to their Kings; and in Persia it was established by Law, that they should adore their Prince as the visible Image of God; so that (as Curtius notes) Darius re-α Τὸ πρῶτον βασιλεία καὶ προσκυνοῦν εἰκόνα Θεοῦ τῷ πάντα σώζοντι. Artabanus.

ceived divine honour from his Subjects. But we are now before the King of Kings, whose Empire is universal, and his Dominions boundless, and therefore we may well advise one another to use the most lowly Gestures that may express our holy Fear of and awful Regard to so great a Majesty. Prostration of the Body (the greatest sign of Honour among those Nations) is now out of use; but kneeling is still used in our addresses to mortal Princes, and is now among us an expression of the greatest civil respect from Inferiours: Wherefore let us not repine if we be commanded to kneel before our great God, the Lord of Heaven and Earth; since it was a Custom used by the Jews, and by Christ himself, recommended by Scripture, and great examples of early observance in the Christian

• Genuflexionem in Oratione, tam ex Divinâ quàm Humanâ traditione provenisse agnoscit. Calvin. Instit. lib. 4.

¶ Vid. Euseb. l. 5. c. 5.
An. Christi 170. Ge-nua flectimus orantes.
Origen. in Numb.

Church^e, and having the unanimous consent of all pious men.
But he that shall behold the abominable Irreverence and saucy Behaviour now used in our Devotions, will think it no more than needs for us severely to reprove the people for it. For if the antient Fathers (who had not so ¶ Diacono clamante flectamus genua, maxi-mam partem populi velut columnas erectas stare conspicio, quod Christi-anis dum in Ecclesiâ oratur, nec licet nec ex-pedit. Casarius Are-lat. Hom. 30. Vid. item Hieron. in Eph. c. 5.

much cause) rebuked such as did stand at Prayers^e, well may we complain of such, and both by our Words and Examples daily to say to them, O come let us kneel, not to Idols or Images the works of your hands (as Heathens and some, that are called Christians do) but to the Lord your maker, who made both your Soul and Body, and expects Reverence from both; especially in publick, where you are by outward reverence to give testimony of your inward fear of his holy Name; and as Christ saith, He that hath ears, &c. so I say, He that hath knees to kneel let him kneel to him that is the glorious maker of the whole Man, nay of the whole World. But we may observe that though all these words are used to express outward Reverence, yet [Worship] is a general Word and signifies all parts of Gods Service, and especially Prayer, John iv. 24.

Acts viii. 27. so that to worship may here signifie to pray, and as before we encouraged one another to praise God; so now having represented the Omnipotency and All-sufficiency of God. we invite one another to pray to this great God and mighty King, who made all creatures. and disposeth of all things, and can relieve us whatever our wants be; we need not fear to ask what he cannot do, or to be sent back for want

want of power to help (as the suitors to great Kings sometimes are, 2 Kings vi. 27.) Have we such a God then? And shall we be slow to worship him, or careless and unmannerly when we make our applications to him? No sure, if we love our selves, we shall make hast to come, and be reverent when we are before him. If we want any thing, and do not pray to him for it, he may justly suppose we question his Power or Sufficiency, and take it very ill; but if we pray to him with humility, he never accounts it boldness, but accepts it as an acknowledgment that we believe his Authority and Supremacy and a declaration of our dependence upon him, who is our maker, and therefore will be our Preserver; for no man makes a curious piece and then suffers it to decay by minding it no further; much less will God despise the work of his own hands, when he can so easily preserve us. This is the first Motive to our putting Petitions to this great God, because he is our maker; but on this ground all the Heathen World is as much obliged, and hath as good cause of hopes as we, because he hath created them as well as Christians. But in ver. 7. we are taught, an especial Obligation lies upon us (besides what concerns all Mankind) because he is our God, and we are his People. The Jews were once so, but now they are rejected for unbelief and we adopted into his Family*, being admitted nearer to God than ever they were; so that he may justly expect we should worship him and pray to him, for every Nation calls on their God, though a feigned Deity, Micah iv. 5. But he is the Lord whom we adore, and therefore able; he is our God, and consequently willing to grant our requests: There is a mutual Covenant between him and us, he will defend us with an especial

* Ephes. ii. 19. Gr.
Οἱ κλητοὶ τοῦ Θεοῦ.

Provi-

Providence, and we must serve him with an extraordinary Devotion. O blessed are we who have this Almighty and most glorious Lord and Ruler of all the World for our God! Why do we look disconsolate or complain of our wants to them that either will not pity us or cannot help us? Let us go to the Lord, and complain to our God, for his is all that Power and Glory of which we heard before. We did not choose him, but he chose us to be his Flock, Psal. xxiii. 1. John xv. 16. he feeds us and folds us, we eat in his Pasture, and are defended by his band; for our being under his band, Gen. xxxix. 8. John xiii. 19. Dent. xxxviii. 3. Numb. xxxiii. 1. denotes his care of us, and undertaking to lead us and keep us, and we are called his Sheep, that is, his Subjects; for a Shepherd is put for a King in Scripture, and Sheep for Subjects; his Pasture, shews he feeds us, his Hand expresseth his ruling of us; wherefore if we want any good,

† Zech. xi. 6. Ποιμνὴς αἰὼν. See both Offices joined in two words, Psal. lxxviii. 72, 73.

let us remember our God feeds all, much more his own sheep; let us pray to him therefore and he will furnish: Or if we fear any evil, let us call to mind his Hand is over us, his particular Providence is engaged for us, he watches over us night and day. Let us but trust in him and pray to him for the continuance of what we have, and the supply of what we want, and we need fear no evil, no cunning Fox, nor ravenous Wolf shall ever be able to pluck us out of his Hand.

§.X. Ver. 8. [To day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts as in the provocation, and in the day of temptation in the wilderness.] This first Sentence in the Hebrew is annexed to the former Verse, as the Condition on which God will accept us as his

Sheep

Sheep, and answer our Prayers, viz. We are the Sheep of his Pasture, if we will bear his voice to day; for his own sheep always do so, John x.4. and so must we follow our Shepherd, who goes before us by his example * and calls us after him by the voice of his word, otherwise we reject him from being a Shepherd over us, and so he may justly cast us off. But the Greek Interpreters begin (as we do in imitation of them) a new Sentence here; and are warranted so to do by the change of the person, which (is often used in Holy Writ, but) hath a peculiar Emphasis here; hitherto we have been speaking to one another to stir up our hearts to praise God, and to pray to him. Now the Holy Ghost himself, Heb. iii.7. (to shew that all our Devotions will be in vain unless we should resolve to obey " Gods Word) is brought in warning us to hear the voice of God, as we expect he should hear our Petitions : Wherefore it is expressed with Majestick Authority [if ye will;] You may if you will, I will enable you to do it, and it is best for you so to do, and I advise you to it; or as others [if ye will] implies a wish *; O that ye would hearken and obey; for it is not unfrequent for God to wish we would do that, which he knows to be for our good : He could make us do it by his Omnipotency, but he would not deal with us as with irrational Creatures by force, but by intreaty †, because he abhors such constrained Obedience : He sends his Word and his Servants every day, and gives us sufficient Grace every day,

* Joh.x.3. See D.Hammonds Annotations.

† Prov.i. v.24. compared with v.28.

* Ita ¶ si, per, ¶ utinam. Exod. xxxii. 32. & ei. Luke xix.42. & c. xxii.42.

† Deut. iv. 29. & ch. xxxii. 29. Deus non eo modo quo per causas naturales agit, movet hominum voluntates, sed alliciendo. Maimon.

so that we may hear and do his Will every day, if our wilful obstinacy hinder not; and if it do, he is grieved for us because we will die; Matth. xxiii. 37. Methinks it should melt our hearts to hear our gracious God so passionately with, and so earnestly call for our Conversion, and to consider how he hath long in vain waited for it, adding one day to another even Τὸ ὅτι οὐκ ἔστιν ἡμέρα ἡμετέρα. Clem. Alex. Protreptico.

Hodie istud permanebit usque ad finem seculi. RR.

to this very day; yet we put him off, when forought we know this may be our last Day, and then everlasting Night begins with us; and though others have their [be die] still, we must then never more hear this word, this sweet [to day], if we would give all the world for it. O foolish People, how carelessly do you let this irrecoverable Treasure, this present day pass away and never consider the loss, till it be too late! The Devil and your wicked hearts say to day you are too busie, too much taken up in other concerns, and to morrow you will hear his Voice, and do his Will. But the Holy Ghost saith, If ye will hear it must be to day; for this day is yours, but to morrow is his whom you provoke by casting away this: and how dare you promise what is anothers? Or how can you expect God should give you more time when you so despise this you have? It is likely you shall never see another day, because the more time you have the more you mock God, and the further you put him off. However, Gods Word read or preached sounds in your ears this one day more, to try if yet you will so hear it as to observe it (which is the only right hearing, Gen. xlii. 22.) if not, though your day of Grace hath lasted long, it shall quickly have an end: The Jews had their To day, but they would not hear, and now they have it no more, let us beware by their sad example. Now the cause of these dangerous delays, as the good Spirit teacheth us it is hardness of heart; and lest any should pretend their hearts were obdurate by nature, we are here charged that we do not harden them, to intimate it is wilful obstinacy not natural disability^a:

God is ready to take away the stony heart from all who are in covenant with him, if they did not wilfully resist the Holy Ghost, Exod. xxxvi. 26 Acts vii. 51. like the deaf Adder stopping their ears; and if we consult St. Paul,

^a Quibus verbis indicatur non ex alio fonte manare nostram adversus Deum rebellionem, quàm ex voluntariâ improbitate, dum illius gratiæ aditum obstruimus. Calv. in Heb. iii. 8.

we shall find the true causes of hardness of heart are: First, Unbelief (Heb. iii. 12.) both of the Threatnings pronounced against Sin, and of the Promises made unto Holiness, as if they should never be performed; for hence it is that men go on stupidly in sin, and fear no evil, and slight all the ways of Holiness, which they think are tedious and unprofitable; though the Divine Truth affirm the contrary, yet as long as men believe not, all our calls and Gods also are in vain. A second cause of hardening us is the deceitfulness of sin (Heb. iii. 13.) which promiseth present Pleasures and Profits, with all sensual Satisfaction, and if men believe Sathan in this, which is so false, and doubt of or deny all that the God of Truth affirms, what Thunder can awaken them? They will answer to all the calls of God and his Spirit, that they will not leave their Fatness, Judg. ix. 9, 11. and sweetness, they feel no harm in those ways and find carnal content in them; but do not expect any Pleasure in or Reward for the other, if they could do them. Why then do you make excuses, or complain that you are not softened and bettered by the Word of God. Behold the true cause: You come

Quid ergo miramini vos que in Scholam affertis, ea domum referre? Num ut decreta vel abjecturi, vel correcturi, vel commutaturi advenitis? Arrian. in Epist. l. 2. c. 21.

come to his House ^b, resolved not to forsake any of your evil courses, you trust the Devil, and believe not him that speaketh from heaven. But take heed and behold a sad example of those hard-hearted Jews who dealt thus with God at Massah and Meribah (which words signify Provocation and Temptation) they lusted for Water, and because they were not presently supplied, they blasphemed God, questioned his Providence, doubted of his Promises, and were so hardened by their Lust, that they feared not his dreadful Indignation, which therefore fell upon them. This day is made by God a day of mercy, but if you hearken to your lusts, and will not hear the calls of God, if you doubt his Promises and despise his Threatnings as they did, you will turn this day of Grace into a day of Provocation and Temptation, and perhaps of Destruction and Desolation, as you do deserve.

§. XI. Ver. 9, 10, 11. When your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works : Forty years long was I grieved with this generation, and said, It is a people that do err in their hearts, for they have not known my ways : Unto whom I swore in my wrath that they should not enter into my rest. The Jews were wont to boast that they followed the steps of their Forefathers, and so they did, but not of the best of them; not of Abraham, who no sooner heard Gods Voice, but he was obedient to it, John viii. 38. Gen. xvii. 23. but they followed the steps of those obstinate and provoking Wretches which God delivered out of Egypt, conducted in the Wilderness, and sustained them there with bread from heaven; yet they did frequently and continually discover their

diso-

dience and unbelief, by inventing strange ways and prove the Patience and Fidelity of God, being rude and insolent in every denial, discontent and amorous if they had not every day a new Miraculous Provision to them and Care of them; yet upon every occasion they conclude, that they had neither Labour towards them, nor his Presence among them.

God indeed was so merciful that he suffered their evil manners forty years, Acts xiii. 18. but without loathing and abhor-rence and high indignation; and when he did not presently destroy them, yet he gave sufficient Evidence only that he was displeased with their Dealings. They ask-Acts xiii. 10. Δυσχερύνω Aqu. & Sym. Cum tadio pertali. Var. Fastidio habui. Jun. & Trem.

any thing of God they wanted, and were impatient of denial, but yet they would deny Gods call to Obeyance every day: And thus they erred in their Conceptions and formed wrong notions of him, falsely imagining to be heard without obedience, or else wretchedly concluding God was not able or not willing to perform good his Promises. And yet as they erred in their Conceptions, so God made them err and wander in the desolate Wilderness, and he grew so highly indignant at last at their obstinacy and unbelief, that he remarkably proposed (which is expressed by taking an Oath) that they should none of them come into that Land of Canaan, nor enjoy that rest, which they sometimes desired and preferred Egypt before it, and others doubted whether ever they could obtain it; so notwithstanding all their Privileges and all that God had done for them, these vile returns provoked him to destroy them in the Wilderness, and make good that Promise to their Children which the Fathers had had made themselves unworthy of. This is the of this sad example, and of what happened to t

1 Cor. X. 11. Omne quod evenit patribus fignum fuit filiis. Moses Gerund. in Gen. xii.

Jews for our Learning *, an David set it before the men of time, and St. Paul before t of his, so doth our Church d set it before you for a warning, that you may not they did, lest you perish as they did. You are deliv by Christ from the bondage of Sin and Satan, you the chosen people of God, Pilgrims in the Wil ness of this world, and travellers to the heavenly naan; and here is set before you some that of old milcarry, that you may shun those paths that led t to ruin; and that you may hearken to Gods C believe his Promises, despise Egypt, and be con with his Providence, and then you shall arrive at desired rest. Otherwise do not encourage your s because God spares you, and think you may deny to day as you did yesterday; for he may suffer t abuses from you many years, and be highly prov against you in his own brest, though his Anger b not out in your destruction presently; Take heed trifle not and mistake, till God vow your dep tion; for then you are irrecoverably lost. T Israelites were going to a temporal Canaan, an died only temporally (for ought we know,) and only that pleasant Land. But we are invited heavenly Rest, and if we provoke God as they our loss is ten thousand times greater, and we die eternally. Acquaint your selves therefore Gods ways, and do not delight in such destroying stakes as these. He is merciful to those that obey and will perform all the expectations of his fai Servants; but those that presume he should do them, and yet continue to stop their ears, thou are them long, yet he will cut them off at last : which being so certain, and having so plain an Example this day propounded to you, I hope you will this day hearken to the Invitations that you hear out Gods Word, and resolve now to begin a new course of life : And if this have so good an effect, you will have great cause to bless God for sparing you so long, warning you so seriously, and giving you this one essential call more, and then you may well conclude this Divine Hymn with Glory be to the Father, &c. As was in the beginning, &c. Amen.

The Paraphrase of the XCV. Psalm.

Verse 1. [Come] with all speed, and [let us] who are here met together in the house of God, with loud and chearful Voices [sing unto the Lord,] and having our Affections raised by the remembrance of his mercy [let us] not only outwardly and vocally, but inwardly and [heartily rejoice in] him that is the Rock of our defence, the Foundation of our hope, and [the strength] on which we rely for the fruition [of our salvation.]

Ver. 2. He is present every where, but especially where we assemble to worship him, therefore [let us come] into his House, where we are immediately [before his presence] having our hearts filled [with thanksgiving] and gratitude for all his favours : And the more to set forth his love, and quicken our Brethren, let us openly rejoice [and shew our selves glad in him] not with any vain mirth, but [with Psalms,] which are indited by his Spirit, and appointed by the Church, as Forms of our daily Praises.

Ver. 3. And we have great reason to glorifie with Heart and Voice [for the Lord] Jehovah [is a great God] infinite and incomprehensible Essence, He is supreme and absolute in his Dominion [and a great King] commanding over Angels of Heaven, Devils of Hell, and the greatest earthly Monarchs being far [above all] that are supposed or called [Gods] and therefore deserves a nobler Worship than is due to any Creature.

Ver. 4. He is not limited in his Providence to this City, or confined to a single Province, but [in his hands] and power, under his Rule and Government [are all the] remotest and most secret [corners of the earth] no place is too far for his reach, too deep for discovery, or too strong for his power, for the height [and the strength of the hills] which are inaccessible to men, these [are his also,] and serve for the Bulwark of his Kingdom.

Ver. 5. He is the Lord of all the World, and commandeth over that unruly Abyss of Waters [the Sea] which he binds in fetters of Sand, that it should harm us, he hath given it to us, and makes it serve our needs, because it [is his] by an unquestionable Title, for he created [and he made it,] and therefore ought to give laws to it, and dispose of it and all the earth, because he took away the covering of snow from the ground, [and his hands] made Herbs, Fruits, Birds and Beasts, and so furnished and prepared the dry Land] to be a habitation for the children of men.

Ver. 6. [O some] then, since we have so great and All-sufficient a God, [let us] not only praise him for what we have, but also pray unto him [worship] him for the relief of all our Needs with all possible Zeal and Sincerity in our hearts.

with all lowliness and reverence in our postures; let us bow [and fall down] on our faces [and kneel] to so glorious a King, behaving our selves most humbly [before the Lord] who is able to do all things, and being [our maker] deserves to be worshipped with both Soul and Body.

Ver. 7. And our peculiar interest in him may encourage us to pray him, [for he is the Lord] in whom we believe, who calleth himself [our God.] and although he made all men, yet he hath especially made himself known to us, [and we are the people] whom he feeds with his Word and Sacraments, and whom he hath chosen to be the flock [of his pasture,] for he himself may watch over us day and night, to secure us from Sin and Satan, we are his especial Subjects [and the sheep] that shall ever be preserved by the care of his eye, and the power of his hand,] if we come at his Call and hearken to his Voice.

Ver. 8. O ye peculiar People of God, observe therefore how his Ministers and his Spirit do every day invite you to Repentance, saying [to day] after you have lost so many days, and have so few remaining; while this day is in your power, it will be well for you [if ye will hear] and obey [his voice,] and that he may not call in vain, take heed you wilfully [barden not your hearts] by delighting in the pleasures of Sin, by doubting of the promises, or slighting the Threatnings of God; for the event will be as sad [as in the provocation] of the Divine Anger by the unbelieving Israelites at Meribah, [and in the day of] their presumptuous temptation] of Gods Patience at Massah [in the wilderness] of Sin after they came out of Egypt.

Ver. 9. This Example God set before the Posterity of those obstinate Jews, saying to them (as now he doth to you) remember the time [when your Fathers] in whom you glory, disobeyed my Commands, questioned my Providence, and durst not trust my Promises, but [tempted me] by requiring Miracles from me to satisfy their Lusts, and by this they supposed to have [proved me] and made trial of my Power and Love; although they received a miraculous deliverance, [and saw] all the rest of [my works,] which were so wonderful, they would have convinced any but such stubborn Wretches.

Ver. 10. For all this I forbore them (as I have done some of you) full [fourty years,] and spared them from utter destruction, yet still they were rebellious as at first, so [long was I grieved with] the perverseness of [this generation.] At last when nothing would amend them, I declared my utter detestation of them [and said] of those whom I had once chosen, [it is a people] whom nothing can reclaim, a refractory crew [that do err in their hearts] concerning me, imagining me faithless and false, or weak and impotent; and no wonder, [for they have not known] nor never would observe [my ways,] viz. to destroy presumptuous sinners, but to give Grace and Glory to holy and humble men which put their trust in me.

Ver. 11. Wherefore I warn you all to take heed lest you refuse to hear my voice, and neglect to repent to day; for so you will provoke me to deal with you, as I did with them [unto whom I swore] and stedfastly resolved [in my wrath,] being justly incensed at their baseness, [that they should] all perish in the Wilderness, and for all their confi-

confidence, that one of them should [not enter into] the blessed Land of Promise, nor partake of [my rest:] So I cut them off for disobedience and unbelief, and I will keep all such out of the heavenly Jerusalem; Lo, I have said it, that you may be warned and turn in time. Glory be to the Father, &c.
As it was in the beginning, &c.

SECTION VIII.

Of the daily Use of the Psalms in Morn and Evening Prayer.

§. I. THE Book of Psalms seems to be a Col lection of those devout Hymns where holy men did praise God upon publ or private occasions, being fitted to all conditions the Church, and of particular persons also. T are Divine Prayers and Praises indited by the Sp of God, with such admirable variety that we n easily collect a Form from thence, either to petit for any thing we need, or to glorifie the Name God for any mercy we have received. Where they are used and commended by Christians, Je and Mahometans also. And although we have ny differences among the several Parties that are led Christians, yet all agree to make use of these comparable and sacred Anthems; so that Cassan designed to compose a Liturgy out of them, i might serve his purpose of universal Accommodat and be received by all Christians. This joint Con and universal Approbation, will make it needless spend much time to commend what all admire.

it were easie to reckon up th

^a Virtutum organum, excellent Titles ^a and honour Ambr. Theologia com- Characters ^b which have been pensium, Basil. Epitome
totius Scripturæ, Athan. Parva Biblia, Luth. ^b Psalms benec Populi est, Dei laus, plebis laudatio, plausus omnium, sermo univ rum, vox Ecclesiæ, fidei canora confessio, &c. Vid. Ambr. Præf. ad ven them. They are called the instrument of Virtue, the marrow of Divinity, the store-house of Devotion, the Epitome of Holy Scripture. They contain excellent Forms to bless the People, to praise God, to rejoice in his Favour, to bewail his Absence, to confess our fault, to crave Pardon of our sins, deliverance from our Enemies, and all Blessings for the Church of God. In the use of them we ought to exercise all Graces, Repentance and Faith, Love and Fear of God, Charity to all men, and Compassion to the miserable, with all the Virtues of a Christian Soul : The Composition of them declares they are fitted for men of all Ages and Degrees, in all Estates and Conditions, young and old ; King, Priests and People ; in Prosperity and Adversity, here they may find that which so exactly suits them all, as if their condition had been foreseen, and particularly provided for ; and if any who grant this shall except, That many of the Psalms are not applicable to their condition, I shall confidently affirm, that as devout men in their enjoyment of the Divine Favour, can be humbled in using the Complaints for want of it, which were uttered by better men, and thereby they are moved to see what they deserve, and to consider what many of their Brethren want : so on the contrary, a pious man under trouble of spirit can by the spiritual rejoicings there described, behold the goodness of God to others, and foresee his own deliverance, receiving thereby additions to his Faith, Hope and Patience. He that forgives his Enemies, and wisheth well to all particular persons, may repeat those Curses delivered in this Book, as Predictions of the miseries like to befall the inveterate enemies of Religion, or as Deprecations against Sin and Satan, and all the spiritual Enemies of our Souls, which are the Amalek with whom we must have an endless War, and whose extirpation we must endeavour and pray for. The like might be said of all the rest in all other cases, but this may suffice to justify the Church in more frequent using these Psalms than any other part of Gods Word, because this is committed to the

Historia instruit, lex docet, prophetia annunciat, correctio castigat, moralitas suadet, in libro Psalmorum profectus omnium est. Ambr. ut supra.

1 Chron. xvi. 7. ad

ver. 27. collected out of the cv. xcvi. and cvii. Psalms. Ab eo tempore ordinariè post-bas Deus fuit celebra-

tus Psalmis & sacrâ

Musica. Ofiander. See

1 Chron. xxv. 2.

Et versus alios complures à Psalmis Davidicis recitare solent, &c.

Buxi. Synag. c. 5.

1 Cor. xiv. 26. Col.

iii. 16. Επεσς τις τῶν

ᾠδῶν Δαβὶδ ψαλλέτω ὑ-

μεις, καὶ ὁ λαὸς τὰ αἰρεσίστα ὑποψαλλέ-

τω. Const. Apost. l. 2.

c. 57.

Psalmorum oracula &

domi canunt & in foro circumferunt. Basil. in Psal. i.

See Euseb. Hist. l. 9. c. 1. and more fully D. Hammonds Preface the quintessence of all Scripture and most accommodated for Worship and Devotion : So it was esteemed by the Jews, and therefore the greatest part of the Temple-Service consisted of Forms contrived out of the Psalms, and Masters of the Choir, who used those Forms, and praised God by them long after David's time, 2 Chron. xxix. 30. yea at this very day their Liturgy is an extract principally out of these Psalms, and no man is ignorant how constantly the Primitive Christians used them in their Assemblies, insomuch that the very Women, the Children and meanest Mechanics could say them by heart, and sung them at home and abroad, even about their labours; making them at once the exercise of their Piety, and the Refreshment of their minds, recreating themselves and glorifying God; and hereby they had Answers ready to oppose to all Satans Temptations, and the most illiterate might pray to God or praise him in any circumstances, by a Form of his own inditing. How happy should we be, if we were now as perfect in them ! The best way to be so is to frequent the Church daily where they are used, and there we shall at once be refreshed with the Musick, and instructed by the frequent Recital of them ; we shall at the same time be pleased and profited ; we shall have holy Principles^b conveyed into our minds with pleasure.

O sapiens Doctoris inventum, qui simul canere, & utilia nos discere excogitavit ! Basil. ut supra.

§. II. And for this cause, I suppose, the Musick which these sacred Songs were first set to, is still continued in the Church, (as it was among the Jews and best Christiansⁱ) which ought to mind us of the Musick of the celestial Choir, and will calm our Souls, and gently raise our Affections^k, putting us into a fit posture to glorifie our Father which is in heaven, and sweetning these pious Lessons that will take the deeper root, when the heart is first mollified and prepared to receive them ; for sure he is of a rugged temper, and hath an ill-composed Soul, who feels not these effects of that grave and pleasant harmony which doth accompany this Office ; and we may fear he is not of David's spirit, whose Ears are offended, whose Spirit is disturbed, or his Devotion hindred, by vocal or instrumental Musick. But, O ye prudent and pious Christians, who bring no prejudices against these things, you know how oft your Souls have been rapt Ad S. Altare iterum rediens Psalmorum incipit Melos, concinentibus secum sacra carmina omnibus Ecclesiastici ordinis gradibus. Dionys. Areop. c.3. Vid. item Euseb. l.2. c.17. Eccl. Hist.

k Grotius in 1 Sam. x. v.5.

up with Ecstasies of Devotion, and your minds fill'd with Idea's of the celestial Glory, and your hearts enflamed with strong Affections by these sweet strains. Wherefore do you endeavour (when you are so disposed by the Church-Musick) with Fervency and holy Ardors to bless the Name of God : And be sure you never omit to bear a part your selves in heart or voice, or both ; for so the Church requires, and so the People

¹ Exod. xv. v. 1. cum
20. עָנְתָּ Heb. cantit & respondere sibi.
Med. Diatrib.

of God in all Ages ¹ have sung their Hymns by turns and responses, supposing by this means they might best stir up each others Affections, and come nearest to the heavenly Pattern, where the Seraphims cry one to another, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of Hosts, Isai. vi. 3. And Socrates relates that Ignatius learned this way of singing from the Angels, and he first delivered it to “ Ὁμῶς αὖτε ὡς ἡλίου διὰ τοῦ ἀντιφωνῶν ὁμιλῶν τὸ ἀγῶν τελεῖν ὑμνῶντων, καὶ τὸν ἐόντων τῷ ὁραματὸς τῇ ἐν τῇ Ἀντιφωνίᾳ ἐναλλήλων παρῆλθεν, ὅθεν καὶ ἐν πάσαις ταῖς ἐκκλησίαις αὕτη ἡ ᾠδὴ δοῦναι ἐδόθη. Socrat.

Eccl. Hist. l. 6. c. 8.

the Christian Church “ which ever since doth zealously imitate them here, hoping to bear a part with them in their eternal Hallelujahs ; but our designed brevity will allow us no further to press these things, because our principal aim is to help Devotion, not satistic Curiosity, and therefore we will now treat of the means to use the daily Psalms to the benefit of our Souls.

§. III. There is not any part of Divine Service that might be of more general advantage than the use of the Psalms, if due care were taken by us of three things :

1. To be fitly disposed for them before we begin.
2. To be suitably affected, when we are about them.

3. To retain firmly those Affections afterwards; concerning each of which something must be said.

First, for Preparation, it is most certain that our Hearts are like an Instrument out of tune, and if we begin the melody of the Psalms before we have skrued up our Affections and set them to the right key, we shall make an unpleasing discord; for which cause the foregoing Offices of repentance are prudently appointed to be first performed; that we being thereby mollified and wound up into a frame of Devotion, may say, Our hearts are ready to sing and give praise, Psal. cviii. 1. And certainly we shall find the devout performance of the penitential part will incomparably fit us to say or sing David's Psalms with David's Spirit: For having confessed humbly, begged forgiveness earnestly, and received the news of our Absolution thankfully, our Hearts will be replenished with contrition and lowliness; and we shall find our Spirits tender, our Desires strong, our Affections elevated and fixed upon those things that are above: Then the Comforts and Promises will chear us; our sense of the wants of our Brethren, and our own Necessities will give wings to all the Petitions; our apprehensions of Gods goodness in Christ Jesus will beget such entire Love to him, that our very Souls shall mingle with our Praises; how easie and how deep Impressions will all these make upon the heart of a true Penitent, which an unrepentant man is not at all affected with! Consult but your own experience, which will convince you, that when by some sharp Affliction or serious Preparation, (before the Sacrament or the like your Affections have been moved to a humble and hearty repetition of the Publick Confession, then your Heart is much affected with David's devout Prayers and hearty Thanksgivings, and you easily apply them to your own case without a Monitor, and so you might be disposed every day, if you did daily confess your Sins with the same Affections and Dispositions. But we must prepare not only to sing with the spirit, but with understanding also, 1 Cor. xiv. 15. and therefore let us use all means we can * to know the meaning of these holy Psalms, which is not difficult to do; especially so far to understand them as to be able to know when David exhorts us, or praises God, or prays to him, that we may join with him in a right manner. And indeed a diligent attention will make that sufficiently plain, especially if we have seriously considered them in private.

▪ I advise those that are of ability, capacity and leisure, to read the Psalms for the day privately in D. Hammonds excellent Paraphrase before they go to Church: And for others to use the L^d Hattons Psalms with the Prayers fitted to them in the same manner.

Secondly, for suitable Affections in the reading or singing of them, we must take notice, that there is something more required in these Psalms than in other parts of holy Writ: For other parts of Scripture are read to us, and it sufficeth that we be careful to hear them reverently and attentively, willing to be instructed by them, and resolved to be obedient to them. But here we our selves do bear a part, and we are to speak them as our own words; we must pray for what is here desired, and praise God for those mercies which are here recorded, and this requires both an extraordinary attention, and also a suitable disposition of mind to the matter of the Psalm which we are repeating: So that it is necessary that we consider the subject of each of these Divine Canticles, and and endeavour to get our hearts into a temper agreeing^p thereunto, and so we shall sing these Psalms with such a spirit as they were composed^q: which blessed frame that Holy Spirit that first indited them, can only beget in us; and no tongue can tell what infinite delight, and ravishing pleasures, and mighty advantages we might then find in this employment: Wherefore having desired the assistance of the Divine Grace, be careful first to let your hearts go along with the matter of every Psalm, and secondly, to apply the [Gloria Patri] at the end of every Psalm, according as the subject doth require, in which perhaps these general Directions may be helpful to you. Observe there are four sorts of Psalms: 1. Psalms of Instruction. 2. Of Exhortation. 3. Of Supplication. 4. Of Thanksgiving: And though many are mixt compositions, containing all or most of these, yet all that is in any of them may be referred to one of these heads, and the devout Christian may learn by the following Rules to suit himself for any of them whether single or together.

• Τὴν βίβλον ταύτην ὁ λαμβάνων, ψάλλῃς ὡς ἰδίῳ ὄντας λόγους ἀναγινώσκει. Athan.
— Ὡς ἰδίᾳ ῥήματα λαλῶν ὅτι, καὶ ὡς περὶ αὐτῆς γεγραφένας αὐτοὺς ἔχεις. Idem.

^p Tuum spiritum affectu Psalmi forma; si affectus sit amoris ama, si timoris time, &c. Aug. in Psal. xxx.

^q Ad fruendum hunc thesaurum necesse est eodem spiritu Psalmos dicere quo fuerunt compositi. Cassian. Collat. 10. c. 10.

1. The Psalms of Instruction are plain Explications of: and profitable Meditations upon, some point of Religion; as about the Creation and Works of God, Psal. viii. and civ. about his Providence, Psal. xxxvii. and cxxxix. and cxlvi. concerning Christ his Passion, Psal. xxii. and lxix. his Resurrection and Ascension, Psal. ii. and xvi. and cx. or his coming to Judgment, Psal. l. and xcvii. &c. Now in these and the like Psalms we must make a hearty Confession of our belief of these Articles, we must be thankful to him that revealed

revealed them, and be careful to express those practical Inferences that are drawn from them in our Lives and Conversations, heartily desiring we may live by these holy Principles of Truth : In these we must exercise especially Faith and Love, concluding them with giving Glory to the Father, who hath made us partakers of a right Faith in his Son by his Spirit; and remembering that every Person of this glorious Trinity joins in these eminent Works of Creation, Providence, Redemption and Sanctification; let us heartily praise God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, for all that is done or designed for the Sons of men. Let thy Soul say, O Lord, I confess the truth of these things, I believe them fully, and I admire them highly, and will ever love thee for declaring them : I acknowledge thy Power in creating, thy Bounty in sustaining, thy Wisdom in ordering, and thy Mercy in relieving and preserving all the world; I discern thy Love in our Redemption, I hope in thy Might for a Resurrection to Life, and I trust in thy Mercy for a share in thy Glory, Glory be to the Father, &c. for all this.

2. The Psalms of Exhortation are serious Admonitions backt with powerful Motives, convincing Arguments and clear Examples; by which we are stirred either to some acts of Moral Virtue, Psal. xv. and cj. or to some Duties of positive Religion; to fear God, or study his Law, or observe his Will, Psal. i. and xxxiv. and cxix. or else we are warned against sin by Threatnings and Examples, Psal. vii. and lviii. and lxiv. particularly against distrust in God, by the history of his Providence over his own people, Psal. lxxviii. cv. cvi. That we may profit by these we must weigh the Promises and Motives to Holiness so seriously, that we may be convinced of our Folly in negle-

neglecting these Duties, and resolved to set upon the sincere Performance of them; and also we must consider the Evils that are appointed for and threatned to all sorts of Sins, and the sad Instances and Examples of Sinners that have been made miserable thereby, till we find our hearts moved with Fear and Penitence, and till we have taken up purposes of speedy forsaking those dangerous courses: So that here we are to exercise Humility and Repentance, Fear of God and pious Resolutions, which being finished, in the Dokology is a superadded act of Praise, to the Father for sparing us, to the Son for interceding for us, and to the Holy Ghost for warning and convincing us; and this Glory be to the Father, &c. doth declare, you are thankful for the Admonition, resolved to take warning, and full of hopes of the Divine Assistance to help you to forsake the evil and follow the good. In these Psalms take the same Resolutions which holy David did, and encourage your selves with the same hopes, love what he loves, desire what he longed for, believe and expect what he promiseth to himself, hate what he hated, take warning by what he observed, and fear the same sad event, if you go on in the same way with those Sinners that are made Examples to you; evermore praising God for those gracious discoveries; and saying, Glory be, &c.

3. The Psalms of Supplication are most ardent Petitions for all good things for your selves, your Brethren and the whole Church, in all circumstances and upon all occasions. These are private Prayers for Pardon of Sin, Psal. xxv. and li. and cxliii. for restoration to Gods Favour, Psal. iv. and xlii. and lxiii. for Patience in trouble, Psal. xxxix. for deliverance from spiritual or temporal Enemies, Psal. lv. and lix.

and

and lxxi. and lxxiv. and also Publick Prayers for the King, Psal. xxi. and lxxii. for the Church and People of God, Psal. lxviii. and lxxix. and lxxx. and such like; which that we may be fitly disposed for, we must have a quick and feeling sense of our own and our Brethrens wants, a firm belief of Gods All-sufficiency, a strong confidence in the Intercession of Jesus Christ, and a full persuasion of the acceptableness of these Requests which are drawn up by the Holy Ghost: And these devout Prayers will give us occasion to shew our care of our own Soul, and our universal Charity to all the world, our Love to Gods Church, and our intire Dependence on his Power and Mercy, and may fitly be closed with giving Glory to the Father, who heareth us; to the Son, who pleads for us in heaven; and to the Holy Ghost, who directs and assists us on earth; and we have cause to bless him who hath heard both our and others Prayers, and will do so to the end of the world, giving all Persons in all Ages past, present and to come, great cause of Eucharist and Thanksgiving. By this [Gloria Patri] added to our Prayers, we declare our confidence and hope, that he will grant us our desires, who is and was and ever shall be the helper of all that flee to him for succour; and we may call to mind that many are now praising him in heaven, for hearing these very Petitions that we now put up. Art thou poor or miserable, sick or weak, despised or slandered, persecuted or oppressed? Here thou maist breath out thy Complaints to him that can help thee, or those that are so. Art thou under trouble of Conscience, or fear of Gods Anger, worsted by Temptation, or sluggish in holy Duties, or any ways spiritually indisposed? Here are most proper and perinent Forms for thy Comfort and Redress. Art thou a Well-wisher to all the World, a Lover of Gods People, a Friend to the Peace of Kingdoms, and a faithful Subject to thy own Prince? Hast thou any Detestation against sinners, or desire of their Conversion, any Pity for the calamitous, or wishes for their Deliverance? If thou bring a charitable heart, thou maist pray for all or any of these in such prevailing words, that, ere thou hast done speaking, thou maist have such assurance of a gracious return, as to sing, Glory be to the Father, &c.

4. The Psalms of Thanksgiving are joyful Songs of Praise and Eucharist, and lovely descriptions of the Divine Goodness to all the world; but especially to us and all his own People. Such are those wherein God is praised for all his Mercies, Psal. ciii. and xxxvi. and cxlv. for those bestowed on our Bodies, Health, Psal. cxvi. and cxxx. and Plenty, Psal. lxxv. and civ. Victories over our enemies, Psal. xviii. and cxliv. and cxlix. As also for what he hath done for our Souls, Psal. lxvi. cxi. cxviii. And in these Psalms are most earnest Exhortations to join in praising the Lord. O my God, I behold what thou dost for all mankind, and I feel what I have received; I confess my unworthiness and admire thy goodness in all things. And then the Glory be to the Father, &c. is a recapitulation of all the foregoing causes of glorifying every Person in the glorious Trinity, and must be an acknowledgment that all Mercies are dispensed to us by the Father, for the Son's sake, through the ministry of the Holy Spirit; and upon this account all Honour and Glory is and was and ever shall be due to the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. O my ingrateful Heart, which seest so much cause of praising God every day for his Works, for his Goodness to others and thy self also; and yet hast thou not learned fully to love God and constantly to praise him? Come to the sweet singer of Israel, he will excite thee (by his example) in every thing to give thanks, learn of him to rejoice with them that rejoice; learn of him to love, and sing Glory be, &c. so thou shalt sing new Songs in the new Jerusalem for ever. By such means as these we ought to tune our hearts for this heavenly Musick, if we would have it please God and profit us; and by the help of Gods good Spirit we have in some measure well performed this, our next care must be that we lose not those good affections.

Thirdly, Therefore endeavour to nourish these holy flames on the Altar of thy heart, by such a life as the

ἡ Τεῦχος ὅς ἐστι καὶ Ζη-λοῦται ὅτι καὶ ἡμεῖς ἐν ταῖς διαφοραῖς καὶ ἀντιθέταις ἀδελφοὶ αὐτοῦ. Athanas.

inspired Penmen of these Psalms themselves did lead to, and such as they exhort others to; so shalt thou be every day fit to join in this Office, and be always prepared to accompany the Church with suitable Affections in all the several parts of Psalmody. Remember these Anthems are designed not only to with use Devotion in Publick, but to assist Holiness in Private ^t, and by Verba vivenda non legenda.

letting us feel comforts in Gods House, which may strengthen us to do his Will afterwards, and which may set us upon our guard against Sin and Satan who present sensual Pleasures and carnal Allurements unto us; but you who have tasted sweeter and nobler Delights, will easily despise those vain and empty shadows, and wish no other Joy than to praise God among his Servants on Earth here, and among his Saints in Heaven hereafter. And if this be your desire, the constant use of these Psalms, will make them so familiar, that you will never want holy Meditations, Ejaculations, Answers to Satans Temptations, and Memento's of a holy Life, even after you are departed from the Congregation.

SECTION. IX.

Of the Lessons.

§. I. BEfore we begin to read or hear the holy Scriptures, it will be useful that we consider, First, their own Excellency, to engage our Love to them. Secondly, the Providence of God in the composing and preserving them, to excite our Reverence. Thirdly, the Care of the Church in fitting them to our use, to encourage our Diligence. First, The Scripture must needs be excellent, because it is the Revelation of the whole Will of God, so far as is necessary for our Salvation. We believe as God hath taught

^a 2 Tim. iii. 15.

In quibus inveniuntur illa omnia quæ continent fidem morēsque vivendi. August. Doct. Christ. l. 2. c. 17.

Sacræ & divinitus inspiratæ Scripturæ per se abunde sufficiant ad veritatis indicationem. Athan. in Idol. Antiquam fidei Regulam. Euseb. Hist. l. 5.

^b Sancta Synodus christum assessorem capitis loco adjunxit: Venerandum enim Evangelium in Sancto throno collocavit. Cyril.

See D. Cosin's History of the Canon.

us, and as it was believed in the Primitive Church^a, that it is the complete Repository of all Divine truths that concern Faith or Manners; and therefore we own it to be the Rule of our Lives, and the Foundation of our Faith; and in all our considerable^b Controversies we place it in the Throne (as the Councils of Ephesus and Aquileja did) for the Moderator and Determiner of such doubts and differences. This is the guide of our Consciences, the ground of our Hopes, the evidence of our Inheritance, and the Law by which we shall be judged at the last day, John v. v. 45. Rev. xx. 12.

Where

Wherefore it is the Duty (John v. v.39.) and Interest (2 Tim. iii.15.) of every Christian to be conversant in them, according to the command of Jesus, and the example of all Gods Servants, who studied them more than any other Writings : So that St. Basil and his Friend used no other Book, but wholly meditated in this for thirteen years. And if it were possible, we should exercise our selves in them *day and night, that is, always. But however we must spend so much time upon them, that we may be always furnished with Precepts to direct, Promises to encourage, and Examples to quicken us to do all good ; and also with Prohibitions to restrain, Threatnings to affright, and Precedents to warn us from all evil. And being so constantly useful, and so able to shew us all that is necessary to be known, believed, or to be done ; we should love them, and delight to hear and know them, because ignorance of these sacred Oracles will lay us open to errors in Judgment (Mark xii.24.) and wickedness in Practice (Psal. cxix. 3.) and finally prove the ruin of our Souls.

§.II. Secondly, We must remember it is no ordinary regard which we must give to these holy Pages, because God is the Author, and his Spirit the Enditer of them, and in his infinite Wisdom and Love he hath committed his Will to Writing, that it might not be corrupted or impaired by the Prejudices, the malice or forgetfulness of men, as all Traditions generally are, For the matter of it, though he could have filled it with amazing Mysteries, yet (consulting our Good rather than his own Greatness) he conde-

*c Jos.i.8. Deut.xvii.19.
R. Ismael à sororis filio rogatus, quodnam tempus Græcorum lectioni impenderet ? Resp. Nullum ; nisi potest inveniri tempus quod nec ad diem neque ad noctem pertinebat. E. Talm.
Masius in Jos.i.*

*— Nec loquitur nobis
cum lingua filiorum hominum : Lumen super-num nunquam descendit sine indumento. Prov.
Hab. Sermo enim divinus secundum intelligentie nostrae naturam se temperat, — nobis enim non sibi loquitur.
Hilar. in Psal. 25.*

Nor hath he in any one part set down all that is directly tending to our Salvation ; but to engage us diligently to read it all, he hath so prudently dispersed these necessary things, that some of them are to be found every where ; so that every part thereof is useful

 Nullane verecundia ti-bi est, dicere eorum quo Iesus ipse loquitur, nullam esse cognitionis utilitatem. Chrysost.*

*Ociosum autem verbum dicere in S. Scriptura ingens blasphemia est.
Basil.*

† Matth. v. v. 18.

Non est littera in lege & qua non pendeant magni mones. Dictum Rab.

and none of it must be neglected, much less contemned*. For like as in high Hills, the outward Barrenness is recompensed by Mines and hidden Treasures† ; so the most difficult places yield profit to those that have skill and patience to dig into them. And the Almighty hath not only shewed his care in the forming but also in the preserving of these sacred Records ; which though they are the most antient in the world (of undoubted credit) and have been hated and opposed by Satan and his Instruments, the great and wise ones of the world ; yet neither Time, Power, Policy nor Malice could never corrupt nor destroy them ; because God resolved to preserve them for our use, upon whom the ends of the world are come.

§.III. Thirdly, The Church hath done her part, in compliance with the designs of Gods Mercy and Providence, to deliver it safely to us, and make it useful for us: For hereby the Catholick and faithful Christians discovered the frauds of Hereticks, convinced the minds of Unbelievers, and sealed the truth of it with their blood. And lest any should pretend Ignorance^s, the Governours and Lights of the Church have carefully translated the Original Scripture into all Languages, that every Nation might hear in their own tongue the wonderful works of God, (Acts ii. 11.) After which pattern our Church hath made that elaborate, exact and faithful Translation into the English Tongue, the like to which is not in any Nation^s. And now the Scripture hath learned our Language that it may instruct us in our own words; and it must be wilful negligence if we do not understand it: To prevent which, we are enjoined to read or hear it every day; both at Morning and at Evening Prayer, according to the Practice of the Jewsⁱ, who read the Law in their Synagogues however on the Sabbath, and on other days they tasted no food, till they had read a Section of it either in publick or private^k, and every man knows how solemnly and constantly this hath ever been done in all the Assemblies of the Christian Church^l. For Προσηκουει, & paulo post Τάδε λέγει κύριος. Chrys. ad Act. ix. 19.

^s Διὰ τὸ τοῦ Ἑλλήνων φωνῇ ἐκμυθισθῆαι γεγραφαι ὥς μὴ πεφασιν ἀγνοίας Προβέβληται διωηδύσαι. Clement. Alex. Strom. i.

^b Anglicane versionis authores omni laude majores fuisse arguit accurata illa & ad invidiam aliarum gentium elaborata versio. Sixt. A. mama Præf. ad Druf.

ⁱ Acts xiii. 17. 2 Cor. iii. 15. Luke iv. 7. Neh. viii. 8.

^k Ita fecerunt Christiani, teste Clem. Alex.

^l Διδάσκοντες μὴτα βωῶν

m Coimus ad literarum divinarum commemorationem. Ter. Apol. c. 39.

*Ἡ δὲ τῶν γραφῶν τῶν πνευματικῶν ἀνάγνωσις εἰς ἀποδείξιν τῶν λεγομένων ἀναγκαῖον. Clem.
Alex. Strom. 6.*

■ Nunc interposita est solemnitas sanctorum di-cerum, quibus certas ex Evangelio Lectiones o-portet in Ecclesiā tractari. Aug. Præf. in Joan.

hence they confirmed their opinions in Doctrin^m, and learned lessons of holiness in conversation.
I had rather your own Observation should inform you, than spend time to tell you how carefully this Church hath selected the most practical and pertinent Chapters; omitting the more difficult, or rather remit-ting them to private consideration, where you have more leisure. The Lessons suited to the solemn Festivals are determinedⁿ, and do either explain the Mystery, relate the History, or apply the Example unto us. In fine, the Goodness of God in revealing, and his Power in preserving these holy Books; as also the Churches Courage in defending them, Exactness in translating, and Prudence in dividing them, shew it is the great concern of all Christians to understand them, and their duty to use them; for there is nothing wanting to make us wise to salvation, but our diligent endeavour to profit by them. And that this Grace of God and Care of the Church be not bestowed on you in vain, we shall desire you to observe the following Directions:

§. IV. First, it is necessary, that we humbly and earnestly call for the assistance of the Divine Spirit, which, as it did first indite, so it can best explain these Oracles of Truth, and also enable us to practise them. Now this may be done by a short and pathet-ical Ejaculation, while the Minister prepares himself to read, and if we are not ready at making such Forms, we may repeat Psal. cxix. 180. Open thou mine eyes,

that I may see the wondrous things of thy Law : Jer. 125. I am thy Servant, give me understanding may know thy testimonies : Or if you have time, you pray by that excellent Collect [the second in order] Second Sunday of Advent : Blessed Lord God, who answers all Holy Scripture, &c. Now by these Prayers shall own God to be the Fountain of all Wisdom, and express our desires to know and do his Will, and therefore no doubt they will procure us Wisdom and Strength. Secondly, labour to bring a heart freed from the love of all sin, for a Lamb only can open the Seals of this Book (Rev. v. v.2.) The Mahomedans write on the cover of the Alcoran, Non attinget Sanctus ; Let no unclean person touch this, which we agree to Gods Word ; so that we shall do well to engrave it on our memories, and then we give the occasion of that Rite of washing the Hands before taking it up, which the Christians observed of old, and the Jews at this day. We cast not seed into untilled grounds, and let us not cast the precious seed of the Divine Word into unhar-d hearts, (Jer. iv.3. Matth. xiii. 4,5, &c.) lest it be choked with weeds, or over-run with thorns, or withered for want of root in us. The love of sin blinds the eyes, vitiates the Palate, and alters the object ; it will make this Divine Food nauseous, or turn it into the nourishment of corrupt humors. He only is by Gods Word, that brings a pure and clean heart : He sees Gods Will clearly, loves it exceedingly, closes with it readily, because it suits his inclinations and sympathizes with his affections, so that it goes its welcome along with it. Thirdly, come with desires to learn your Duty, and steadfast resolutions to practise it. The end of Writing the Scripture must ° Chrysost. Hom. 52.

 in Euang. Joan.

be our aim in Hearing it viz. that we may be wiser and better. The Philosopher complained of some that read neque enim (proh Jupiter!) qui Platonem legere possent, non vite ornanda, sed lingue conversationis comendae gratia, non ut modestior fiat, sed lepidior. Taur. apud Aul. Gell. Noct. Attic. 1.9.

Plato, not to reform their manners, but to adorn their discourse: but we have juster cause to complain of those that hear Gods holy Word, to make them more talkative, and not more holy. It is not Phrases, but Virtue which we ought to learn there. We must like good Soldiers stand with our Joins girt, our arms fixed, expecting only the Watchword, and then we must obey. Let us say, Speak Lord, for thy servant heareth, (1 Sam.iii.10.) and with St. Paul, (Acts ix.8.) Lord, what wouldst thou have me to do? And when he hath in his Word signified his pleasure, our Souls must answer (Exod.xix.8.) All that the Lord hath spoken, that will we do. It had been a strange presumption in David to have consulted the Oracle about his safety (1 Sam. xxiii.2. and 12.) unless he had purposed to obey the Answer. And it is an equal affront to the Divine Majesty, for us to pretend we come to ask his advice, when we have no intentions to follow it.

§.V. Being thus prepared before by Prayer, Purity, and holy Resolutions, when the Lessons are begun: Fourthly, Let us hear them with all reverence, according to that excellent example of those devout Jews, (Nehem.viii.6.) who when the Law was read to them, lifted up their hands, bowed down their heads, and fell on their faces. And sure we should express such outward respects as may declare we are mindful of the Author of these Proclamations, who is King of Kings, and Lord of Lords. The Scripture daily salutes us as Abd did the King of Moab, (Judg.iii.20.) I have a message message to thee from God. And if the Tyrant at that news rose from his seat, shall not he condemn us, if we receive it with less signs of regard and reverence?

 But especially let us labour to fill our minds with serious apprehensions, that it is the Word, the Will and Mind of the great God^a, and then we shall express our outward reverence with more ease and sincerity. Let us receive it as being truly his (1 Thess.
ii. 13.) and it will work as effectually as if it came with the terrors of Mount Sinab, or were delivered in Thunder from the battlements of Heaven. And the better to affect your heart, behold the evident demonstrations that God is in and with them. Think how many sad hearts these Promises have cheered; how many erring and wavering minds these Truths have established; how many obstinate sinners these Exhortations and Threatnings have converted, and it will help to give them their due value in your eyes.
 Fifthly, Mark them with a most diligent Attention, as those did our Saviours words (Luke xix. ult.) Let your eyes be fixt on the Minister as if you expected to receive something. (Acts iii. 5.) Let your ear be open to receive the words, and your heart ponder well the sense, and be sure you narrowly watch, and speedily drive away those evil thoughts which come to devour your Sacrifice and carry your Souls away. How deservedly would that poor man want relief, who should entertain himself with every Bird within his view, at a time of Distribution, till all were disposed of? Yet such is their folly, who while they are pursuing every idle thought which is suggested by Satan, lose many sentences, which might open their eyes, strengthen their hands and comfort their hearts. You know not what good he deprives himself of that lets the least ^a Scriptura est ipsa vox & anima Dei. D. Greg.

Sentence slip unobserved ; for the very filings of Gold are precious, and there is weight in the least tittle of Gods Word, (Matth. v. v. 18.) There are many places which are obscure, and by reason of close connexions or speedy transitions are no ways to be understood without the comparing them with what precedes and follows ^r, so that breaking one link may spoil the chain. It is not possible a careless hearer should understand them clearly, or apply them prudently, or make any future benefit of them ; but we find, by half-Sentences and slight Observation, men suck in Errors and evil Principles, and the same word which cures one kills Ὅσοι μὲν ἐμπείρους ἀκύνουσι ἀφ' ἑνὸς, ὅσοι δὲ ἀπείρους βλάπτουσι, ἔστιν ἄρα τις ἐμπειρία καὶ δαΐμων τὸ λέγειν, ὥτως καὶ τὸ ἀκύνειν. Arrian. in Epict. l. 2. c. 24.

 Qui non advertit quid supra & infra scriptum sit, is pervertit verba Dei viventis. Munster.*

 Qui audierit inveniet Deum, qui etiam studuerit intelligere, cogetur & credere. Tert.*

another ^l. It is this negligence and inadvertency that makes the Scripture so little understood, so hugely perverted, so speedily forgotten, and so slowly practised. We have enough while Gods Word is reading, to employ our minds and take up our time, and did we give as much heed ^r to Scripture as we do to trifles, we might easily understand it, and should be engaged to a firmer belief and a more conscientious practice thereof.

§.VI. The last part of our care is after the Lessons be ended ; then Sixthly, Meditate of them, and lay them up in your heart, that you may faithfully remember what you have learned, and readily bring it forth upon occasion. We do not only hear Gods Word to stir us into a present Devotion ; but to fill our Treasures, store our Armory, and victual our Fort, against we be besieged by Temptation or Affliction ;

fiction"; and 'tis not our Affections when we hear it, so much as our Memory of what we hear, that thus makes it serviceable to us. But we must especially treasure that which is most pertinent to our own condition; and, as the Jewish Masters love to allegorize, we must not be like the Wine-press, which keeps the husks and lets out the pure Wine; nor like the Sponge which promiscuously sucks in all; nor yet like the Hour-glass which pours out at one side what it received on the other; but in hearing we must be like the Fan which retains nothing but the solid Corn. If we have but skill to chuse according to our needs, there is in Scripture plenty and variety for all estates; and if our arms be fewer, yet if they be ready and fit, they may be more serviceable than more that are not so well ordered. Lastly, begin immediately to put what you hear into Practice, and then it is out of Satan's reach*. Take warning by the Threatnings to fly from the evil, encouragement from the Promises to perform the good; submit to the Reproofs, observe the Directions and pursue the Rewards. If this Glass have shewed us our Deformities, we must immediately amend them, or we shall soon forget them†, and so lose the labour and benefit of our hearing. What signifies a Counsellors opinion or Physicians advice, if they be not followed? The better the counsel is, the more is our shame, if we look more on the glory of asking it, than the honour and benefit of observing it. These Rules carefully made use of, ▪ Heb. ii. i.

Dr. Hammonds Annot.

* Is divinas Scripturas rectè legit, qui verba vertit in opera. D. Bern.

† James i. 23, 24.

Qui sacras literas legit nec confert ad rem, similis est seminanti crebro metenti nunquam, parturienti sapius & partus sepelienti, otioso cantori qui non habent mercedem operis. Masius è Talm. in Jos. i.

will be soon found

of

of extraordinary advantage, and may suffice in the general; but because of the variety of Scripture, and the necessity of a particular application, we shall add some short intimation how to profit by the several parts hereof. For S. Paul hath taught us, that all Scripture

2 Tim. iii. 16.

* — Πρὸς διδασκαλίαν, πρὸς ἐλεγχον, πρὸς ἐπισκευήν, πρὸς παι-
δείαν ἥ ἐστὶν διευθυνή.
Vide Ham. Annot. in loc.

is useful * to inform and teach us in Faith * and Truth; to discover and reprove our sins, to direct and urge our amendment, to promote and improve us in the practice of holiness. Which rule if we follow, we may be able to profit by every Chapter, and may learn that Art of making every part of Gods Word (like an exact Picture) look directly upon our selves *, and comply with our circumstances, although it was spoken to others, and perhaps of different condition.

* Omnia quidem dicta Domini omnibus posita: sed pleraq; in personas directa, non proprietatem admonitionis nobis constituerunt, sed exemplum.

Tert. de Præscr. hac.

§.VII. First then, to apply the Old Testament, out of which the first Lessons are taken, we may consider that (besides the Psalms, of which before) it consists of these Parts, 1. The Law, 2. The History, 3. The Morality, 4. The Prophecies. 1. The Ceremonial Laws are omitted in the daily Service, because they were proper to the Jews, and had no apparent reason^b of their obligation, yet if we have time, leisure and judgment, we may in private improve them into most useful Meditations, by applying the Types to Christ, and those Precepts which are literally obscure, to matters of practical Holiness

^b Heb. הנה:

*Verba sunt quæ non ha-bent apertam rationem:
—sunt ex decreto Regis.*

R. Sal. — Præcepta quorum non patefacta est ratio. R. Dav. Kim. in Psal. cxix.

Holiness. Of the Judicial Law also little is read in publick; but so much of it as is used, is the foundation of the antientest and best Laws which were made by Heathens or Christians, and contains Rules of the exactest Justice in the world; and if we take for the difference of our circumstances, may conduct our Consciences in many cases of intercourse with our neighbours. Of the Moral Law no part is read by, because there are the Rules of eternal Goodness, to which the Consciences of all men give consent at the first hearing, and so are of universal Obligation; but they bind us in a higher manner than Law (Matth. v. 14.) wherefore we may learn hereby our Duty to God and Man, and discover all our odious sins, and we may encourage our selves from the promises to do good, for they shall certainly be performed either literally in temporal, or with advantage in a spiritual manner; understanding Soul for Body, Grace for Prosperity, and Heaven for Canaan: in which manner also we must apply the Threatnings to make us penitent for former, and cautious against future offences against so holy a Law of so great a God. 2. The History is all read, and is a rare Account of the methods of Gods Providence in the Government of the World, from the Creation to the Return of the Captivity. And we are to love and reverence it before all other Records, for its Divine Author and undoubted Credit; for the Persons it treats of, the chosen People of God, and especially for the excellent Design, which is to teach us to fear God, love Holiness and avoid Iniquity, by a clearer and more easie method * than the Precepts can do; because these lively Pictures of the final success of Piety, and the ruin of Wic-

* Longum iter per Preceptum, brevis & efficax per Exemplum. Seneca.

kedness, are more readily apprehended, more deeply impressed, and more firmly remembered, than either Advice or naked Exhortations.

Hoc tibi virtutum stimulos, hoc semina laudum,

Hoc exempla dabit. —

Ne simus ingentium exemplorum parvi imitatores. S. Salvian.

And therefore the Examples^d of prosperous Virtue will condemn our Folly and Sloth, and raise in us a holy Emulation to be like those excellent persons, and a lively Hope that we shall have the same Success and Rewards.

As also the base Designs, constant Disappointments, and dreadful Events which attend all ungodly Wretches, must affright us from treading those paths. And thus the Shipwrecks of evil men and the steps of the Saints may conduct us safely to our Journeys end. Only, because the best men may have erred, we must not always do what they did, but make the Precepts^e the interpreters of their Practice, and where they agree we are safe in our Imitation. 3. The Morality, in the Books of Job and Solomon (and some parts of Apocryphal Authors, which the Hæc quando in S. Scripturis legimus non ideo quia facta credimus, facienda credamus, ne violemus præcepta, dum passim sectamur exempla. Augustin. in Mend. c.9.

Primitive Church also read for instruction of manners) these do recommend unto us all sorts of virtues, and set out the means to obtain them, and the advantages of practising them, and give a true representation of the folly and danger of Sin; with cautions against the occasions thereof, laying down innumerable Observations, for the ordering of our Lives in all Conditions and Relations; but these so brief and independent, that we must give extraordinary Attention that we may learn our Duty, in that place and those circumstances in which we are. Here are Rules for Princes and People ; Masters and Servants ; Parents and Children ; Husbands and Wives ; Young and Old ; Rich and Poor ; Prosperous or Afflicted persons ; and that we every one may learn our own Lessons, we must mark those Sentences which encourage to some virtue we are deficient in, or reprove some Offence we are guilty of ; and not out of Idleness or Malice pick out only those which we suppose fit our Neighbours, and paint out their crimes : For thus our own faults pass uncensured, and neither we nor they have benefit by this excellent part of Holy Writ. 4. The Prophecies are the Predictions of Ruin from the mouth of God to all wicked men, both Heathens and Enemies of Gods people, and also those that then gloried in that name (as we do now) but yet continued in the practice of all Iniquity. How sadly do the Prophets complain of such ? What terrible Menaces and piercing Reproofs do they give them ? Yet every where intermixed with earnest Invitations to Amendment, and pressing Exhortations to sincere Reformation, and the practice of that hearty Obedience which the Letter of the Law expressed not, but is here required as an Introduction to the Gospel and coming of Jesus, which is by the Prophets set out in all its Glory. And when we behold that both those Heathen Nations and the Jews also have pulled utter ruin on themselves by their Contempt of the Promises, and verified the Threatnings by their Disobedience to these warnings ; we ought to fear and grow wise by their Calamity, to take heed to answer our Profession with a holy Life, and to cast off all those destructive sins, or we may be sure these Prophecies shall once more be fulfilled in our inevitable Destruction. As for the more Mysterious Prophecies^e, we need not curiously pry into them, nor know particularly to what Church or Persons to fix the woes therein denounced; but rather applying them to our own lusts, let us take courage from the assurance of Victory under Christs Kingdom, to mortifie and subdue them. That as God hath sent him to us in the Flesh, and so far made good these Predictions, so we may admit him to reign in our hearts; and then we shall experience the truth of that Triumph, Joy and Peace, which is promised to wait upon his Government, and also avoid all the Torments that are denounced against the Workers of Iniquity.

which

R rious

¶ S. Propheta audire & non intellexit; quid facient hi qui signatum librum & usque ad tempus confirmationis multaq; obscuritatibus involutum præsumptione mentis edisserunt? Hieron. in Dan.

§.8. The New Testament is read for the Second Lesson, because it is the perfection of the Law, the substance of the Types, and the fulfilling of all the Prophecies; and because it hath manifested the Reward more fully, it heightens and improves the Duties^s; for since to us much is given, much may justly be required. Now that so clear a discovery of Gods infinite Love may the more powerfully work upon us, let us well consider, 1. The History of the Gospel. 2. The Epistles

§ Lex vetus ligat manum, lex nova ligat animum.

1. To apply and improve the Gospel, let us consider it as an exact Account of all that Jesus did and suffered for us. Here is a Relation of his mean and humble Birth, a Record of his holy and afflicted Life, a Register of his Miracles, a Summary of his Sermons, and a most moving Description of his painful and meritorious Death. Let us therefore in hearing these Lessons imagin our selves of his Retinue, as if we were giving audience to his voice, and beholding his Wonders of goodness and might. Let us carry our Pride to his Nativity, our Idleness to his industrious doing good to all, our Anger to his Meekness, our Revenge to his Gentleness and Love of his Enemies, that they may blush and die, when they see their deformity by so sweet a pattern. See and wonder, admire and love, and strive to imitate your dear Saviour in kindness and charity, mercy and pity, diligence and piety, patience and constancy, faith and zeal; and rejoice to have him presented to you thus, because your Captain is your Companion^a, and hath done himself what he requires of you. The Servant of Wenceslaus following his Royal and devout Master barefoot in a deep Snow to a House of Prayer in a Winter night, when he began to tire, beheld his Prince, and with Shame and Love recruited his tired spirits, and every look gave him a new life: So would the sight of Jesus beget in us, did we view him with that affection and steddiness as we ought; if we have a due Love for Christ, it will not only be pleasant but profitable thus daily to hear of him. For his Sermons will convert us, his Conversation engage us to love him more, his Example will invite and inflame us, and his Death will above all tie our Souls to him, and make our Sins as odious as the worst Instruments of that black Cruelty: Thus we may live like him, die with him, and rise again to newness of life.

^a Tunc enim promptius iherent Milites, cum Dux sit socius.

2. Those sacred Epistles are used, which do further explain the Mysteries of the Divine Love, and the Covenant of Grace, declaring Gods designs in it, his expectations from us, and the preparations made for us; with incomparable cautions against the deceits of Satan, cruelty of Persecutors, and falshoods of Heretics, together with variety of Promises, Exhortations and Directions so closely united, and so Majestically expressed, that it requires a quick apprehension, and a solid judgment to unravel all the Mysteries in them; and yet they that avoid Curiosity and Self-Conceit, and bring Humility, Love and holy Resolutions, cannot be more effectually improved in Knowledge and Piety by any part of Scripture. And this Rule must always be observed, when we hear any part of Gods Word, that we do not pursue Difficulties and Disputes, but apply the Holy Scripture to profit by it. And certainly he best understands it, who learns from it to bridle his Passions, bound his Desires, conquer his Appetites; to fear God, love his Neighbour, and to be careful of his own immortal Soul; and if we make this use of the words of God, we shall have good cause to join in the next Duty of giving Praise to him that made them; and assists us that we may profit by them.

SECTION X.

Of the Hymns for the Morning-Prayer, and first of the Te Deum.

§. I. THere is not in the whole Circle of Christian Duties any more universal than Praise: For because in every thing God shews mercy, we must in every thing give thanks *. So that Hymns of Praise are ever seasonable, espe- 1 Thess. v. v. 18. cially in the House of God, where they are to be intermixed with every part of Divine Service, to make it pleasant to us, and delightful to him we worship. We are to bless God for our bodily Food; how much more then for the Food of our Souls? The providing of which for us is the greatest Mercy next to that of giving the Eternal Word to us. For if God had not written his Word for us, we should not have seen either our Sin or our Danger, our Duty nor our Assistance, our Deliverer nor our Reward, and shall we not praise him for this shining Light? And particularly, what Chapter is there, but it contains a peculiar reason of our Thankfulness? whether it instruct or reprove us; invite us to Duty, or affright us from Sin; whether it consist of Promises or Threatnings, Precepts or Examples, it ought to be concluded with [We praise thee, O GOD,] viz. for illuminating our Minds, quickening our Affections, renewing our Memory, Memory, reviving our Hopes, awakening our Sloth, or confirming our Resolutions. Some benefit we have or may have by every one; and therefore a Hymn will both refresh us with variety, discharge a great obligation to God, and prepare us to hear the next Lesson with fresher appetite. We have two for our choice that we may suit every Chapter; but we shall first consider that which is most usual, the Te Deum.

The

These are the parts:

Age
, &c. aise vinc usly
Auert ;
holy first ches ing) ong

istud oten-
oteno Tri-is toebraomnes
teri ;
Spi-
drunt

c. de
m. 5

lere-
first pres
tion,
irth,

that join with us in paying the same Duty. We have now heard out of Gods sacred Word those gracious Memory, reviving our Sicut, or confirming our Refit we have or may have by fore a Hymn will both refrecharge a great obligation to hear the next Lesson with frequency for our choice that we but we shall first consider the

 the Te Deum.

To	1
1st	1
2nd	1
3rd	1
4th	1
5th	1
6th	1
7th	1
8th	1
9th	1
10th	1
11th	1
12th	1
13th	1
14th	1
15th	1
16th	1
17th	1
18th	1
19th	1
20th	1
21st	1
22nd	1
23rd	1
24th	1
25th	1
26th	1
27th	1
28th	1
29th	1
30th	1
31st	1
32nd	1
33rd	1
34th	1
35th	1
36th	1
37th	1
38th	1
39th	1
40th	1
41st	1
42nd	1
43rd	1
44th	1
45th	1
46th	1
47th	1
48th	1
49th	1
50th	1
51st	1
52nd	1
53rd	1
54th	1
55th	1
56th	1
57th	1
58th	1
59th	1
60th	1
61st	1
62nd	1
63rd	1
64th	1
65th	1
66th	1
67th	1
68th	1
69th	1
70th	1
71st	1
72nd	1
73rd	1
74th	1
75th	1
76th	1
77th	1
78th	1
79th	1
80th	1
81st	1
82nd	1
83rd	1
84th	1
85th	1
86th	1
87th	1
88th	1
89th	1
90th	1
91st	1
92nd	1
93rd	1
94th	1
95th	1
96th	1
97th	1
98th	1
99th	1
100th	1

A Practical Discourse on the Te Deum.

§. III. WE praise thee, O God, we acknowledge thee to be the Lord: All the Earth, &c. unto Verseicle 9. [The noble Army of Martyrs praise thee.] Although this Song of Praise be not of Divine Authority, yet it is said to have been miraculously composed, and first sung by St. Ambrose and St. Augustin after the Baptism of that illustrious Convert; and it is placed among the undoubted Works of holy Ambrose, who in the times of general Calamity first brought the use of Hymns into the Latin Churches (which had been used in the East from the beginning) and made several Forms of Praise himself, and among the rest this grand and powerful Hymn^b, which, its likely, he means when he speaks of that Confession of the Trinity in verse, which the people so much delighted in, and sung so joyfully every day. For this hath ever since been frequently used and highly esteemed in the Church; not only for its Authors sake, but for its own, since it is so rare a piece of choice Devotion. The principal scope hereof is to give all Glory to God, which therefore is interwoven with every part; but these nine first Verseicles are wholly Eucharistical, wherein we express our own Gratitude, and to heighten our Devotion, we cast our eyes on all Creatures in Heaven and Earth, that join with us in paying the same Duty. We have now heard out of Gods sacred Word those gracious

^b Grande carmen istud est, & quo nihil potentius: Quid enim potentius, quam Confessio Trinitatis, quæ quotidie totius populi ore celebratur? Certatim omnes student fidem fateri; Patrem, Filium & Spiritum Sanctum nōrunt versibus prædicare.

Ambros. in Conc. de Basilicis, &c. Tom. 5

Invitations and sweet Comforts, those useful Directions and necessary Warnings which he therein gives us, for all which we give him thanks when we say, We praise thee, O God. We have also heard many instances of his Power, and been instructed in his holy Commands, which engages us to acknowledge his Authority and pay our Homage : Therefore we promise to be his Servants, and seriously acknowledge him to be the Lord, which is a mocking of the Divine Majesty, Luke vi. 46. unless we resolve to do what he says, and commands us in his Holy Word. But why should we not be sincere in this acknowledgment, since it is our Honour to serve him whom the Heavens praise, and the Earth worships, and to whom all the Inhabitants of both are subject ? The Earth, that is, the Men that dwell therein in all ages did and in every nation some now do give him Honour. For there is no Time, nor Country which hath not afforded many to confess and adore him that fills all places, and endureth from everlasting to everlasting. But if so many Examples out of all mankind will not suffice to make us praise him devoutly and acknowledge him faithfully. Let us lift up our eyes to the Heavens, which are replenished with Creatures more noble and glorious than we ; yet all these make it their employment, and account it their delight to glorifie his Name. We lately prayed that Gods will might be done on earth as it is in heaven : and how it is done there this excellent Hymn will shew you : It opens Heaven to you ; nay with the Euangelical Prophet, carries you thither to behold the holy Orders above, Angels and Powers, Cherubims and Seraphims, Apostles, Prophets and Martyrs. This shews you their employment, which is all one and the same that you are now exercised in, even to praise the Lord continually every morning: or rather every ment, with never-ceasing voi-

Nay here is their Song^a, that mysterious Anthem to Trinity, by which they conevery Person and adore all, ly. So that you may at once what to believe, and how to hip God. O let us learn this we must sing in Heaven, we shall bear a part in that Celestial Choir, where ese glorious Hosts ever magnifie their great Com-ler, all Creatures of the Earth, all the Lights of Hea-and the innumerable and invincible Legions of An-are listed under this our Lord, fight for him and execute his Commands. Wherefore he is called God of Hosts or of Sabaoth, that is, of the Armies Powers of Heaven and Earth. And since every hat is under him gives him Honour, the Majesty of lory must needs reach as far as his troops extend; they fill both the upper and lower world. Let us with the Angelic Hosts now, and we shall be joined em hereafter; let us not be discouraged at the die of our Nature and Condition; for many of our ren (which were once as we are) are already glori-they are admitted to this Honour and intermixed this Society. O see the painful and faithful Apostles, e zealous and holy Prophets, behold the triumphant of devout and couragious Martyrs, how they all e and sing. The Apostles are ravished with his y whom they saw in his Weakness. The Pro- are delighted with him whom they prophesied ut never beheld before. The Martyrs are trans-d with his Love, and forgetting all their Tors, solace themselves in his Joys; and every ga-

^c Gen. xxxii. 26.

Dimitte me, quia ascendit columna aurora, & appropinquat hora Angelorum, ad laudandum Deum. Targ. Hierosol.

^d Voce incessabili. Amb.

^e Isai. vi. 3. Sanctus Pater, Sanctus Filius, Sanctus Spiritus. Chal.
 Par. Jon. Ita olim legebat P. Galatinus.

Quot milia hiantia, tot ora laudantia Deum.

ping Wound ' is now a Mouth to chant out his Praise. O what Honour is it to serve such a Lord! What delight to be admitted to so glorious a Society! Summon up all the Powers and Faculties of your Souls, and as they fill Heaven, do you fill the Earth, with setting out the Majesty of his Glory.

§ IV. The Holy Church throughout all the world doth acknowledge thee, &c. unto Versicle 19. [The believe that thou shalt come to be our Judge.] The second part of this Hymn (in the eleven following Ver-sicles) is a Confession of Faith. Every Article whereof is a further motive to praise God, either for the Glory of his Essence or the Mercy that appears in his Works. And since we see God at present only by Faith, the Profession of that Faith may be reputed to us as a glorifying of him, Rom. xv. 6. The Saints and Angels see him face to face, and what they do by Intuition, we do by Faith, by Hope, and by desires of a nearer Union. And certainly we cannot set out the Majesty of his Glory better than by assenting to that Revelation which his Truth hath made of himself; and by confessing him that the glorious Hosts of Heaven adore, and the Universal Church doth and ever did acknowledge. For so we agree in a sweet Harmony with the Saints and Angels in Heaven, and with all holy men our Brethren on Earth. The unanimous Consent of the Servants is a manifestation of the Masters Honour: And it is an evidence that our Lord is really such, and so glorious as we believe him to be, since all unite in the Profession of it. And this holds as in all Articles, so most evidently in the great Mystery of the Trinity, which the Celestial Choir own by their Trisagium; Holy, Holy, Holy. And the Catho-lick Church hath most unanimously acknowledged, most sacredly kept, and most courageously defended above all other Articles; so that all Christians agree in, who yet differ in many other points. Let us cheerfully acknowledge the infinite Majesty of the Father, who governs all Creatures; and declare the Father of his true and only Son, whose glory is greater than Salvation; let us confess the Divinity of that Spirit, who is our Advocate in Heaven, and our Comforter upon the Earth. Above let us be careful that the Humiliation of our merciful Redeemer do not lessen our esteem of him.

Ὁ Πατριάρχης. Utrumq; signif. Joh. xiv. 16. & 1 Ep. Joh. ii. 1.

revert which, the Church in this Hymn, as also in her Creeds makes the largest and most particular confession of the Son of God: We have here a full account of his Divinity and Humanity; because by the force of Satan these have been confounded and mistaken by so many Heresies; and we have also a Recital of those Works of his which most concern us, because of the interest of us all to know and believe these, which more directly tend to our Salvation than any other of the Works of God, and therefore do more strongly engage our Gratitude; for we shall find abundance of Praise both in what Jesus is in his nature, and what he hath done for us. He is very God, therefore we give him that title [King of Glory] which alone belongs to the Lord of Hosts. St. Ambrose (best Interpreter of this Hymn) saith, that the twenty fourth Psalm, was sung by the Angels at our Saviours Resurrection; those Angels came with him calling to him in heaven to open the gates to the King of Glory, who answered them as it is in that Psalm.

^b Psal. xxiv. 7. & 10. Quis est iste rex gloria? Respondetur à scientibus, Dominus virtutum, ipse est Rex gloria. Ergo Dominus virtutum est ipse filius. Ambr. de fide, l. 4.

And we may call him the King of Glory; as he is God, and because he hath purchased Glory for us, shall distribute it to us, and receive Glory and Honour from us and all that are partakers of it; yet his Glory depends not on our Praises, but is inseparable from his Nature, because he is the everlasting and only begotten Son of God; not created as the Angels, nor adopted as men; but by eternal generation coeternal with the Father and equal. What though he was born in time, and became the Son of Man? It doth not take away his being the Son of God: he change his Nature, but expresses his Love, and our Affections. Dear Jesus! whither hath thy Love carried thee! From Glory to Misery, from the high throne in Heaven to the low

*Ephes. iv. 9.
Pulchrum exordium nostri non recusat, sed contumelias nature nostra transcurrit. Hilar.*

meanest place that was pure, nor the lowest condition that Innocence could be put into. What cause have we to bless thee, who wert pleased to become

Et talis quod homo est & Christus esse voluit, ut homo posset esse quod Christus est.

what we were, that we might be what we deserved, but) as thou art! Holy Saviour, we be-and rejoice in believing, that thou wast born like us, livedst with us, and diedst for us; and thy Death was our Life: it was shameful and inglorious, sharp and tormenting, so terrible as might startle a great confidence in a good cause: But it was not more bitter to thee than it is to us. We, even we O Lord, had armed David with a Sting sharp and venomous, for our Sin provoked the Divine Wrath. And this Sting (tho parts of the Earth! How thou pursued us through all stages of our Infelicity! From dishonours of the Womb to dishonours of the Tomb, not abhorring the meanest place that was pure, nor the lowest condition that Innocence could be put into. What cause have we to bless thee, who wert pleased to become what we were, that we might be what we deserved, but) as thou art! Holy Saviour, we be-and rejoice in believing, that thou wast born like us, livedst with us, and diedst for us; and thy Death was our Life: it was shameful and inglorious, sharp and tormenting, so terrible as might startle a great confidence in a good cause: But it was not more bitter to thee than it is to us. We, even we O Lord, had armed David with a Sting sharp and venomous, for our Sin provoked the Divine Wrath. And this Sting (tho with the suffering of inexpressible (dolors) thou hast pulled out¹ and having satisfied the Justice of God, canst now triumph over Death itself, and enable us with comfort to say, O Death, where is thy sting, with which thou didst threaten all the world with unavoidable Destruction? Who can behold what thou hast suffered, and we have escaped, and not be ravished with thy Love, O blessed Lord Jesus! The way to Heaven was ever open to Innocence, but we all had sinned and come short of the Glory of God. Heavens gates were shut against us; and Hells mouth open to receive us. And in this estate our Life had been worse than Death, by the dreadful expectations of deserved Vengeance, and our Death had certainly delivered us up to feel what we feared. Do we live with any comfort? 'Tis thou hast removed our fears. Can we die with any peace?

 It is thou alone hast renewed our hopes. If Heaven be now open to receive any men that are, or ever were, or shall be; it is not by the merits of their own Innocence, but by those of this thy all-saving Death. We need not dispute de facto, whether any of the Saints before Christ had actual possession of Heavens Glory; (the Scripture is not clear, Heb. xi. 40. 1 Pet. iii. 19.
Matth. xxvii. 52. as some think, and the Fathers^m, especially S. Ambrose seem to deny it, nor is it easie to disprove them) but this we are sure of de Jure, that none under the Law nor the Gospel ever were received into Heaven, but by Faith in this Death of Jesus; God might admit men by the Merit of it, even before it was accomplished; but no Holiness that we are capable of can challenge Heaven, nor no feigned purgatory

¹ 1 Cor. xv. 57.

Gr. Kévter. Devictio
mortis aculeo. Ambr.

^m Clem. Alex. Stro. 2.
 Tert. de Animâ, c. 55.
 Cypr. Ser. in Dom. Pas.
 Ambrosius Comment.
 in Rom. 5. & passim.

purgatory Expiations can satisfy for our Sins. While whenever Abraham, Isaac and Jacob entered their Glory, it was in the right of Jesus, who by living Death, pulled out that fatal Sting, and opened Admission for all believers, not only for Jews, Saints of former ages, but for Gentiles and all World that shall so own him as a Saviour, as to g up themselves to be ruled by his holy Laws. A blessed Master indeed, was glorious with his Father ascendit nos ubi Verbum Deus ante nos factum est: Sed ubi Verbum caro factum ante nos fuerat. Rufin. in Symbol.

from all Eternity; he was in Heaven before: but not in our Nature, not as our Advocate, nor take Possession for us; but when he is restored to his Throne again, ready to receive all believers to the participation of his joys.

Now his glory is our great advantage and infinite comfort; so that we may receive this Article with a delight with which old Jacob did the news of his loved Joseph's advancement over all the Land of Egypt, assuring our selves, that he who stooped so low to us and suffered so much for us, will employ his regal Power and Glory for our good, even to take us up to him, and to let us reign with him, who ever lives make Intercession for us. We cannot see him in Glory at the right hand of God by the eye of Sense, but we do discern him by the eye of Faith; and we believe he shall be revealed in all this Glory, when he comes to judge the world at the last day. He shall then come to examine and pass sentence upon all, and we must every one bear our own burdens, so that we must concern our selves for the fate of others; but let us prepare our selves to prepare our own accounts, for we are sure he shall be our Judge: Our Guilt might make fear and tremble to think of it; yet his Mercy is comfort us and quicken us to make ready. Who could we rather wish should judge us than he that redeemed us; and he that now offers to give us a Pardon sealed in his own blood? Let us now accept his terms, and we need not tremble then, for so our Judge will be our Advocate and our Friend.

A. V. While therefore pray thee, help thy Servants whom thou hast redeemed with thy precious blood, &c. to the last Versicle, O Lord, in thee have I trusted, I will neber be confounded.] The last part which completh this devout and exquisite Form, turns both the Thanksgiving and Confession into Prayer, as a most natural consequence of all the preceding Considerations: For who can behold so great a God, so universally praised in Heaven and Earth, and not believe him to be the Fountain of all Goodness, and desire his Favour? Who can contemplate the Saviour of the world in his essential Glory, in his admirable Condescension, in his willing Humiliation, and illustrious Restoration, and not break forth into most passionate Supplications for a share in his Love? Or if we go back no farther than the two last Verses, we there saw him, with Stephen, sitting in all his Glory at the right hand of God, and shall we not request him to be mindful of us in his glory, whom in his low estate he purchased with his life and blood? And as he put on Weakness and submitted to Misery to redeem us, that he will employ his regained Power and Glory for our help and assistance. We say, he is to be praised by all the world, John v. 22: He cannot answer him for one of them. Are then our wisest way our Judge, Job ix. 15: For I know that I shall be tried at that day he will be at his Sentence and those whom he justifies or reputes innocent, shall

• Numerare pro reprobis.
Mai. iiii. 12. Sap. v. v. 5.
Πῶς καταλογίσαν ἐπ' ἡμῶν Θεῷ, καὶ ἐπ' ἀγίοις ὁ κλήρῳ αὐτοῦ. Græc.

set on the right hand, and be reckoned among the number of Saints and sealed ones, Reprobis and therefore let us pray to great Shepherd, that though the Sheep and Goats are in yet he will wash us with his blood, and pronounce guiltless; that our lot may be with his Saints.

that we may be thus disposed of, at the last day shall need not only his Mercy then, but his Grace to secure us in our passage through this world. W fore we pray with holy David in the last words of xxviii. Psalm, that God would use all means to • Psal. xxviii. ult.

Serva populum tuum & benedic hereditati tue, & rege eos, & extolle eos usque in æternum.
Vulg. Lat.

his people to his glory; even he would save them from all and bless them with all things. That he would and direct them in their and lift them up and support.

against all opposition for ever. And these are the of every Christians needs and desires. What can we wish or pray for, than to be rescued from trouble, and furnished with all blessings needful for Souls and Bodies? That God should feed us as a

• Heb. & LXX. Pasce eos, h. e. rege. Vulg. Sotores enim sunt artes pascendi & regnandi. Bail. Conc. 24.

herd (as the Hebrew reads; govern us as a Prince, coming our Duty by his Care Laws, that we may not stray go amiss. And lastly, that should bear us up against all the opposition of and his Instruments, and advance us from our estate, Job xxii. 19. Psal. ix. 14. to set us up on that where our enemies malice cannot reach us; but may stand safely there, till we are lifted up from it to Glory, which we cannot miss of, if God hear but these Petitions. Therefore having prayed for all that is needful for us as members of the Church, we now look more peculiarly to our selves considered apart. And since we are now and every day employed thus in praising God, we desire him to accept this as a testimony that we are his Servants. We declare it in David's Phrase, Psal. cxlv. 2. * only altering the tense and person. Lord help us, for we are thy Servants paying thee the daily tribute of Praise. Whatever thou bestowest on us will not be forgotten, nor buried in ungrateful silence. We meet in thy House every day to magnifie thee in this manner, and to set out the glory of thy Name in every thing thou dost for us. Withhold not thy Mercy, for we will not withhold thy Praise, and since we resolve day by day, that is, daily† to do the work of Angels; Lord, keep us pure as they are, for Praise is not seemly nor acceptable in the mouth of a Sinner. Let not us who are thy Servants in the morning, be the Devils Slaves before night; but preserve us holy all this day, that our afternoon

* Psal. cxlv. 2. Per singulos dies benedicam tibi, & laudabo nomen tuum, &c. Vulg. Lat.

† Hebr. reduplicatio distributionem significans, ut, Manè, Manè, pro unoquoque manè. Isai. xxviii. 19. & c. l. 4.

‡ Cœpisti melius quam desinis, ultima primis Distant. —

Sins may not rob us of the benefit of this days Praises, nor indispose us against the next morning, when our Duty will return. Dear Jesus, look on our Frailty and strengthen us, look on our Guilt and pardon us. We cry earnestly and double our request; Jesus, Master, (Matth. xx. 30. 31.) Have mercy on us, Have mercy on us; for our needs are great and pressing: unless we find Mercy for former Sins, we must be condemned by thee; and except we obtain Mercy for future Assistance,

The Te Deum.

PART I.

shall be overcome by Satan. O shut not thy eyes; consider not our Merits, but our Distin- Now we deserve nothing, but we have,
 O Lord (such is thy transcendent Goodness) that we have what we desire. Those that were before us we, have put words into our mouths, who in the Psalms* did not urge thee as if they had been worthy, but only trusted in thy mercy, and so do we. We rely not on our selves or any Creature, but on thee alone; for we know thou canst help us, and we have a persuasion thou wilt. All the world sees by our daily attendance on thee, that all our expectations are from thee.
 O do not disappoint those hopes that are grounded on thy tender xxxiii.22. Sit ad d. tua, De-us nos quem-servamus in

t. In te, De-us, non confidemus. V.

virtutem haquia speravi

...ug. de Verb.
 Ap. 7.

Mercy, lest Satan upbraid us, and the World slight us, and then we shall be confounded, and not know which way to look, Ezra viii.22. Psal. xxii.7,8. Lord, be it therefore unto us according to our Faith. Amen,
Amen.

The Paraphrase of the Te Deum.

§.VI. 1. [We praise thee] most heartily for all we have learned out of thy holy Word [O God,] and it shall be our care to observe thy Will, since [we acknowledge thee to be the Lord,] to whom we owe all Duty and Obedience. We esteem it our Happiness and Honour to be accounted thy Servants, who art Lord of all the world.

2. So that [all the earth] with its inhabitants joy with us, and [doth worship thee,] who art from E-ni.

nity, and in all ages hast been acknowledged to be [the Father everlasting.]

3. Nor doth this lower world alone own thy Supremacy, but Praise is given [to thee] by the several Orders of [all Angels,] who with harmonious voices [cry aloud] in proclaiming thy Glory, which is ever set forth by all the Hosts of [the Heavens,] the Thrones, Dominions, Principalities [and all the Powers] that are [therein.]

4. [To thee,] O God, triumphant Hymns are sung in that Celestial Choir: For the [Cherubin] on one side [and] the [Seraphin] on the other, with ravishing Melody chant thy Praise, and in their mysterious Adorations they [continually do cry:]

5. Saying one to another [holy] Father, [holy] Son; [holy] Spirit, three Persons, but one [Lord,] thou art the most mighty [God of Sabbath,] the supreme Commander of all the Hosts of Heaven, consisting of innumerable Myriads of blessed Spirits.

6. Thou makest us happy with beholding, and the Sons of Men with expecting thy Glory: so that all the Inhabitants of [Heaven and Earth] rejoice in thee, because all parts of the Universe [are full of] those manifestations of thy Power and Goodness, which declare [the Majesty of thy Glory.]

7. Thus the Angels sing, and (for our great comfort) many of our Brethren now glorified bear a part with them. [The glorious company of the Apostles] who preached Christ, and with unwearied diligence and patience, admirable courage and fidelity, shewed he was come to save the World; these are now in those Regions of Bliss, and there for ever [praise thee.]

8. As also all those Harbingers of thy Sons coming, inspired at sundry times and in divers manners; these are now met in Glory, and make up [the goodly fellowship of the Prophets,] whose words we read on earth, but they now are happy in beholding him of whom they fore-told, and also continually [praise thee.]

9. To all which blessed numbers are added those undaunted Legions, who sealed the truth of the Prophets predictions, and the Apostles preaching with their blood, even [the noble army of Martyrs] who conquered Infidelity and Cruelty by Faith and Patience; these now are passed from Torments to their Reward, and they with all other Saints and Angels, with united hearts and voices sweetly [praise thee.] O Lord, we long to be there, that we might see thee as clearly, and praise thee as heartily as they do.

6. VII. 10. But since we can now know thee only by Faith, we must glorifie thee by agreeing with [the holy Church] even our faithful Brethren [throughout all the world] in the Confession of that true Faith, whereby every good Christian [doth acknowledge thee] to be what thou hast revealed thy self to be in thy holy Word.

11. We believe in that Trinity which the Angels worship, even in thee [the Father] who by creating and governing all the world, declaredst thy self to be [of an infinite Majesty.]

12. And we believe in him that is equal in glory with thee, and one in nature [thine honourable, true and only] begotten [Son,] who hath redeemed us, that we of Slaves of Satan might be thy adopted Sons,

13. We do believe and acknowledge [also the Holy Ghost] to be very God (equal to and with the Father and the Son) who is the Advocate for us in Heaven, and [the comforter] of us upon the earth : And these three Persons are one God.

14. Thy gracious condescension, O blessed Jesus, shall not eclipse thy Divine Perfection, for though thou camest in our likeness to redeem us, yet we believe [thou art] equal with the Father, and [the King of glory,] for thou ever wast most glorious in thy self, and thou [O Christ] art anointed of God, a King and Priest for ever.

15. From Eternity thou art God, neither hadst thou thy beginning when thou wast made the Son of Man; for [thou art the everlasting Son] begotten [of the Father] before the world began.

16. Yet (blessed be thy name) thou didst change thy Glory for Misery, and sufferedst thy Eternity to be measured by Time; for [when thou tookst upon thee] that glorious design [to deliver man] from eternal Death, [thou didst not abhor] the meanest condition, but wast conceived in [the virgins womb] and born like unto us, only void of sin.

17. How cheerfully didst thou embrace a bitter and bloody Passion, to satisfy the Divine Justice provoked by our offences? And [when thou hadst] by suffering the wrath due to us, [overcome the sharpness] and that sting [of death] with which our sins had armed it, the whole world found the benefit of thy Cross : For by those merits [thou didst open] those gates of mercy which Iniquity had shut against all Mankind, for here alone admittance into [the Kingdom of Heaven] granted [to all believers] that are or were or ever shall be hereafter.

18. And no such can be excluded, for now [thou sittest] as a glorious Conqueror [at the right hand of God,] to intercede that the faithful may have the benefit of thy purchase, to keep possession for them, and finally to receive them to partake with thee [in the glory of the Father] which thou now enjoyest, and canst dispose it to whom thou pleasest.

19. To our great comfort therefore [we believe that thou] who hast been our Redeemer, and art our Advocate [thou shalt come] with millions of Angels in great glory to try all the world, and particularly [to be our Judge] with full Power to condemn or acquit us.

4. Vlll. 20. [We therefore] knowing our Guilt and remembering thy Justice, do before-hand beg thy Mercy, and most humbly [pray thee] to [help thy servants] with thy infinite Merits and abundant Grace; and to answer for them [whom thou hast] so dearly bought, and [redeemed with thy most precious blood,] that we may not lose the Benefit, nor thou the Glory of thy gracious purchase.

21. O do thou acquit all thy faithful ones, and by applying thy Merits [make them to be numbered with the Saints,] that being placed on thy right hand, they may have a part with thee and them [in glory] unspeakable and [eternal.]

22. And that thou maist have mercy on them in thy Kingdom, give them here all that may fit them for it, and bring them to it, [O Lord, save the people] from all evil which might dishearten or defile them [and bless] thy Church with all good things, which may make it flourish as [thyne heritage] and encourage it in well-doing.

23. Be thou a Shepherd to watch over and feed thy Servants, a King to defend and [govern them] in all thy holy ways: And when Satan and his Instruments design to cast them down, rescue [and lift them up] by thy Grace, above their Power and Malice, that they may be safe [for ever.]

24. Particularly, be mindful of us in this Congregation, who will never forget thee, but as we daily taste of thy mercies, so [day by day] we acknowledge them in thy House, and [we magnifie thee] for them with these sacred Hymns.

25. Thou art an ever-flowing Spring of Comfort, therefore we ever praise thee [and we worship thy name] both now in this world, and will glorify it in thy Kingdom [ever world without end.]

26. And as by our daily paying thee this tribute of Praise, we declare our selves thy Servants, [Thou safe, O Lord] to remember our frailty, and by thy grace [to keep us this day] (which we have begun in thy Service) holy, pure, and [without sin] that our present Sacrifice may be accepted, and our hearts fitly disposed against the next opportunity.

27. We have so often fallen into sin, and so sadly smarted for our folly, that we must now most earnestly beseech thee [O Lord] to forgive and [have mercy upon us] for all that is past; and again to [have mercy upon us] and deliver us for the remaining part of our lives.

28. We beg compassion of thee in all humility [O Lord, let thy mercy] come to us, and [lighten upon us,] not for our merits, nor after the proportion of our deserts, but of our Faith; even [like as we] encouraged by thy Promises most readily and firmly [do put our trust in thee] and hope for it.

The Te Deum. PART I.

though we do not challenge it by desert, yet thou wilt not frustrate any of our exas for every one of us renouncing all other , ca y [O Lord, in thee] alone [have I trustbeen I know thy Grace and Bounty. Let me now ask in vain; O [let me never] be put to me before the world or the Devil, nor [be conundeb] by being sent away empty. [Amen.]

SECT.

of the
&c.
&c.

B.C.
B.C.
K.A
B.C.
B.C.
B.C.
B.C.
B.C.

1c.
2c.
3c.
4c.

crk.

and

SECTION XI.

Of the Second Hymn after the first Lesson at Morning Prayer, or the Benedicite.

I. WE shall the more briefly pass this Hymn, because it is seldomer used, and sufficiently plain : Nor need we dispute about the Original of it, there being no necessity that our Hymns should always be taken out of the Canonical Scripture ; yet Epiphanius quotes it as in a matter of Faith ^a, and many of the Antients mention it with great respect, particularly Justinus ^b, and S. Augustin ^c, who Sixtus Senensis saith ^d, do affirm it was used to be sung in all Assemblies of the faithful from the beginning : And lest the Council of Toledo should be thought to have first introduced it into the Catholick Church, they do plainly declare, that they only enjoined it in their Countrey, as being already used in all other parts of the ^a In Ancorato, p. 504.

^b Ruffin. lib. 2. advers. Hieron.

^c Augustin. Serm. de de Sanctis, 47.

^d Sixtus Senens. Bibliothecæ, lib. 8. Hæres. 6. de lib. Dan.

^e Audistis in benedictionibus, & audistis

in solennitate quando leguntur, quomodo omnia laudant Deum, cælestia & terrestria, Angeli, homines, luminaria cæli, arbores, &c. Augustin. Homil. 35. Tom. 10.

world :

que trinum
in unum
in creatu-rant, & et tota Cap-am orbem publice ilium de-
ut. Con-
v. Anno 13.

world : Besides it is no other than a Paraphrase upon the cxlviii.
Psalm, agreeing so exactly with it both in words and sense, that we cannot despise this, but we must reproach that part of Holy Writ: and surely, if a clear method will recommend it, the following Analysis will shew this to be peculiarly excellent not account.

A brief Discourse upon the Benedicite.

O All ye works of the Lord, bless ye the Lord, praise him and magnifie him for ever. &c.] Although David had told us, that the Heavens declare Gods Glory, Psal xix. 1. yet he also elsewhere summons them to praise him, Psal cxlviii. 1, & 4. The works of God are so excellent in themselves, that they do without an Interpreter (as Philo notes) set forth the Wisdom and Power of their Creator. But yet since we are ignorant of the benefit of them, and as we have no Reason to understand, as we have no way to express the Glory of him who made both them and us.

Ita Ambros. Verum ex se sibi invicem mitterent; neque enim Sol & Luna interprete indigent. De Cain & Abel l. 1. c. 6.

We ought to lend the Creatures a Tongue where they may glorifie God, and while we Rhetorically speak to them, we do properly intend to excite our own Souls, to admire the Wisdom which contrived, to adore the Power which produced, and to love the Goodness which preserves the whole Creation, for the comfort of Mankind: And though everything we can behold reads us a Lecture of the Lords Bounty, yet our forgetfulness and ingratitude makes us have often need, by such a Hymn, to be enabled to praise the Lord for all his benefits, so that this Hymn is never unseasonable, yet it seems most proper for the Sabbath-day, which is designed for a joyful Remembrance of all Gods Works, and also for the reading the History of the Creation, or any part of Scripture where God is shewed to use the Creatures as instruments of his Justice or Mercy: As to the Composition itself, I know not how it is possible to bring the Works of God into a more natural and exact Method.

Method, beginning with the highest Heavens, and thence descending to the Orbs, where are placed the Powers of the Lord, that is, the Stars of greatest influence, and particularly the Planets, as Matth. xxiv. 29 as also the Sun and Moon which the Hebrews usually reckon by themselves, and lastly the lesser Stars; then follows the changes in the aery Heaven, made by Heat or Cold, Drought or Moisture, by Light or Darkness, that is, all sorts of Metcours with the seasons of the year, and the divisions of Time, in which they are produced: After this, it comes down to this lower world, and first begins with inanimate things; then proceeds to those which live, beginning with the most imperfect, those in the Sea and Air, Fish and Fowl, and then the more perfect, Beasts and Men on the Earth, especially exciting Gods own People, and immediate Servants, yea all that are truly pious, to join with these Three in praising, blessing and magnifying the Lord for ever and ever. Wherefore while we repeat it, let us consider the Comfort and Benefit we receive by each of these Works of God, and give such attention to it, that the Order of it may inform our Understanding, the Exactness quicken our Memory, and the universal Goodness which it doth describe, may exalt our Devotion; so that we may most heartily praise God for and with all Creatures in Heaven and Earth; and if we so recite this Hymn, it will need no other recommendation, than our own experience of the good which we receive from it.

of the Benediction

of the Benediction

of the Benediction

of the Benediction

of the Benediction

of the Benediction

of the Benediction

in after

Zacharias
New Te-of the first ibed to be
The In-he Matter
tionable ;
or discern subsequent in them.

Method
 thence de Powers of fluence, as as also the reckon by follows th or Cold, that is, a year, and produced world, an proceeds t imperfect,
 and then t Earth, esp mediate S with these the Lord f peat it, let receive by attention t Understand and the ui may exalt tily praise C and Earth
 no other re
 of the good

SECTION XII.

the Benedictus or the first Hymn after the second Lesson.

WE may justly reckon holy Zacharias the first Prophet of the New Testament, and this one of the first Angelical Hymns; wherefore it is prescribed to be immediately after the Gospel-Lesson. The In- of it was the Holy Ghost, so that the Matter the Original is Divine and unexceptionable; if any understand not the Sense of it, or discern how proper it is for this place, the subsequent sion and Discourse will sufficiently inform them.

A Practical Discourse upon the Benedictus.

§.III.V.68. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people, &c. unto V.73. [To perform the Duty which he hath to our forefather Abraham, that he should glorify us.] The Lesson which hath now been read out of the Gospel, doth not only require our Attention, but command our Gratitude, because it brings that good news which is the cause of great joy to all people. The Angels sing, and all holy men, to whom it was revealed, entertain the news with Hymns of Praise. And if we be as sensible of the Mercy as they were, and as thankful as we ought to be for the Benefit thereof, we shall rejoice as heartily as they did, since it is as much our concern as theirs. And how can we better express our gladness, for all that the Gospel records of what Jesus hath done for us, than in those sacred Forms indited by the Holy Spirit, with which devout persons welcomed our Lord into the world? These will be the most acceptable unto God, and the most beneficial to us, both to help us with fit expressions, and to engage us to sing them with the same heart and affections, which were in the first Composers; and particularly, with the devotion of holy Zachariah the Author of this Hymn; who after nine months silence recovering his speech, stays not to rejoice in that personal mercy, but being filled with the Divine Spirit, the inexpressible Joy that filled his heart before now breaks forth in these words; Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, &c. Wherein he in the phrase of ancient times, Gen. ix. 26. Psal. xli. 13. declares the wonderful goodness of God. And we ought to join with him, not scrupling the Jewish form of expression; because if we be true Christians, and have the Circumcision of the Heart, we are the Children of the Promise, Rom. ix. 8. the Seed of Abraham, and the Israel of God: And this God of our Israel hath in a more eminent manner delivered us from the Slavery of Satan than he did them from the bondage of Egypt. And though this Spiritual Redemption be much greater, yet is such a similitude in the Method and Circumstances, that it appears, that was a Type of this; and therefore Zachariah alludes to Gods delivering the People from Egyptian Misery; For as then he first visited them^a and considered their misery^b, and then he rescued them by his mighty hand: So in our case he visited us in all senses, remembered our Calamity, he pitied our Misery, considered our Distress, and came himself to us, making such a visit to us as men and Angels admire at. He came in our Nature clothed with our Infirmities, he staid with us and dwelt among us: And all this to redeem us, not by doing Miracles as Moses, but by suffering Death; not only by conquering our enraged Enemies, but satisfying an offended God; buying our Lives with his precious blood. And by taking our Punishment, who himself was innocent, he freed us both from Sin and the Wrath due to it^c, that we might with freedom and confidence serve our reconciled God.

May we call this a mighty visitation, being accomplished with as much Power as is undertaken with Love. Behold how many help-Creatures he delivers from cruel Burdens, mighty Labours and dreadful Expectations; nay, from the ^a Exod. iii. 16. Gr.

Ἐμελεῖσθαι.

^b Gen. xxi. 1. Visitavit. Chal. Par. Recordatus est, Ita Syr. (See Luc. vii. 16.) Arab. Repperit, Ita Vulg. Ruth 16.

^c Sustipiendo penam sine culpa & culpam deleuit & penam. Aug.

just vengeance of an angry, terrible and Almighty from endless and unsufferable Flames as horrid a ⁊ *Cornu, Robur & Imperiam vocat. Hieronym.

Hab.iii. Vide Dan.vii.
24. Et c.viii.21. 1 Sam.
ii.10. Chal. Par. pro Cornu habent Regnum.
Eccles. xlix.5.*

voidable. This was indeed of *salvation*⁴, that is, a Princely succour and rescue; as became the Son of so vi-ous a King as David was such as became the Son of when he undertook to rest

Kingdom of David (which now literally Herod & Romans had usurped, but spiritually Sin and Gu- overcome) yet Jesus will retrieve it and set it ever, not to deliver us from Temporal but Sp-Eternities, not from Tribute but Damnation; an not we rejoice at his Coronation? It is certain; it not a more illustrious Mercy than this which proclaimed so early to our first Father, Gen.iii.1 repeated so often by all the Prophets, Acts iii.24.
xxviii.7. Jer. xxiii.6. Isai. xxv.8. men of ex-Holiness, approved Integrity and unquestionable These all, as if they had but one mouth, unan-agreed in the Publication hereof. This is the that was so fully confirmed by Covenants and
Gen. xii.16. Heb. vi. 10 Abraham and all the fa-This was believed and hoped for by the Jews, an-⁊ *Percrebuerat Oriente tota vetus & constans opinio, esse in fatus ut eo tempore Judæa profecti verum potirentur.

Sueton. in Vespas. c.4.
Pluribus persuasio inerat antiquis sacerdotum literis contineri, eo ipso*

pected by the very Gent This is that good News cheared Adam after his Fajoiced Abraham in his Peretion, revived Jacob on his Bed, John viii. 56. Gen. xl and supported the Patriarch tempore fore, ut valesceret Oriens profectique Judæa rerum Tact. Hist. lib.5. Vide Numer. xxiv.17.

all their troubles, although they only saw it at a distance, and hoped and waited for the light while they themselves were in the dark. But when Zachary beheld the Morning-Star, and saw the Day begin to spring which had so long been wished and desired, he is ravished with holy Joy; like the Northern People, after a tedious Night when they see the Sun approach. And shall not they who lived by the bare hope of this, and he that was so over-joyed at the first glimpse of it, condemn us; who are daily taught that Christ is come, and hath confirmed Gods Truth, and answered all their expectations, if we rejoice not at least as much in the Performance, as they did in the Promise? Behold how God hath favoured us, to let us behold the accomplishing of the desire of all Nations. See how he hath glorified himself in giving the world such a manifestation of his truth, as will stop the mouths of his Enemies, and for ever strengthen the faith of his humble Servants. For now he hath made good all his Words and Promises, his Covenant and Protestations in the first and greatest Blessing of all, 2 Cor. i. 20. and so given that as an earnest to all the rest. The Night seemed long, and the People of God themselves began to fear, and the wicked to deride their expectation. But now we will trust in him; even though he defer, we will wait on him; for we find he will not forget his Promises nor falsifie his Word. O let us rejoice in the God of Truth, who hath sent this mighty Salvation to us, which is the Instrument of our Safety, and the Evidence of his Truth, and on both accounts the cause of our rejoicing.

§ IV. That we being delivered out of the hand of our enemies might serve him without fear: In holiness and righteousness before him all the days of our life.] But in the midst of our Joy we must not duty, nor so please our selves with the deof our advantage by this glorious Re-as to pass by the design of God in giving we think Jesus came to set us free from Death, us loose to Sin. He came to free us from the which we were fallen into under Satan, not to us of our Duty to himself, but to increase ation; for by redeeming us from Captivity ath, he engaged us to serve him all our lives, which the Laws of Nations¹ as optus ab hostibus well as common Gratitude doth vis serviat, de- determin. If he had not rescued reddiderit. us, yet we were bound to serve re B.P. 1.3. God, as his Creatures, and as he ...10. eme Lord and Law-giver to all the world. But we were redeemed we could not pay that Duty without fears and terrors, both because of the Tyrants whom we were enslaved to, and the Majesty we had offended against. And therefore without a Redeemer, our Service to God either would have been neglected, or else accompanied with such Tremblings and Anxieties, so devoid of Love or Faith or Hope, that it would have appeared constrained and not voluntary, and consequently it would have been unacceptable to God, and unprofitable to us. His Mercy therefore is designed to remove our Fears; not to quit us of our Obedience, but to make it more easie and pleasant, by appeasing Gods Wrath, restraining Satan's Power and increasing our Strength. So that now when we apply our selves to the Duties of Religion, if we be discouraged at our former Guilt, he will cleanse us; if we be amazed at Gods Justice, he will satishie it; or if we be affrighted at Satan's Malice, he will restrain it: We need not be disheartned at the Difficulty, he will h us; nor doubtful of the Event, he will procure A ptance and Reward. He hath taken off the Terrors of an offending Slave, and left us no fear but that which is useful, the Fear of an ingenuous and a dutiful Child, who out of Love to his Father is afraid to offend him, or to come short in his Duty to him. This blessed condition, to be able to serve God without fear, with Faith and Hope, Freedom and Cheerfulness, is the great comfort of every truly pious Soul; and if we be such, we shall reckon the Convenience to do our Duty, among the chiefest of our Felicities, and praise God as much for the Power to do good as for any other Blessing. Let us then (who pretend to more Gospel than any had then) imitate this blessed man, who in praising God for the Redemption, seems speedily to pass over all the benefits of Pardon and Reconciliation, and Glory itself; and chooseth above all to bless God for affording us Opportunity and Freedom to serve him without fear; as if Holiness and undisturb'd Obedience were the most desirable thing in the world, and the Heaven which Jesus brings. Let us behold our Duty, and rejoice in that, more than in our Pardon and Ease, and then we shew a noble Love. And let this Deliverance teach us to make such use of our Hopes and Comforts, as may quicken our Love and Obedience. And so this Hymn shall not only be a Form of Praise, but a Tutor to instruct us what returns we ought to make; even to walk holily in our Duties to God, and righteously in our Conversation with men, Titus i. 11. resolving that neither Ease nor pretended Gain shall entice us back to our Chains, nor all Satan's Menaces shall affright us from our gracious Master, whom we must now serve, not with such outward shews, Colos. iii. 22. as if we only courted human Approbation, but with such Sincerity, as being ever before him, and may declare he hath won our Hearts and engaged our Affections while we live. Therefore our Ear must be bored, to signifie we will now hear his Word, obey his Will, and never leave so sweet and dear a Master. And when we have a while found and considered the easiness of his Service, the greatness and readiness of his Assistance, the infiniteness and endlessness of his Rewards, we shall have cause to glorifie God for sending Jesus to bring us into this state, and think all our Duty too little to express our Obligation, and see reason to put it into our Benedicamus, that of Slaves of Satan, we are become Gods Free-men.
 T forget

Non sicut feram timeo, patrem timeo. 'Ο γὰρ φοβούμενος μὴ ὀφείλω τὸ πᾶν αἰσχεῖσθαι τὸν πατέρα ἀγαπᾶ αὐτόν. Clem. Alex. Strom. 2.

§.V. And thou, Child, shalt be called the Prophet of the Highest, for thou shalt, &c. unto the end.] God hath not only expressed his Love, in raising up a Saviour for us, but in making him known to us. And since our Obedience was designed, lest Ignorance should make apologies, Rom. x. 14, 15. the Divine Care did order it should be proclaimed to all the World: It was foretold at a great distance by the Prophets, to comfort the former Ages; and when it was just approaching, it was by a special Harbinger pointed out as near at hand to awaken mens Expectations, and summon them to prepare; for it was the great Interest of all Mankind, or else it had not been ushered in by so many Warnings. I doubt not but holy Zachary now felt the Joy which was the Etymology of his Sons Name, and the Truth of the Angels Promise^b: Not so much in that he had a Son, as in that he was to be the Messenger of the Lord of Hosts, the Herald and Harbinger to the Most High: And hence he rejoiceth not ^a Luke i. 14.

Gaudium & exultatio.

of the Angels Promise^b: Not so much in that he had a Son, as in that he was to be the Messenger of the Lord of Hosts, the Herald and Harbinger to the Most High: And hence he rejoiceth not so much in the particular Privilege of his Son; as in the general Benefit which the World might receive by his Message: And therefore he blesteth God for his Duty as well as his Office. For when such a Messenger came to assure them of the approach of the so long expected Messiah, and much desired Salvation; and to let the world know for what purposes the Most High did thus descend to Earth; it was to be hoped men would shake off their Sloth, and since he sent them so fair a notice, that they would not be surpris'd in their carelessness, but appear in an equipage suiting the greatness of his Majesty, the dearness of his Love, and the excellency of his Design: that was to come.

And this made the good man rejoice, hoping that when men saw their danger, and were shewed their Redeemer, they would fly into his arms for Remission and Grace: However, he praises God who hath done his part. And we have still the same cause of rejoicing for that which was then done by an Agent extraordinary, is now performed by the Ministers and Embassadors of Christ, and by the Gospel which you have now heard, these being ever resident among us, do now prepare a lodging for Jesus in your hearts when he comes in the Spirit to offer his Grace to you. Thus he is set before you, not to be gazed at, but to be entertained: And if you upon the warning prepare for him by Repentance, you shall also have Remission; and then you may with Zachary bless God for the Knowledge of Salvation that the Gospel gives unto you. And that the Exhortations of Ministers, and Summons of Gods Word may not be as ineffectual to us, as those of this great Prophet were to the Jews;

Ἰὼν ὁ βασιλέων βασιλεῖς, καὶ πᾶσι Συμπάντων ἡγεμόνι Θεῷ, δι' ἡμερότητα καὶ φιλοφροσύνην ἀξιώσαντι τὸ γεννητὸν ἐπισκέψασθαι ποταπὸν οἶκον ἀρεῶν καὶ κατασκηνώσας. Phuo de Cher.

The Benediculus. PART I.

the first cause of all this Mercy, both of Gods his Son to us, and giving us so many warnings to receive him : It was the ἀγλαῖα ἔλεος.

āglaiā miséricor-
diā. Σπέρμη, af-matris erga fēvisceribus suis prom. Jer. xxxi. 20.

bowels of Gods tender mercy^m which yearned to behold us in the hands, and under the sword of the merciless Executioner, and moved him to send his Son to rescue us by suffering the stroke for

It was not our Merits but our Misery not our is but Distress, that prevailed with him; we were worthy to die, yet his heart relented, and he could not see us bleed, and shall we be unmoved to let him bleed for us, and will we die for all this?
we are indeed in darkness, and could not see our way, and if we had fallen into the pit then, it had been our Calamity; but now the Morning appears, John teaches, Ministers preach, and Christ himself the

¹ Malach. iv. 2. Ἀνατο-λή ut LXX. Jer. xxiii.
5. Zach. iii. 9. malē Bez. Germin, confer
ver. 79. & Isai. ix. 2.
Camero Grotius, Chri- stus ἀνατολή dicitur à Patribus, Judaei bore-scopum ΠΩΥ vocare
solent; & ἀπώδυασμα.
Heb. i. 2. Syr. V. ΠΩΥ Scaliger.

^m Ἡ ὥρα ὅτε ὁ ἥλιος ἐκείνη ἡμέρᾳ ἔσται ὡς ἡ ἀνίσχουσα. Philo.

Son of Righteousness' began to spring from the East then, and now if we perish, 'tis our Wilful-ness and deserves no pity. O what hath God done to shew us the right way! sending first the Morning-Star the Harbinger of the Suns approach^m, and when the Heathens were benighted in Idolatry, the Jews with evil Principles, worse Practices and sad Afflictions; then did our Sun display his beams from on high; for he rose not from the earth, but his Rising was his Fall - his course a descent from Heaven to us, and if Zachary is so rejoiced with the Glim-ples, we should much more with the Meridian Glory

he now shines in. Let us not only rejoice in his Light for a season, but walk by it; if we be in darkness, it will shew us our condition, and then guide us into the right way; this Light will first convert us and then conduct us. The Apostle thought it was high time to awake then, Rom. xiii. 11, 12. and sure it is more so now; for if in the Light of Knowledge (in the day) we do the works of Darkness; that very Light which we will not suffer to direct us as a Guide, shall discover us to our Shame. But take warning, and let not this Light be set up in vain. Who would not most thankfully follow a friendly Light offered to him in an unknown, dark and dangerous way? The Devil would lead you up and down after the Ignis fatuus of Enthusiasm and your own Imaginations, till you sink into Destruction, but this Gospel is a true Light, be thankful for it, for its Precepts are the Beams of the Sun of Righteousness, and do not only admire, but follow it; and it will both shew you where you are, and carry you where you should be, even to everlasting Joy and Peace. Amen.

The Paraphrase of the Benedictus.

1. Praised and [~~Blessed~~ be the Lord] of Hosts, the [God of Israel,] even of all true Believers; [~~for he hath~~] now shewed us in his holy Gospel, how he remembered our Misery, beheld our Distress, and in pity sent his Son from Heaven; who hath [~~visited~~] in his Incarnation, [and redeemed] by his Death, us and all [~~his People~~] throughout the world.

2. He hath relieved us when we had no means of help, [~~and hath raised up~~] the greatest deliverer that ever

The Benediction. PART I be [a mighty salvation for us,] even and only Son made Man, descending (as said) of the Tribe of Judah, to succeed [us,] and restore the Kingdom [of his father,] and make it an everlasting Domi-

Our God hath not only helped us, but manifest-own Truth; for now he hath made good his and done [as he spake by] his Spirit in [the his Messengers [the holy Prophets which sent to give notice of this great mercy at times [since the world began.]

It rejoiceth our Souls to see the fulfilling of that they so often comforted Gods people with, by them [that we] and they [should be saved] visible Redeemer, [from our enemies] Sin and Satan [and] nobly rescued [from the hands] and out of the Power of those that had enslaved us, and [of all that hate us] and seek our ruin.

5. This is the blessed time, in which the God of Truth was pleased [to perform] the glorious work of our Redemption, which was [the mercy] so much desired by, and so graciously [promised to our forefathers:] Now he hath vouchsafed to call to mind [and to remember] the engagements he made to them in [his holy Covenant,] and hath made them good before our eyes.

6. Our gracious Lord is as sure [to perform] his word as he was ready to promise, and we now rejoice in the verification of [the oath which he] unchangeably [swore to our father Abraham,] to assure him [that he would give us] (who are his seed by faith) his own dear Son, for our Redemption.

7. And now what doth the Lord our God require in return for all his Mercy and Truth, but [that we being delivered] by the Death of Jesus from the wrath of God, and rescued [out of the hand of our enemies] might never by Sin put our selves in their power again; but being obliged by our Pardon, and assisted by his Grace henceforth [might serve him] with a lively Faith and chearful Hope, [without fear] of being hurt by Satan, or rejected by God?

8. So long as we walk [in holiness] towards him [and righteousness] toward our neighbours; and if our Religion and Charity be sincere, as done [before him] and constant, so as we continue in it [all the days of our life] we answer all his expectations, and need not doubt of Acceptance and Reward.

9. Lord, thou camest to make us holy as well as happy, and therefore thou hast sent an Harbinger S. John to acquaint us with thy design: [And thou, Child,] art chosen to give the world warning, and [shalt be called the Prophet of the highest] God, thy Office shall be to fit men to receive this mighty Saviour; [for thou shalt go] as a Herald [before the face of the Lord,] by severe Reproofs and powerful Exhortations [to prepare his ways] and bring men to Repentance.

10. Thou art sent to shew the danger of Sin, and [to give knowledge of] him that will bring [salvation to his people,] that they repenting and fearing the wrath to come, may forsake all Iniquity, and fly to Jesus [for the Remission of their sins.]

11. It is high time for us who are guilty of so many sins, to take care lest by impenitence and unpreparedness, we lose the benefit of this Salvation, which is provided for us [through the tender] bowels of the [mercy of our God, whereby] he pitied our desperate danger, and after our dismal night, hath given us the light of [the day spring,] even his only Son, who arose [from on high,] and leaving his heavenly Throne, [hath visited us:]

12. And now hath set up his Gospel among us [to give light] and discover the dangerous event of Sin [to them that sit in darkness] through ignorance, or by horrid guilt are in the valley [and in the shadow of death] that so they may be instructed, converted and live; [and to guide our feet] when we are thus brought out of our evil and dangerous paths, that we may enter [into the trap] that leads to the everlasting Kingdom [of peace.] Wherefore we will observe this Light, and follow this Guide, and ever praise thee for it, saying, Glory be to the Father, &c.

SECTION XIII.

~~the C. Psalm,~~ or the Second Hymn after the Second Lesson.

THe Church hath provided for our Delight, as well as our Necessities, by adding another Hymn out of the Old Testament, to shew that both Old and New Testaments agree in exciting us to praise God. The Title shews how well it fits this place, being stiled a Psalm Praise, and being composed for a Form of Publick thanksgiving: particularly to be sung by course at the Oblation of Peace-Offering^b, it may very well be a Form of Praise to us Christians after we have heard the spel of Peace: And especially since the Mercies which are here presented to stir up to give thanks, are those which are most fully covered in the holy Gospel; so that it is very proper to assist our Devotion, if we rightly understand it: and that we may do so shall be our next care.

^a Scriptus est ut sit forma publicæ gratiarum actionis, in sacro Dei populo. Moller. in loc.

^b Hamm. Annotat. in Psalm. c.

The Analysis of the C. Psalm.

S. II. This Hymn hath four parts.	I. An Exhortation to praise God; shewing,	1. The Persons who must do it, viz. all nations: 2. The Time when it must be done, viz. when we serve him:	V. 1. Be joyful in the Lord, all ye lands: Serve the Lord with gladness, and come before his presence with a song.
	II. The Motives to it, taken from	1. His essential Excellency: 2. His Works of 1. Creation: 2. Providence:	2. Be ye sure that the Lord be is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we our selves, we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture:
	III. The Exhortation renewed, shewing	1. The Place where we must praise God: 2. The Manner how:	3. Go your way into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him and speak good of his name.
	IV. New Motives to reinforce it, from	1. Gods gracious Nature: 2. His endless Mercy: 3. His never-failing Truth:	4. For the Lord is gracious, his mercy is everlasting: and his truth endureth from generation to generation.

A brief Discourse upon the C. Psalm.

§. III. O Be joyful in the Lord, all ye lands, &c. unto ~~the~~ we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.] When we have heard the words of the Holy Gospel, we ought to consider how the Divine Providence dispersed the joyful sound thereof into all lands, Rom. x. 18. So that now we may justly summon all lands to rejoice for the mercy of our Redemption, a blessing in which all Mankind is concerned, and all the world is obliged to lay aside those vainer Joys for lighter matters, in which it is so often employed; and to be joyful in the Lord, in the remembrance of his Goodness: Whilst we were Enemies, and without a Reconciler, we could not serve him, but with Fear and Terror, but now we may serve him with gladness. Hymns of Praise are now become a part of our Christian Worship, so that we must never come before him in our publick Addresses without acts of holy Joy and Eucharist. We have shewed you by the Penitential Part, how to unburthen your Conscience, and to make your Peace with God, and now we invite you to give us a Demonstration thereof, by exciting you to come before this great Majesty with a Song of rejoycing; the carnal man can rejoice in worldly contents, but in Gods Presence he is sad and dejected; whereas the devout Soul is never so full of delight as when before God: So that if any ask us, why we mingle so many Hymns with all our Duties, we here declare that the Holy Ghost enjoins us so to do, and the pleasure we find in so sweet an Office doth still more recommend it. And yet 2. 2. it is reasonable, as well as pleasant, for us to rejoice in the Lord; for, as to his Nature, he is the only true God

The Psalm. PART

orks, he is our Maker and Preserver; we ed our selves at first, nor have we since ir selves, and he who gave and continues id and doth it, that we might glorifie him and moreover the Gospel hath shewed us is the good Shepherd, who feeds our Souls ward, and laid down his Life for his Sheep, we hear of this, and not sing his Praise, could be so ungrateful, we deserve to be driven his pasture, and distressed rather than defended.

Go your way into his gates with praise, and into his courts with praise, and end.] The Mercies of God are so publick and al, that the private acknowledgments of single are not sufficient, but it is commanded that all meet in sacred Assemblies to join in this
 y. The Jews entered in by the gates, and so passed the courts of the Sanctuary, and went no nearer, but worshipped there, Luke i. 10. but we are admitted into the House of God; and sure we ought to come thither with glad Hearts, and Souls full of Thanksgiving. As soon as we come to the outmost gates of the Church, we should begin to think with comfort upon the goodness of him whom we come to worship.
 And the nearer we come, the higher our Gratitude should rise; but when we are before him, we must then give him particular thanks for all his Mercies to us, and besides we must, in the general, Speak good of his Name, and declare how gracious he is in himself, and how loving to all the world beside: No Creature can justly speak the least evil indeed of his blessed Name, but our experience obligeth us to speak all imginable good: And the last Verse shews the reason because he is so gracious and so merciful, so faithful and so true : He ever was so to former ages, he is so to this, and will be to all generations. His very Providence doth prove all this, but the Gospel which hath now been read doth manifest it still more clearly. Consider how freely he gave his own Son, and you will say he is most gracious. Think what unworthy and miserable Creatures he gave him for, and you must confess his mercy is everlasting : Remember how fully every thing was accomplished which had been predicted or promised, and you must acknowledge his Truth doth never fail. O how great a gift hath he given us ? How admirable a Pity hath he shewed to us ? How exactly are all his Promises fulfilled ? Not a Lesson in this part of Gods Word, but doth evidence some or all of this, and therefore they ought to be concluded with such a Hymn of Praise. And finally, as in this great Work of our Redemption it doth appear that the Father was so infinitely gracious, the Son so incomparably merciful, and the Holy Ghost in all the Promises of Scripture so infallibly true, we may justly conclude with Glory be to the Father, &c.

A Paraphrase of the C. Psalm.

Ver. 1. [Be joyful] and rejoice with an holy Joy [in the Lord] Jehovah, [all ye] people of all [lands,] but you to whom the Gospel is revealed, do ye more especially [serve the Lord with gladness] in your hearts, [and come] as his reconciled Children [before his presence with a Song] of Praise in your mouths.

Ver. 2. For there is reason both for Heathens and Christians thus to praise him ; for first, [be ye sure] O ye Gentiles, [that the Lord he is] the only true [God,] and besides [it is he that hath made us] all, and gave us our being, [and not we] that made [our selves]

selves:] So that all the world is bound to bless him upon this account: But we more peculiarly, because [we are] those he hath chosen to be [his people,] Jesus Christ is our Shepherd, and we are his Flock [and the sheep of] his particular care; for God hath put us into [his hand.]

Ver. 3. [D]o not then smother his Praise in private, but [go your way] to his House upon all opportunities, and enter [into his gates with thanksgiving] for your particular Mercies, [and into his courts with praise] for his universal Goodness: Whatever Duties you perform there, be sure that you [be thankful unto him] in your hearts, [and] let your tongue [speak] all the [good] imaginable [of his name,] since all your Praises will come far short of what he deserves.

Ver. 4. [Ps 2] by the Gospel now read it most fully appears, that [the Lord is gracious] in his own nature, [and his mercy] and pity towards us [is everlasting] reaching to the end of the world: And by the fulfilling these promises, his fidelity [and his truth endureth] unshaken, being made good [from] one [generation to] another [generation;] so that we may rely on him for ever. Glory be to the Father, &c.

ter

ded ave gin,
the ful
of
and
and iose ade ro-
cry

50
O
C
e l e
b r
a
t
e s
t h e g
l o r y o f t h e D
e i
t y o f
G
o
d
t h e
F
a
t h e r
a l
l
t h e
t
i m e s b y
t r
i u m p h a n
t
s a n
d
b y
t r
i u m p h a n
t
s magnify

my spirit God my

garded the his hand.

om hence-tions shall

is mighty
me,
name.

is on them throughout
s.

ed strength be hath oud in the
of their

down the
their seat,

SECTION XIV.

the Magnificat or the first Hymn after the first Lesson at Evening-Prayer.

THis is the first Divine Canticle recorded in the Holy Gospel, and seems to have been composed by the Blessed Virgin, who with unspeakable Joy reflected upon all the miseries of the Old Testament, now about to be fulfilled in that holy Conception and happy Birth, of which God had designed her to be the Instrument, and therefore is properly set after the first Lesson; and as we have seen all those Types verified, all those predictions completed, and all those Promises made good, which are contained in the Law and the Prophecies concerning Christ, doubtless this must be a very great comfort for a Christians Joy after the hearing thereof: Truly this with the Benedictus and Nunc Dimittis have not only been used very antiently in the Western Church, but are still retained in the Reformed Churches both of Germany and Holland, as well as in this Church. But the internal Glory of this blessed Hymn will best appear by the following Explication.

A Practical Discourse upon the Magnificat

§.III. V.46. M^y Soul doth magnifie the Lord and my Spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour.] The Blessed Virgin (whom God chose to be the Instrument of the greatest Blessing ever the world had) by the fruit of her lips, as we of her womb, hath given apparent testimony of the extraordinary presence of the Divine Spirit with her in her. For this sacred Hymn breaths forth such lo mixtures of Faith and Fear, Humility and Love, Charity and Devotion, that it appears she was full of grace as well as highly favoured. And it should be our V and Endeavour to repeat it with the same Affect and holy Fervors, with which she indited it : Perhaps we think we have not the same occasion ; true, God the Word took Flesh in her womb, that is her peculiar Privilege : But if we receive the Word of God and the motions of the Holy Spirit

^a Verbum carnem facere, est verbum in opus, scripturas in operas convertere. Bish. Andr. Ser. 6.

^b Sit in singulis Mariæ anima — Nam etsi secundum carnem una mater est Christi, secundum fidem tamen omnium fructus est. Ambr. in Luc.

^c Omnis enim anima concipit Dei verbum, si tamen immaculata & immunis à vitiis intemperate castimoniam pudore custodiat. Idem.

that attend it, we may turn the Word into Flesh ^a by Faith and Obedience; if we so hear as to Obey ^b, we do conceive Christ by Faith; he is formed in us ^c by the overshadowing power of the Holy Ghost in a pure heart, and he brings forth Holiness brought forth; for Christ himself calls such, Matth. xi. by the name of his Mother. We are to rejoice with all that do rejoice. But especially when we are shut in the mercy and advantage with many occasions that Joy; wherefore we are most of all obliged to rejoice with the Blessed Vi both as she was the Mother of our Redeemer according to the Flesh, and because we may be so according to the Spirit. The Lesson we now heard is out of the Old Testament, and as there we find the Records and Examples of the Divine Mercy to the pious and humble, and of his Vengeance upon the proud and arrogant, so here we find a Form of Praise for those Dispensations of Gods Providence; and since all the deliverances of Gods People there related, are either founded on this mercy of our Redemption, or flow from it, or are directed to it, this Hymn will teach us to turn the Old Testament into Gospel, and with the holy Patriarchs ever to apply^d all to this great Salvation, of which all other Mercies were but Types: Behold then the Mother of Jesus, saying to you, O praise the Lord with me, Psal. xxxiv 4. and let us magnifie his Name together: Let us shew forth the greatness of his Power and Goodness, for we cannot set out his Perfections with any advantage, nor represent him greater than really he is (as we often magnifie one another;) but then we magnifie the Lord^e, when we declare how great he really is; and let us advance his glory as high as is possible, for there is no danger of exceeding; our Praises will be short, but they must be real; wherefore before we can bear a part in this Anthem, we must get our Souls affected with a sense of his infinite Power, and our minds exalted with the belief of his excellent Mercy; so our Praise shall be no Complement, but our Soul and Spirit shall bear their part, and our Thanksgiving shall be real as his Favours are ^d Gen. xlix. 18.

Non expecto redemptionem Sampsonis quæ est salus transitoria, sed expecto redemptionem Messie filii David. Targ. in locum.

^e Non ipsi faciendo se magnus sit, qui per se ipsam magnus est, sed laudando et magnam faciendo. August. enar. in Psal.

Let his admirable Love present itself to our Affections until it excite our Wonder and Joy, our Hopes and Desires. And then let us still behold it, till these Passions begin to delight in the Divine Love, and to be moved by it, and then they will carry a lovely Notion and fair Idea of it to the mind, and so effectually recommend it, that the whole inward man shall be ravished with the beautiful Prospect, and every Faculty of the Soul and part of the Affections shall unite into a devout Celebration of the Diving Mercy. Behold the holiest of Women; observe where she fixes her Eye, and whither she directs her Praises: She rejoiceth not in her own Excellencies, nor doth she magnifie herself, but God her Saviour; which may check our Vanity, who are so apt in a prosperous Success and unexpected Exaltation, to sacrifice to our own † Hoc ego feci, non fortuna. Dictum Timoth. Ducis.

‡ Tuum, Domine, est bonum, tua itaque est gloria: Qui enim de bono tuo gloriam sibi querit & non tibi, fur est & latro, similisq; diabolo, qui voluit furari gloriam tuam. Aug. Soliloq. c. 15.

deserts^f, to crown our selves, though we snatch it from the head of Heavens King; but sure since he gives the Blessing, he deserves the Honour^g, and he that pays it not is a double Thief, and steals the Gift and the Glory also; for both are his. She that was the Mother of Jesus after the Flesh, thinks it no disparagement to confess her Son to be her Saviour, but rejoices that he was so. Let not us then think we are saved from temporal evils, or can be from eternal Death without him, and let us esteem it a greater honour to us, and a surer ground of our rejoicing, that the most high God is become our Salvation, than if we had our Strength in our own hands.

§.IV. V. 47, 48, 49. For he hath regarded the lowliness of his hand-maiden, unto For he that is mighty hath magnified me, and holy is his name.] There is nothing gives the dimensions of Gods Love to us more truly, then the sight and sense of our own vileness, when we behold our selves so low and despicable as indeed we are; than the Glories of the Divine Majesty in stooping to us, and looking on us in our low estate will shine in their native Lustre; when we see how worthless we are, and what favour we have obtained beyond our expectations, as much as our deserts, then our Souls will magnifie the Lord in the apprehensions of his Greatness, and our Spirits rejoice in the admirable Goodness of God our Saviour. Thus the Blessed Virgin was inspired with these Seraphical Ecstasies of Joy by looking on the mean condition in which this infinite Mercy surprised her; she was not arrived to the Honour of Marriage; and in the opinion of the Daughters of Jerusalem (who esteemed it a huge reproach^h and a great affliction to be without children) her estate was reputed disgraceful; and her fortunes were really very mean, for though she sprung from the Blood-Royal of Judah, yet she was then a poor obscure Maid, unknown to the world, but regarded by him that loves to lodge in the lowest hearts (Isai. lvii. 15.) of the poor and pious, as well as in the highest heavens; she was in her lowest estate the Lords Handmaid, and devoutly served him day and night, and her Piety sanctified her Poverty, and drew the eye of God to regard her, as he will the meanest of us, if our Obedience equal hers, and especially if our minds be as low as our estate is; for so was this excellent Virgins, who by ^h 1 Sam. i. ii.

Τὴν ταπεινωσάμεν ἡ δουλὴς σε. LXX. pro sterilitate, Gen. xxix.
32.

Lowliness here, means not her Humility ; it had argued Pride to have so high a conceit of her Lowliness of mind, as to believe it merited Gods Favour ; therefore ἡ τὴν ταπεινότητα ἀβ-jectionem & humilem conditionem ταπεινωσας ὡς ἡνὶκα ἡνὶκα verò humilitatem significare asserit Erasmus.

it was her Meanness and Poverty ; which she means by her lowliness, and which she so freely confesseth and heartily praiseth God for regarding. No doubt her Humility was eminent in her afflicted condition ; for when she was advanced to be the Mother of the Worlds Saviour, she seeks no greater honour than to be stiled, the hand-maid of the Lord, ver. 38. O blessed Soul ! that was ever the same, neither dejected in her Affliction, nor puffed up with her Exaltation, but serves God chearfully in the one, and praises him heartily for the other : She beholds an infinite and lasting honour prepared for her, not alone ἡ Gen. xxx. 13.

Syr. pro Gloria mea.

among the daughters of one place or generation, as Leah ^k ; but she was to be the Mother of a universal and everlasting Blessing, which all former ages had desired, and all future times should rejoice in, and both would proclame her happy above all Women, who should be the Instrument of this Mercy : And yet she resigns all this Glory to him ἡ Διὰ τὴν ἡμῶν μακαρίσιν ; ἀρετὰ διὰ τὴν ἐμὴν ἀρετήν ; ὅτι, ἀλλ' ὅτι ἐ-ποίησε μετ' ἐμῶν μεγα-λεία. Theophylact.

in locum.

that gave it her, and declares whence she received it ^l ; that not her name but his might have the Glory : And sure she deserves the more esteem, because she returned the honor to God. Wherefore they are most wretched, who ^m disre- spect her, whom God hath cho-

^m Aequale est enim in utrisque his scētis de-trimentum ; quum illi quidem vilipendant sanctam virginem, hi verò rursus ultra decorum glorificent. Epiph. Tom. 2. Har. 79.

sen, and out of pretended hatred to Superstition, will scarce allow her the Reverence of an excellent Person; and yet no doubt she would detest those Ave's and Gratulations which some superstitious Votaries (to the dishonour of God whom she praised) do bestow upon her, because she calls her Son her Saviour, and herself the handmaid of the Lord, so that it is our Duty to reverence, but not adore her; for she will assure you, it was Gods infinite Power (for which he is deservedly called the most mighty *) which wrought this Miracle ° of Jesus his Incarnation, and which was the cause of her Honour: He magnified her, and therefore she magnifies him, and teacheth us to hallow his Name, for it is holy and reverend, Psal. cxi. 9. in itself, and deserves to be so esteemed for ever and ever.

» 'O σωατορς, Heb. תַּיְיָ; nomen Dei. Psal. xxiv. 8.

° Μεγαλῆα, vis miras & magnas. Deut. x. 21. Psal. xxvi. 2. Acts ii. 11.

§. V. Ver. 50,—54. And his mercy is on them that fear him, &c. unto the end.] Now that all may join with her in the Praises of the most holy, she passeth from the consideration of her personal Privileges to the universal Goodness of God in the constant dispensations of his Providence, that we may see his mercy was not confined to that time, nor limited to one person: for as she had now experienced the Bounty and Kindness of him that she had served, so all Gods faithful Servants that ever were, and all that ever shall be, are assured to find the like. Wherefore when our particular mercies occasion our joy, let us not confine our Gratitude to our private concerns, but delight to hear out of Gods Word those numerous instances of the rewards of Holiness, and the blessings of true Piety in all times, that so we may have nobler sentiments of the Divine Goodness, by viewing the Extent and Duration of it : And that we may be the more encouraged to go on in that course which will so certainly be our advantage, let the Mother of Jesus and all holy men we read of in Sacred Writ, recommend the Fear of God to us, which they have found so beneficial ; for if we be truly religious, be our condition never so despicable or deplorable, we may be sure of help from heaven : Was not all Mankind become hopeless and helpless, when God made bare his holy Arm, and helped us by him that was the strength of his right hand, Isai. lxxiii. 5. dispersing our lofty spiritual Enemies, who thought they had us sure their Slaves for ever ? And when these Enemies are thus scattered, shall we fear Satan's broken forces, those instruments of his that would discourage us in our Obedience, by slanders and contempt, wrongs and injuries, menaces and threatnings ? No surely, we have the Strength of God for us, his Finger could destroy

* Psal. cxviii. 15.

Magna Dei efficacia per digitum, major per manum, maxima per brachium indicatur. Psal. lxxvii. 16. Exod. xv. 6. Grot.

† August. legit αὐτῶν, in cogitatione cordis sui superbos dissipavit.

them, his Hand crush them to nothing^p, but he will employ the might of his arm in it, although the very Breath of his displeasure, nay the Thought and Imagination of his heart^q be sufficient to consume them and dissipate all their counsels, be they never so mighty in the worlds eye, or high in their own imagination, they cannot harm us, nor shall not discourage us from serving God. How did the Princes of the world, the Jewish Pharisees and Gentile Philosophers, scorn the beginnings of the Gospel, designing to crush it by Power or disgrace it by pretended Holiness, or confute it by subtle Arguments ; but contrary to all their expectations Jesus prevailed over the Ostentation of the Pharisees, the

Learn-

Learning of the Philosophers, and the Legions of the Roman Emperors; so that by an omnipotent but invisible Arm in a few ages, his Enemies vanished, and Princes Crowns were laid at his feet. Read the Word of God, and observe the methods of his Providence, and you shall find he hath ever appeared an enemy to those proud and lofty ones^r, who are enthroned in their own vain-glories; and suppose they have strength enough to secure their Grandeur, his irresistible Arm shall pull them down, and set up those whom they despise in their place: Whereby he gives not only an evidence of his Power, but

of his Wisdom and Justice, for Disappointment and Poverty is the most smarting punishment to Pride and Insolence; and Honour and Exaltation is so unexpected to the humble, that they will be most thankful for it, and most careful to use it to his Glory, who bestowed it on them. Jacob and Joseph, Gideon and David were the youngest and least considerable in their Fathers Houses. Leah was hated, and Hannah (whose Song of Praise, 1 Sam. ii. 1. Mary here imitates) she was despised, and so was this Blessed Virgin; who was so mean and obscure, that the honourable Ladies and stately Dames of Israel, being all ambitious to be the Mothers of the Messiah, would have scorned her a place among their handmaids; yet they are passed by, and she is designed to this Felicity, and she magnifies the Lord for it; but those that are great and full of earthly Honours, expect these Favours as their due, and cannot desire them with the Hunger and Thirst of the poor and lowly, nor return their thanks with the like Devotion; therefore these are disappointed of their

^r Æsopus rogatus, quid Jupiter agit? Resp.

Ἰψὺν ἀπαπεινῶν, καὶ τὰ ταπεινὰ ἀνυψῶν.

ῥεῖα μὲν γὰρ βεβαιοῖ, ῥεῖα δὲ βεβαιοῦντα χαλέπει.

ῥεῖα δὲ ἀειζήλον μινύθει, καὶ ἀδμήλον ἀεξῆ.

Hesiod.

† Ἀπελθεῖναι καὶ dicuntur, qui ad ali-quem veniunt, benefici-um expectantes & non inveniunt. Luc. xx.
10, 11. Job xxii. 9.

their hope, and sent away empty †, and the mercy is given to those that least expected it, and will be most thankful for it. Let us therefore be lowly in heart, when our condition is low ; and if we have a sense of our wants, and a desire after Gods help, we shall be lovely in his eyes, though the world trample on us, he will exalt and fill us with all good things, even to our own Admiration, and the Envy of those who did despise us : The World is full of instances of these dispensations of Providence, but the most excellent and illustrious testimony that ever was, appeared in the spiritual advantages which the Israel of God received in the giving the Messiah : We were then just ready to sink into ruin, had he not laid hold of us, Heb. ii. 16. and by his mighty Arm rescued us from the Pit ; we were justly abdicated by God our Father, and disinherited, but Jesus comes to reconcile us, and † Filius abdicatus in gratiam rediens Græcis dicitur ἀναλαμβάνειν τὸ ἥθος, & Pater ἀν- πληροῦσθαι. Scult. Exerc.

in him we are restored to favour † and received into grace again ; and thus the Promise made to Abraham is made good, and the Lord becomes the God of his seed for ever. O my Soul, acknowledge the gracious dealings of thy most merciful Father, but above all, praise him for the mercies of the Gospel ; for what comfort were it to be raised by the fall of our temporal enemies to a fading Honour, if a miserable Eternity did succeed ? But now by Faith in Jesus thou art not only secured in thy low estate, but maist behold an immoveable Throne, an immortal Crown prepared for thee, high as Heaven, while all the proud workers of Iniquity shall fall low as Hell, never to rise again : Glory be to the Father, &c.

The Paraphrase of the Magnificat.

1. O praise the Lord with me, all ye that behold his inexpressible Goodness, which hath exalted my Affections, and filled [my Soul] with such glorious apprehensions, that with all its powers it [doth magnifie] and set forth the admirable greatness of [the Lord,] my mind also [and my spirit] ravished with the contemplation of his infinite Goodness [doth rejoice] with joy unspeakable [in God,] who hath vouchsafed to become [my Saviour.]

2. I cannot sufficiently express his Mercy, nor my Gratitude, [for he] that is the Majesty of Heaven, by his marvellous condescension [hath regarded] and cast a gracious eye on the poverty and [the lowliness] of my condition, who am so inconsiderable, and never aimed higher than to be reputed amongst the meanest of his Servants, and called by the name [of his hand-maiden.]

3. I am most despicable in the worlds eyes and vile in my own, yet he hath conferred on me a high and lasting honour; [for behold] he hath passed by the more noble, and chosen me to be the Mother of the Worlds Saviour, so that [from henceforth] whenever this Mercy is mentioned to the honour of God, his Favour toward me will be remembered by the people of [all generations,] who shall bless God for it, and [shall call me blessed] and account me happy above all women.

4. But I will freely acknowledge it was not my own Merit nor Strength that advanced me, [for he that is mighty] in Power and infinite in Mercy, most freely hath exalted me, and [hath magnified me] his poor unworthy Handmaid, his therefore is the Glory.

his the Praise, [and holp] and reverend [is his Name,] which I and all his Servants will ever love and honour.

5. For I am not the only instance of his Goodness, nor do I confine my Praises to my particular occasion: All the world sees and knows that his Favour [and his Mercie is] ever shewed [on them that fear him,] so that holy and pious men are blessed by him, and shall be [throughout all generations] while the world endureth.

6. Ye Servants of the Lord, consider how in all the course of his Providence, especially in this great Redemption [he hath shewed strength] and a mighty power; for [with his arm] he hath secured and lifted up his own, and by it [he hath scattered] the forces and baffled the designs of [the proud,] who thought they only deserved to be respected by God, and who were safe [in the imaginations of their hearts.]

7. At all times he disappoints such expectations, and now, as at other times [he hath put down] the wise, the honourable, and [the mighty from their seats] and thrones, on which their Pride had mounted them: [And hath exalted] to that honour [the humble and meek,] even those whom the arrogant most despised.

8. [He hath filled] most plenteously the souls of [the hungry] that earnestly desired the least favours, and satisfied their longings [with good things] beyond their expectations, [and the rich] whose pride made them think themselves fittest objects of his bounty, and yet their abundance abated their desires after it, these [he hath] disappointed and [sent empty away.]

REPORT OF THE JOINT COMMITTEE

5
6
7
8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16
17 18 19 20 21
22
23 24
25 26 27 28 29 30 31 32 33 34 35 36 37 38 39 40 41 42 43 44
45
46 47 48 49
50 51
52 53 54
55 56 57 58 59 60 61
62
63
64 65 66
67 68
69
70 71 72 73
74
75 76
77 78
79 80
81
82 83
84
85 86 87
88 89 90
91 92
93 94
95
96
97
98
99 100

2

It
re
of z.
th is id at er id
of p's ic

will best be discerned by a closer Enarration,

The

hant. 2:17

at

m

A

bl

fo

th en

en

th

R

pe

ed

for

th an

be

be any wil

fea

ted

but mo

no

no

[th

and yon

mad

ty,

it,

may.]

may.]

28.

1. Sing unto the Lord in song:

He hath done marvellous works.

2. With his arm right and with his holy arm he gotten himself the victo-

The Lord declared his power, his righteousness is openly shewed in the eyes of the heathen.

He hath remembered his covenant and truth toward the house of Israel,

And the ends of the world seen the salvation of Israel.

182
183
184

242

243

244

9. And as in all other places, so now [he remembering] the constant method of [his mercy,] and seeing his people's distress, [hath holpen] and again required [his servant Israel] and all faithful people to pour, and the hopes of glory [as he promised] to the Saints of former ages, even to [our forefathers] peculiarly assuring [Abraham] that he would give a saviour to redeem, and bring deliverance to us [and his seed for ever.] Glory be to the Father, &c.

SECTION XV.

Of the XCVIII. Psalm or the Second Hymn after the First Lesson.

INSTEAD of the former Hymn, made by the most excellent of the Daughters of David, we have a Psalm of David's own composing, out of intituled a new song, is said by the Antients to the novum seculum, or the Gospel-times, Lesson doth every day present us with new of Gods Wisdom and Power, Justice and we should daily renew our Song of Praise, and we sing this Anthem frequently, yet a new and a fresh sense of the miraculous Works which hath wrought for his Church, will make it every day. Wherefore let us reflect upon what we have lately read, and consider how certainly our Enemies fall before him; he needs no assistance, his own right hand alone is able to get him the victory over all opposers; and though sometimes he uses earthly Powers as Instruments to suppress the ungodly, yet all mortal Arms and Forces are so weak and feeble of themselves, that it is purely by his influence and aid they do prevail, so that his people freely acknowledge it is not their own Arm that saves them, but his band, &c. Psal. xlv. 3, 4. and whereas when Kings are mighty, they are too often cruel and unjust ved him to promise, and his Truth obligeth him to perform these things for the Church; the House of Israel, and all Nations may discern it, but now that Jesus is come, we may well spiritualize this Verse, and sing a new song to God, who hath not only remembered his mercy and his Promise to the Jews, but manifested his Son for Salvation to all the World, even to the utmost parts of the Earth.

Miserabilis promissio promissionis, promissionis veritatem. August. in loc.

§.IV. Ver. 5 6, &c. Shew your selves joyful unto the Lord, all ye Lands, sing, rejoyce and give thanks, &c. to the end.] Since the Glory of God is manifested to all Lands, they ought all to join in praising his holy Name, and that by all due means which may express an hearty Joy, particularly by all sorts of Musick, by stringed instruments and voices, and by wind-instruments also; for Musick is the gift of God, and tends not to express, but to beget the affection of Joy, it doth compose the thoughts, calm the mind, and put the soul into a posture of grateful seriousness, and therefore we shall find it of as early use in Divine Worship as any where else, and since all liverances he doth at present judge the Earth, and when he punisheth evil doers and saveth those who do well, he declares himself to be even at the present a righteous and equal Judge among men; but besides the eminent overthrows of the wicked, and rescues of the pious are signs and evidences of the last dreadful but just Judgment, when God shall come to deliver all his Saints for ever and to execute eternal vengeance on their enemies, when we hear out of the Lesson instances of particular Deliverances and Judgments, we ought to rejoyce, not only in hopes that God will do the like here in this world, but by taking these as fore-runners and assurances of the great Day which is coming, when all our wrongs shall be righted, and all our losses repaired, and we shall begin an undisturbed Felicity. We are indeed apter to tremble than to rejoyce at this day, but as S. Augustin notes, “ We must “ amend our lives, and then we may joyfully expect “ it.--- We pray (saith he) that Gods Kingdom may “ come, yet we fear it should come; let us amend “ our selves, lest we pray against our selves. (Enar. in Psal. xcviij.) We ought all to be holy, and if we were so, we might and ought to rejoyce even in Gods Judgments.

The Paraphrase of the XCVIII. Psalm.

1. [Θ] you who have heard these new instances of Gods Power and Mercy [sing unto the Lord] with a renewed Devotion [a new song] of Praise, [for he hath] in all ages [done marvellous things] for his Church.

2. When any enemies arose against it, [with his own right hand] and power alone, [and with] the only might of [his holy arm,] which is stretched out against

against none but sinners [bath he gotten] unto his Church, and unto [himself the victorie] over all those ungodly opposers.

3. Nor are these things done in a corner, for [the Lord] hath most illustriously [declared] these deliverances to be [his salvation,] and they are so just, that [his righteousness] by them [bath he openly shewed] by the destruction of the wicked [in the sight of the heathen,] so that his enemies give testimony to his equity.

4. And indeed he is good to all, for [he hath remembered his mercy] in promising great favours, [and] his [truth] in performing them [toward the house of Israel,] namely his own Church and People, [and all the] furthest corners and utmost [ends of the] Heavens [would have seen] or heard of [the salvation] both temporal and eternal, which is the proper work [of our God.]

5. Wherefore as all partake of his mercy, O [shew your selves joyful] by your most publick gratulations and thanksgivings [unto the Lord] every where [all ye lands] and nations, [sing] with your voices, [rejoice] in your hearts, [and give thanks] with your lips.

6. Yea, call in all kinds of Musick to your assistance, [praise the Lord] with stringed Instruments playing [upon the harp] and that Vocal Musick be not wanting [sing to the harp] and complete the Harmony [with a psalm of thanksgiving] and Praise.

7. And that the Choir may be still fuller, bring in Wind-instruments praising the Lord [with trumpets also and shatims] the thillest and rarest Musick: [shew your selves] before all the world to be [joyful] and full of delight when you come [before the Lord] who is [the King] of Heaven and Earth.

8. There is no part of the world which is not partaker of his mercy, and therefore all, if they had tongues, should join in this Song; however [let the Sea] with its waves roar and [make a noise] to be the Basses, [and] let [all] the fish [that therein is] contained, [the round] compass of the habitable [world and they that dwell therein] all bear their several parts.

9. [Let the] rivers and [floods] keep time and [clap their hands] in applause of their Creator. [Let the hills] and mountains dance and [be joyful together] in this grand Triumph [before the Lord;] and there is reason for this universal Joy, not only for what is past, but because these Judgments are forerunners of the great Day, [for] by these you may see [be cometh] shortly [to judge the earth] and to right all that are wronged.

10. And when he doth come, [with righteousness] shall he] try and [judge] even [the] Heathen [world] who only had the light of Nature, [and the people] of his own pasture, even his Church, he shall judge [with equity] also, for there is no respect of persons with God.

Glory be to the Father, &c.

As it was in the beginning, &c.

SECT.

SECTION XVI.

Of the last Hymn but one or Nunc dimittis.

§. I. THis Canticle being also recorded in the Holy Gospel, indited by the Spirit, and occasioned by the manifestation of Jesus, is very properly adopted into the Offices of the Christian Church, and is used at this day by the Greeks as well as the Latins, and by the Reformed as well as the Romanists; so that its general Approbation might sufficiently vindicate our use of it; but a more particular Illustration will still more conduce to express the prudence of this choice.

The Analysis of the Nunc dimittis.

§. II. Herein old Simon shews	I. His Joy, by declaring	1. His desiring no greater happiness in this life:	{	Luke ii. 29. Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace according to thy word,
		2. His submission to Gods Will:
	II. The Reason thereof	1. As to his own particular:	{	30. For mine eyes have seen thy salvation:
		2. As to others, because the Messiah was so		31. Which thou hast prepared before the face of all people:
		1. Plainly manifested:		{
		2. So greatly advantageous to	{
		1. Gentiles:	{	32. To be a light to lighten the Gentiles,
		2. Jews:	{	and to be the glory of thy people Israel.

A Practical Discourse on' the Nunc dimittis, the first Hymn after the second Lesson.

§. III. [WHO, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace according to thy word : For mine eyes, &c. to the end.] The Author of this short and comprehensive Hymn was a man eminent for his exact Justice, vigorous Devotion, lively Faith and extraordinary Inspiration, as the holy Text assures us ; and it is probable he was a person considerable ; very likely it was he whom the Jews call Simeon the Just, who lived at this time (and was the Son of the most famous Rabbi Hillel) * who opposed the received opinion of the temporal Kingdom of the Messiah ; for it is certain our Simeon did so, or he had never thus rejoiced over a Messiah presented by so mean Parents in swadling-cloths at the gates of the Temple. It was not the object that appeared to his Eyes, but the illumination of the Spirit, and the prospect of his Faith, that elevated his Affections. Wherefore we need not pretend to dismiss this holy Song by alledging it was an extraordinary occasion ; for the Writings of the Apostles, which are daily read among us do as clearly represent the Saviour of the world to the eye of our Faith, and set him before us as evidently in the House of God, as any bodily sight could do to Simeon ; and if our Minds be enlightned, and our Faith firm as his, we have the same occasion, and ought to rehearse it with the same devotion. The mercy is made sufficiently plain to us, and if we were but as apprehensive of the advantages it brings to us and all men, as he

* Vid. Scultet. Exerc.
Evang. l. i. c. 61. and Lightfoot's Harmony on this place.

was, I know not why we should wish to live any longer, than till we have obtained hopes of a share in it: We say, we have Houses to build, Families to propagate, and Designs to complete, and all before we are willing to die; that is, we desire something besides, nay (perhaps) more than an Interest in Jesus; and therefore we dare not join in this noble wish. But Simeon was dead to the world before, and had been impatient of a longer stay, but only for the Promise to have a sight of Jesus in the flesh. And when this long wish for Happiness was come to pass, his expectations are answered, and all his desires fulfilled. He values nothing here, but humbly craves his Dismission. His holy Soul that came from God, can find no rest on the waters of this World, and therefore desires to return with an Olive-branch of peace to its dear Lord ^b, where it was sure of rest and joy among its best Friends. He now desires leave to depart from the Flesh, which he had long esteemed his Prison, wherein he was confined by his Infirmities ^c, and shut up from beholding the Glories of God, which he now longs to see more than ever, by this last experience of his Truth and Mercy; and, knowing that Death would set him free, his desires and joy begin to swell too big to be confined in the walls of Flesh, and now he is even streightened till he be let loose into the regions of Glory to praise him face to face. and yet his Ecstasies transport him not beyond the measures of Obedience and Humility; for he first asks his Masters leave, nor will he go till he have commission ^d

^b Τὴ γὰρ ἐν ἀδικεῖν ὡς πρὸς ἡμᾶς αὐτῶν θανάτου ἀπολυόμενος πρὸς τὸ Κύριον. Clem.
Alex. Strom. 4.

Mors Stoicis appellare solet Ἀπόλυσιν πρὸς τὸν Κυρίου. Agrippa.
^c Ἀπολύεσθαι τὸ ἀποδησκόντα ἐν τῷ παλαιοῦ τῶ ἀπολύσειν καλεῖται.
τὸ γὰρ δὲ ὅπως ὀνομάζεται. Themistius ap.
Scob.

only he intimates he had stript himself of all worldly desires, and had his inner Coat, his Flesh in his hands ready to lay it down and run,

Ἐὰν ὁ στυλὴν ἀνακλῆται πείθεσθαι δεῖ τὸ σπυαίνεσθαι ὡς τὸ ῥεπαγῆ. Arrian.

whenever the Watch-word^c was given. His hopes and desires to see his Saviour had alone made his life acceptable, and the fulfilling of them makes even Death most welcom to him, because he knew that Jesus came to disarm Death, and (by satisfying for Sin) to deprive it of that sting which made it terrible to all men. All the Sin-Offerings of the Law were but weak Armour to encounter Death, nor could they so fully purge or appease the Conscience, as that it should not accuse in the fatal hour: But the perfect Sacrifice of the Death of Jesus, doth so fully avert Gods wrath, that all that believe in him can triumph over Death, meet it with Courage, and embrace it with Peace, as the end of their Fears, and the entrance into their Felicity^d.

^a 1 Cor. xv. 55.

Non est timendum quod liberati sit ab omni ti-mido.

How can he fear Death that hath his Sins forgiven? Or how can he doubt Gods Mercy that be- holds his Son with Faith and Love? Or how can he question the Truth of Gods Promises, that embraces Jesus the greatest of all in his arms? He that knows Gods Power is persuaded of his Love, and convinced of his Truth, can die in Peace, and lie down with Joy in the assurance of a blessed Resurrection. And this we may do also; it was only their Privilege who lived then, to see Jesus bodily; but whoever looked on him so as to dare to die then, must behold him by faith: And thus we may see Christ, not only with Simeon presented in the Temple, but with St. Stephen standing at the right hand of God, not only in his Ruling, but his full Glory.

Glory. Why then are we so fixed to this world? so desirous to stay? so loth to depart? so sad when God calls? O let us look on this our Redeemer so steadfastly, and embrace him so tenderly in our hearts, that it may appear he is dearer to us than our very lives; let us love him so entirely that nothing may satisfie us without him; and trust so fully in his Merits and Mercies, that we may live chearfully and die peaceably. Let us say with this devout old man; Lord, I do now so clearly perceive thy purposes of Mercy, so confidently believe thy promises of Forgiveness, and so firmly rely on the hopes of Glory, that I resolve to be ever thy Servant: I desire to stay no longer in this world than to get assurances for a better: Earths vanities do not make me wish to live, nor Deaths terrors afraid to die: If thou callest me this day, Lord, I come: I can live with Patience or die in Peace; for I see him that will preserve me in Life or Death, and gives me hopes that whether I live or die, I am the Lords. I was not with Simeon in the Temple to behold my Saviour with my bodily eyes; but I have had thy Salvation as clearly manifested in this thy Holy Word; as if I had seen him with my eyes. Lord, grant me thy Holy Spirit, that I may behold him with the same Faith, and embrace him with the same Affections that he did, and then I shall chearfully join in a Nunc dimittis, and being daily ready to die, shall ever be fit to live, and thy Will shall be done in my Life or Death. Blessed Lord! thou hast even to our days by these holy Writings sufficiently manifested thy Son before all our faces; and it is our Carelesness, Ingratitude and Unbelief, that hides him from our eyes, and makes us hug these Vanities, and fear to leave them: But thou hast done thy part, and I will praise thee for sending this bright and glorious Sun, which shined on so many millions of wretched Heathens benighted in the darkness of Idolatry, and made them Christians. I will bless thee for honouring thy ancient but despised People, who were more ennobled by the Birth of Jesus than by all their former Royalties and victorious Trophies, and instead of the bright Cloud, the Glory of the Tabernacle, thou hast sent him to pitch his tent among them, who was the brightness of thy own Glory. I am ravished to behold so many joyful Souls blessing thee for this Light which shined on them in their sins, the confines of eternal Darkness, and converted and translated them into thy marvellous Light. And all thy holy Saints in all ages have given thee the Glory for all those illustrious beams of Love and Charity, Piety, Justice and Devotion, which shine from their Lives, and are but the Reflection of the rays of the Grace of Jesus. This excellent Person rejoiced not only in his own Felicity, but to behold by the Spirit of Prophecy, what Joy Jesus was like to bring to me and many thousands of Converts and holy men to the end of the world. Wherefore let us be glad and rejoice with him, for our selves and all people, for the Light that shines upon us, and the Glory that is round about us, and with all our souls sing, Glory be to the Father, &c.

The Paraphrase of the Nunc dimittis.

Ver. 29. I desire not to live in this world any longer than I have laid hold of thy Salvation; which since thy Word and Spirit hath now discovered to me, I have all I can wish for here; therefore, [Lord, now lettest thou] thy command go forth, that [thy servant] who hath longed hitherto to enjoy thee, may [depart] quietly out of this miserable world, and be dismissed.

dismissed from the prison of the flesh. I can now leave it [in peace] being assured thou wilt make good all other Promises, since in giving thy dear Son thou hast done so exactly [according to thy word.]

Ver. 30. My Desires are satisfied, and my Faith confirmed as much as is possible in this world, [for mine eyes] enlightened by thy Holy Spirit [have seen] by Faith in thy blessed Word, him that is my Redeemer and brings [thy salvation] to me, and all the world.

Ver. 31. I cannot contain nor yet express my Joy to behold this lovely Peace-maker [which thou hast] not only manifested in the flesh, but [prepared] by the discovery of thy Holy Gospel to appear most gloriously [before the face of all people] that ever shall be hereafter.

Ver. 32. This glorious Son of Righteousness hath shined on all the Earth, his Word is [a light to lighten] the dismal Regions of the unconverted Heathens, and [the Gentiles] that knew not God; his Doctrine instructed them, and hath converted many; and his Presence and his Grace is the honour [and the glory] of all true Believers, the joy and comfort [of thy people Israel,] so that we, and all the world are bound to praise thee for thy Gospel and thy Son here on earth; and to continue our Song to all Eternity, when thou lettest us depart from hence. Amen.

SECTION XVII.

Of the last Hymn, or the LXVII. Psalm.

§. I. THE Parallel to the former Euangelical Hymn, is this devout Psalm, where that *saving health which holy Simeon saw and predicted should be

* Ver. 2. Valg. Salvatore tuum : ut Luc. ii. 30.

Light to all Nations, is desired to be accomplished in the conversion of all men : And when we have been illuminated with the Doctrine of Christ out of the Apostolick Lessons, it is very seasonable to pray for the propagation of these Divine Truths throughout the world, that we may shew our high esteem of them, our hearty gratitude for them, and our sincere desire that God may have Glory, and all men Benefit by them ; and it is the more suitable, because these Petitions are mixed with Acknowledgments and Praises also, as we shall more particularly now declare.

The Analysis of the LXVII. Psalm.

S. II. The lxvii. Psalm consists of three Petitions,

I. For our selves shewing,

1. What we desire from God, { Mercy, Blessing, Favour :

2. Why we desire it, viz. for the Conversion of all men:

Second Petition mentioning

1. The Persons and the Act they are to do :

2. The Reasons thereof :

II. For others, The

1. The Means to obtain good things :

Third being a repetition of the former expressing

2. The Fruit obtained thereby :

1. Unto all, Plenty :

2. To his own, Blessing :

3. To strangers, Conversion :

Ver. 1. God be merciful unto us and bless us, and shew us the light of his countenance and be merciful unto us :

2. That thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations.

3. Let the people praise thee, O God, yea, let all the people praise thee.

4. O let the nations rejoice and be glad : for thou shalt judge the folk righteously, and govern the nations upon earth.

5. Let the people praise thee, O God, let all the people praise thee.

6. Then shall the earth bring forth her increase, and God, even our own God shall give us his blessing.

7. God shall bless us and all the ends of the world shall fear him.

A brief Discourse upon the LXVII. Psalm.

§.III. V. 1, 2. GOD be merciful unto us, and bless us, &c. unto --among all nations.] When we consider our selves as Members of that Holy Church which the Lord did first plant by the Preaching, and hath ever since watered by the Writings of his holy Apostles, and observe how by the daily Lessons he continues still to instruct and comfort us, to exhort and reprove us; we are emboldened to beg his Grace and Favour to enable us to profit by them and live according to them; and we desire he will express the kindness of his heart by the smiles of his countenance; we wish not he should bless us so much in Riches, Honours or such like external things, but that which we count the greatest Blessing, even that we may enjoy his favour and the light of his countenance, Psal. iv. 6, 7. and lest our Sins should eclipse that lovely Splendor, and hide it from us again, we pray he will be merciful unto us: And when we thus pray that we and Gods Church may have publick testimony of his good-will, and be in a prosperous estate, we do not desire it so much for our own Benefit, as for the Glory of God and the Good of others: For when the Church and People of God are gracious in their lives, and successful in their affairs; it is a means to attract many to Righteousness, and to spread the fame of the Gospel among all nations: We may fitly therefore pray that by the aid of the Divine Mercy we may live agreeably to the Doctrine we have heard; for the holy Lives of Christians would win more Proselytes than the strongest Arguments or the most charming Eloquence, which alas are miserably weakned by the evil Conversations of those who bear the name of this Religion.

§.IV. Ver. 3, 4. Let the people praise thee, O God, &c. unto -- and govern the nations upon earth.] Our own Praises are too few to answer the Goodness of so great a Majesty; wherefore we summon all the world to assist us in this so necessary Duty: And because they cannot be expected to praise him who do not know him, we tacitely pray for the Conversion of all people, wishing all might hear the blessed sound of these holy Lessons, and thereby learn to know God, for if they know him they will love him, admire him, and celebrate his Praise as well as we. While we are taught the righteous Dispensations of God, we ought to pity the poor Nations that do not discern his holy Providence, and to pray that they with us may see how wisely the Almighty doth order, and how justly he doth judge in all places of the world; and this we may do more chearfully when we by Faith foresee that the time shall come when every knee shall bow to Jesus, and all the Nations upon earth shall be subject to this righteous Judge and glorious King: We hear his reasonable Commands, his righteous Laws, and his amiable Precepts, and thereby we discern that the Scepter of his Kingdom is a right Scepter; so that we wish all people did know and own him for their King and Governour, and then we are sure they would all praise him, and rejoice most heartily under so sweet a Government as his is.

§.V. Ver. 5, 6, 7. Let the people praise thee, O God, yea, let all the people praise thee, &c. to the end.] If we look into all the world, we shall find both Christians and others complaining of many wants, and craving continually to be supplied, but we are here taught a more excellent way, even that all men should praise God for his former Mercies, and that would be the best means to move God to bestow more: for our Praises unite into a Cloud and fall down again in a Shower of Blessings both temporal and spiritual. If all did heartily (as we now) sing Anthems and Psalms of Eucharist to our God, he would see that his former favours had a good effect upon us, and thereby be moved to give many more. This would cause him to grant the world plentiful years and abundance of the fruits of the Earth; this would engage him to send infinite Blessings on his own People, and be a means to invite all Nations to fear and serve him, when they should see how good he is to those that be his Servants. Therefore let us praise him our selves, let us also pray and endeavour that all others may do so also, for we find what incomparable returns we shall have for it. It will engage the whole Trinity for us, which some gather from v. 6, & 7. where [God] is thrice named, and in the second place [our own God] that is, God the Son, who took our own Nature, and is most particularly our own God; and further these universal Praises will bring down all kinds of Blessings both for Body and Soul; finally, as we begun, v. 2. to pray that all the Earth might be brought to know and fear God, we conclude, v. 7. full of hope, that by our blessing God and his rewarding us, that Prayer shall prevail, and all the ends of the world shall fear him, wherefore we sing, Glory be to the Father, &c.

The Paraphrase of the LXVII. Psalm.

1. When we remember how oft we have offended against this word we have heard, we had need to say, O [God be merciful unto us] and forgive us; and since we are thy People, do thou also prosper [and bless us.] especially the Lord be pleased to give us his favour, [and shew us] evidently the same by the smiles and [the light of his countenance,] of which though we be unworthy, yet again we say, Pity us [and be merciful unto us,] O our God.

2. [That] by our Obedience to thee, and thy Bounty to us [thy way] and the rules both of thy Word and thy Providence [may be known] by all men [upon earth] so that thy Gospel may be propagated [and] the good news of [thy saving health] and our Redemption, may be discovered [among all] even Heathen [nations.]

3. We are not sufficient alone to bless thee as thou deservest : Wherefore [let the people] of thy pasture [praise thee] every where [O God] for thy mercies, [Yea, let all the people] of the whole world, be converted by these Apostolick Doctrins, that when they know thee, they may all [praise thee] with one heart.

4. [O let the] very Heathen [nations rejoice] in holy Anthems, [and be glad,] by making them to know thee, and bringing them to submit to thy happy Government ; [for thou] art the best of all Governors, thou [shalt judge the folk] most justly and [righteous-ly, and] with all sweetness and equity shalt thou [govern the nations] that dwell [upon] all the [earth,] when they once are subject to thy Laws.

5. Therefore we must say again with a fresh Devotion, [let the] Christian [people praise thee] for thy mercies, [O God] in every place, [yea, let all the people] of the whole world be converted, that they may all know and [praise thee] with united hearts and voices.

6. And when we make these just acknowledgments for former mercies, [then shall the earth] be comforted with seasonable showers, and [bring forth] abundance of [her increase] of all sorts of fruits, [and] as to spiritual Favours [God, then] be whom we call [our

[our own God,] and who is the Author of every good gift, he [shall give us his blessing] and his grace.

7. O let us but be truly thankful, and [God shall] so eminently [bless us] both in Soul and Body, that all People shall observe it and all that dwell, even to [the ends of the world] shall see it is good to serve so blessed a Master, and then they also [shall fear him] and become obedient to this his holy Word: Glory be to the Father, &c.

PARTITION II.

Of the latter Part of Morning and Evening Prayer.

SECTION I.

Of the Apostles Creed.

§. I.

THE Holy Scriptures being a perfect Revelation of all Divine Truth, may in a larger sense be called our Creed; yet since the fundamental Doctrines contained therein are dispersed, and not easily distinguished from those of lesser moment by all such as ought to understand them; it was very fit, if not necessary, for the Blessed Apostles to leave us one brief Compendium of what was to be believed in order to our Salvation, which might be soon learned, easily understood, and unanimously retained by all True Christians; and accordingly they did compose this Venerable Form, which still bears their Name, and is called The Apostles Creed: Which universal Tradition was never questioned till this last unhappy Age, wherein some have been so bold as to dispute the Articles of this Apostolic Faith, and therefore no wonder if there be found others who deny the Apostles to have been the Authors thereof, for the Articles will more easily be rejected, when they are destitute of the illustrious Names of their sacred Authors, wherefore I shall endeavour to prove, that the Twelve Apostles were the Composers of this Creed (leaving the Defence of the several Articles to those learned Expounders who purposefully treat of them.) Now this being more suitable to my Method and Design, I shall evince it, (1.) By Authority. (2.) By Reason. (3.) By Answering the contrary Arguments urged by some against this Ancient Truth.
Y
found

I. By Authority, that is, by the concurrent Testimony of the Catholick Church in all Ages, which is the most proper Witness in a matter of Fact as this is; nor have we any better medium to prove the Books of Scripture were written by those Authors whose names they bear, than the unanimous Testimony of Antiquity; and by that we can abundantly prove the Apostles were Authors of this Creed: For Clement Romanus in his Epistle to our Lords Brother (not to James, as some mistake, but to Simon his Successor Bishop of Jerusalem) saith, "That the Apostles having received the Gift of Tongues, while they were yet together, by joint consent composed that Creed which the Church of the Faithful now holds. Which very thing is largely set down by Ruffinus in his Preface to the Exposition of the Creed, and affirmed not only by him, but by a Cloud of other unexceptionable Witnesses, whose words are too long to insert, and their names almost too many Epist. ad Fratr. Dom.

apud Ruffin.

* Origen. τὸν ἀρχαῖον.
Proem. Ambros. Ser.
83. August. de Temp.

Ser. 181. Maximus Turinens. Homil. Leo M. Ep. ad Pulch. Aug.
Cassian. de Incarnat. Dom. l. 6. Isidor. Hispal. de Off. Eccl. c. 22.

to mention. Irenæus also expressly saith, "The Church "received from the Apostles and their Disciples
 "this Faith in one God the Fa"ther Almighty, &c." Tertullian calls it "The Rule of Faith", affirming that "It descended to us "from the beginning of the Go"spel, before any Heretick had "risen up". S. Ambrose positively avoucheth, "It was made by the "Twelve Apostles". S. Hierome styles it "The Symbol of our Faith "and Hope delivered from the A"postles". S. Augustin expounds it in several places, especially in that Tract (de Fide & Symbolo) mentioned in his Retractations. Leo Magnus saith plainly, "This Rule of Faith we "have received from the Autho"rity of Apostolical Institution", and for the rest they do all agree in this point, as a great Author assures us; so that to dissent from this Creed was the mark of an Here-tick in the Imperial Constitutions^k.
 All which hath prevailed with the sober and learned men of these Ages, whether Roman or Reformed, Lutheran or Calvinistical, to assent to this Truth, as may be seen in the Writings of many Roman Doctors, and in the Works of M. Luther^l, of Calvin^m, *Beza*ⁿ,

^b Iren. advers. Hæret. l. 1. c. 2.

^c Tertul. de Præscrip. advers. Hæret. lib. 1. c. 13.

^d Advers. Prax. c. 2.

^e Ambros. Epist. 81. ad Syric.

^f Hier. Ep. ad Pamm.

^g Augustin. Retractat. l. 1. c. 17.

^h Leo M. Serm. 11. de Passion.

ⁱ *Omnes Orthodoxi Patres affirmant Symbolum ab ipsis Apostolis conditum. Sixtus Senens. Bibliothec. l. 2.
 Verbo, Apostolus.*

^k *Hanc legem sequentes Christianorum Catholicorum nomen jubemus amplecti, reliquos verò dementes hæretici dog-matis infamiam sustinent. Theodos. Grat.
 Augusti.*

^l Luther. de tribus Symbol. T. 7. Colloqu. Mensal. T. 2. p. 106.

^m Calvin. Inst. l. 2. c. 16. §. 18. ⁿ Beza Annot. in Rom. xii. 6.

* P. Mart. Loc. Com.
M. c. 15.

† Bullinger. Decad.

‡ Eccl. Angl. Artic. 8.

§ Saxon. Confess. c. 1.

¶ Gall. Confess. Art. 5.

‡ Confess. Bohemic.

P. Martyr * and Bullinger † : As also in the Publick Confessions and Articles of the Churches of England ‡, Saxony §, France ¶ and Bohemia ‡, &c. this Creed is asserted to be the Apostles own Composition, and who can or dare deny or question that which so many and great Names in all ages have declared for Truth? What shall we believe that History delivers to us, if we be not convinced with these universal and evident Proofs?

II. We will prove it by Reason, for (1.) It is evident by the Writings of the Apostles (most of them being indited after this composition) that there was some brief Form of words taught unto those who were baptized, and committed to their memories by Oral Tradition, 2 Thess. ii. 15. called the Form of Doctrine *, the Rule *, the Depositum committed to their trust *, the Form of sound words *, the Faith once delivered to the Saints *, which the best Expositors both Antient and Modern do understand of the Creed (2.) And further, it is well known, that from the times of the Apostles, there was a Creed taught to all adult Christians, a little before their Baptism *, to which they were to answer, Article by Article, when they were baptised, as I have proved elsewhere †. Now that it was this very Creed, which we call, the Apostles, that they answered

* Τὴν ἀρχαίαν. Rom. vi. 17.

‡ Καὶ. Galat. vi. 16.

Phil. iii. 16. Καὶ

† πιστὶς ὁμοία. Occ.

‡ Τὴν ἀρχαίαν.

1 Tim. vi. 20. Πίστις depositum custodi. Hier.

Παρεργαζομένη, ἡ πιστις. S. Chrys. in loc.

‡ 2 Tim. i. 13. Ἐπι

πιστὶς ὁμοία.

‡ Παρεργαζομένη.

Jude iii.

‡ Conc. Agathens. c. 13.

Aug. de Tem. Ser. 115.

Hier. Ep. 61. ad Pamm.

‡ Discourse of Baptism,

Sect. L. §. viii.

to in their Baptism, is plain, from those very Que- tions yet upon record in the Fathers, and they are the very words of this Creed^c, which therefore we may reasonably believe was taught young Christians from the very beginning of Christianity. (3.) We can assign the Authors of all other Creeds, and can shew what Father or what Council made them, but no other Author of this Creed (besides the Apostles) can be produced, no Council composed this: Wherefore as S. Augustin^d well observes, “That which the whole Church holds, and was not instituted by Councils, but always retained, that is justly believed to have been delivered from Apostolical Authority. (4.) It is certain there was a Creed in the Church before any Heretick arose^e, and long before the meeting of the Nicene Council: And if we would know what Creed that was, doubtless it must be the Apostles, for that, S. Ambrose saith, the Roman Church had kept unaltered^f. And that is still the most perfect of all Creeds, having all the Articles of the longest, and nothing put into it, with respect to any Heresie, but all the Articles are short, plain and sutable to one another; whereas most other Creeds are large in some Articles, and deficient in others not then questioned. So this Creed is certainly the Original and Foundation of all the rest; and therefore of Apostolical Composure.

^c Credis in Deum Patrem omnipotentem? & dixisti Credo. Ambr. de Sacram. l. 2. c. 7. Plura vide, Discourse of Baptism, Sect. I. §. viii.

^d August. de Bapt. in Donat. l. 4. c. 24.

^e Tertul. ut supra.

^f — Roma & antequam Nicæna Synodus conveniret à temporibus Apostolorum usq; ad nunc--- ita fidelibus Symbolum tradidit. Vigil. in Eutych. l. 4.

^g Credatur Symbolo Apostolorum quod Ecclesia Romana intemeratum semper custodit & servat. Ambros. Epist. ad Syric. § 1.

III. That all but the contentious may receive satisfaction, we will answer the principal Objections against this Truth.

Obj. I. It is wonder the Apostles did not leave it upon Record in the Canon of Scripture in express terms, and strange that no Father in the first two Centuries hath set down the words thereof entirely.

Ans. There are many weighty things trusted to the Churches Tradition, and only hinted in Scripture (as we have proved this to be, viz. the Sunday-Sabbath, Baptism of Infants, &c. And of all others there is most reason why this should not be committed to Writing, because it was the Christians Watch word, and not to be divulged to any Stranger or Enemy, but (as all Mysteries) was to be kept secret.

Ex forma omnibus mysteriis silentii fides debeatur. Tertull. A-pol. c. 7. Vid. Lactant.
Instit. l. 2. c. 26.

Ἡ μυστήριον λέγει τοῦ ἔξω.
Cyr. Pref. ad Catech.

Hence St. Cyril lays so strict charge upon the Catechumens to whom he had taught the Creed, by no means to tell it to any unbaptised Person; nor could any Torments force the Primitive

Martyrs to divulge this Creed, lest the Heathens should deride it and profane it; so that it ought not to have been written: And therefore though there be some Forms which come very near it, in the first ages; as that of S. Thomas found by Eusebius in the Archives at Edessa^k, and that of S. Ignatius in two of his Epistles^l; and of the famous Origen^m; yet they chose rather to give us the Sense than the Words of the Apostles Creed, which were suffi-

^k Euseb. Eccles. Hist. l. 1. c. 13.

^l S. Ignat. Ep. ad Magnes. & Ep. ad Trall.

^m Proem. ad lib. de ἐκείνῳ.

ciently preserved by the Memories of those who were baptized; so that they were not divulged in Writing till the World was Christian.

Obj. II.

Obj. II. If the Fathers of the Primitive Councils had known of any such Creed, they would not have made new ones, nor presumed to add to it, or take from it.

Ans. The Fathers of those Councils did profess they made no new Creed, nor did they compose their Confessions, as if any defect were in the Antient Creed^a, only they explained some Articles more fully, which some Hereticks then questioned; and because their Creeds were grounded on and agreeing with the Apostles; hence they accounted them the same, and Epiphanius calls the Nicene, the Creed delivered by the Holy Apostles^o; and so it is called in some old Roman Offices, as B^p Usher^p hath observed. In some of these Creeds the difference is very little, and only in Phrases not Sense, as in that of Jerusalem, Alexandria, of Marcellus of Ancyra, &c. and if others be larger, yet we learn from Vincentius Lyrinensis^q; “That a man “is not another, though bigger “than when he was a Child; his “Limbs grow in largeness not in number; if he had “more or fewer Limbs, he would be monstrous or “defective, but the regular increase doth not hinder “him from being the same: So in the Articles of “the Faith, if they were more or fewer, it were an“other Faith, but not if some particulars be more “largely explained.

^a Οὐχ ὡς τὴν λείπον ταῖς περιλαβῶσιν ἐπεκ-τέροντες. Euagr. l. 2
c. 4.

^o Ἡ αὕτη μὲν ἡ πίστις παρεδόθη ἀπὸ τῶν ἀγίων Ἀποστόλων. Epiph.
Anchor.
^p Tract. de Symb.

^q Common. adv. Hær.
c. 28, 29.

The Apostles Creed. PART II.

Q. III. If the Apostles (who were inspired by the Spirit of God,) were the Composers of it, then it should be of equal Authority with the Canon of Scripture, whereas we are wont to prove the Articles thereof by Scripture.

Ans. So we prove one place of Scripture by another, which are all of equal Authority, and our Lord Jesus and his Apostles did prove their Doctrine from the Old Testament, to shew the Harmony between them, rather than to derive Authority from thence. We may say indeed that we believe the Creed more firmly, since the Articles are all found in Holy Scripture; yet in strict speaking, it is but the same Doctrine delivered in divers manners, by Writing in Scripture, by Tradition in the Creed; and we rejoice to find them so exactly agreeing to one another: and because the way of Tradition is more liable to Mistake and Alteration than that of Writing, therefore we confirm the Creed and shew it hath not been changed, by its consent with Scripture. Yet I do not see any inconvenience, if we shall believe the Creed divinely inspired; that as there are three Persons in the Trinity, and three principal Graces, Faith, Hope and Charity, so each Person may give us a proper Rule for each of these Graces; the Father hath given us the Commandments, to direct our Charity; the Son the Lords Prayer, to exercise our Hope; and it is probable, that the Holy Ghost indited this Creed, for the entertainment of our Faith: Nor will this be derogatory to the Holy Scripture, since it is the same Doctrine which is in Scripture; we all grant that the Holy Ghost indited the parts, why then not the whole? Sure I am, Tertullian calls this "The Rule of Faith (as well

De Praescr. l. 1. c. 13.

well

God
gave,
and return

our

confession
of

under was to be into a day

in the

ed in-treat
of Al-

ience

well as Scripture) and saith "it was instituted by Christ. And the Antients quote the Creed as well as Scripture to confute Heresies, and seem to have given it the same Honour, because indeed it is the same thing, called therefore the Compendium of the Gospel, and the Epitome of Holy Scripture.

The other Objections are trifling and may be answered from hence; this therefore shall suffice to prove the Antiquity and Authority of this Creed; which we cannot particularly explain, but only we shall discourse these three things:

I. Why it stands in this place in our Liturgy.

II. Why it is daily repeated there.

III. How we may profit by the repetition thereof. And this we will subjoin to the following Analysis, which regularly comes in here.

A General Discourse on the Apostles Creed.

§. III. THE place of this Creed in our Liturgy may be considered with respect to what goes before, and that which follows it. (1.) That which goes before it is The Lessons taken out of the Word of God, for Faith comes by hearing, Rom. x. 17. and therefore when we have heard, it is fit we should profess our Belief thereof, thereby setting (as it were) our Seals to the Truth of God^c, especially to such Articles as the Chapters now read unto us have confirmed; and whereas S. Paul telleth us, “That the Word did not profit the Jews for want of Faith in those that heard it, Heb. iv. 2. We hope it may profit us, who as soon as we have heard, do make Confession of our Faith. (2.) That which follows the Creed is The Prayers, which are grounded on it, “Faith is ^c John iii. 33. Ἐσφραγισεν ὅτι Θεὸς ἀληθὴς ὢεν.

^c De Verb. Dom. Ser. 36.

“the Fountain of Prayers (saith S. Augustin^c.) whence the Apostle saith, How shall they call on him on whom they have not believed; therefore that we may pray, let us first believe. So that the reciting our Creed before we pray, is the laying a Foundation whereupon to build our Requests: We believe in One Almighty God, who is distinguished into Three Persons, the Father our Creator, the Son our Redeemer, the Holy Ghost our Sanctifier, by whom we and the whole Church may have Remission of Sins, and the hopes of a blessed Resurrection to Eternal Life; wherefore we may very reasonably pray to God the Father, in the Name of the Son, by the Assistance of the Spirit,

“on whom they have not believed; therefore that we may pray, let us first believe. So that the reciting our Creed before we pray, is the laying a Foundation whereupon to build our Requests: We believe in One Almighty God, who is distinguished into Three Persons, the Father our Creator, the Son our Redeemer, the Holy Ghost our Sanctifier, by whom we and the whole Church may have Remission of Sins, and the hopes of a blessed Resurrection to Eternal Life; wherefore we may very reasonably pray to God the Father, in the Name of the Son, by the Assistance of the Spirit, rit, rit, in Fellowship with the Saints, for the Forgiveness of our Sins and a joyful Resurrection. Now for these reasons our Creed ought to be used as often as we do either solemnly read or pray, that is, in all Publick Assemblies ; but how early it began to be used in the daily Offices is not certain. Jo. Boemus ¹ saith, " That in the be" ginning the Priests did only re" cite the Lords Prayer and the Creed of the Apostles " for their daily Office. But I am apt to believe that this Creed was not used in the Publick Service till Persecution ceased, and therefore the first Author of its use in the Canonical Hours is said to be Damasus, about the year 370. and to this day when it is used in the Roman Offices, it is spoken with a low voice, to remember the times of its first use, when there was danger the Heathens should overhear it ". But we know that the Christians used it before in their Private Devotions, in the morning, by the counsel of S. Ambrose ², and both morning and night, as S. Augustin adviseth his Catechumens ³, and so it continued in all succeeding ages ; for we find in the Ecclesiastical Laws of King Canutus a special Command for every Christian to learn and daily to use the Lords Prayer and the Creed ⁴, and so our pious Ancestors taught us to use our Creed with our daily Devotions, not as a Prayer (as some ignorantly or maliciously object) but as a Foundation for our Petitions, a Memento to whom they

¹ De morib. gentium. l.2. c.12.

² Rubeo Nov. Ration. l.2. c.42.

³ Symbolum quoque specialiter debemus, tanquam nostri cordis signaculum, antelucanis horis quotidie recensere.
Ambr. ad Virg. l.3.

⁴ Accipite, filii, regulam fidei quod Symbolum dicitur, — & quotidie dicite apud vos, antequam dormiatis, antequam procedatis Symbolo vestro vos munite.
De Symb. ad Catech. l.1.

⁵ Spelman. Conc. Britan. Vol.2. p.549.

are made, and a ground of our hope that they be accepted.

§.IV. (2.) To convince us more fully of the and usefulness of the daily Repetition hercot, we shew for what reasons, and to what end we c
1. To fix it in our Memories and record it t that it may never go out of our minds being dail vived by a fresh recital. And this being the su those Principles, by which we are to make our i ers, and to square our lives, the Test by which w a Nulla enim unquam exitit heresis quæ non hoc Symbolo potuit da-mari. Cœlestin. ad Nestor.

to discover the false Doctri Hereticks^a and the Tempta of Satan; we can no mo without it, than the Arcl without his Rule, and the C smith without his Touch-st

So that lest the neglect of private Persons shoul literate the memory of it in any, the Church presents us with this Heavenly Touch-stone to e us to discover all that is contrary to the truth o Principles and the holiness of our Profession. : express our constant Fidelity to Almighty God. is our Military Symbol, which we learned at our ptism, when we were listed under Christs Ban so that whilst we are in this spiritual warfare we b Quando enim sine mi-litiæ Sacramento, miles in tentorio, bellator in prælio. Ambr.

frequently repeat our ^b W word; and especially when are to approach to our Gei to pray for his Aid and to re his Commands, then we mu and shew our Badge, to de we are still for the Lord of H and do hold fast the Professio our Faith without wavering: when we thus protest our A new our Profession

*c Dei igitur cultus quoniam cœlestis militia est devotionem maximam fi-démq; desiderat. Laët.
l. 5. c. 20.*

ance and confess Jesus before men, it will assuredly move him to intercede for us before his Heavenly Father, Matth. x. 32. so that it will exceedingly recommend our Prayers, if we do every day reverently stand up and sincerely renew our Vows of Fidelity, he will hear us, and shew himself to be our God, when we protest our selves to be his Servants, Psal. cxix. 125. 3. To manifest our Unity amongst our selves, and our agreement with the whole Church, that as we have one Lord, so we may have one Faith, Eph. iv. 5. If there be not Unity in Faith among us, there will be Difference in our Affections, and our Prayers will be hindred thereby; for we must agree in heart as well as meet in the same place, if we expect God should hear us, Matth. xviii. 19. It were to be wisht there were no dissent in the smallest matters amongst the Servants of the same God, yet if any such be, let them not divide our Worship nor our Affections, but let us rejoice that we agree in the main, and repeat this Creed together with a hearty Charity, Phil. iii. 15, 16. so shall our Prayers by a united force become more prevalent. These are Common Prayers to be presented by and for the Members of the Catholick Church, and this Creed is the Criterion to distinguish who are so^d. If we therefore can heartily recite it, we do own the same Faith which the glorified Saints once did, and all true Christians throughout the world now do believe, so that we declare our selves real Members of Christs holy Church, and have a right to its Privileges and a share in its Devotions.

^d Tessera & signaculum quo inter fideles perfidoiq; secernitur. Max. Taurin.

§.V. (3.) Now that what is done for so excellent reasons and to such noble purposes, may be done in such a manner as to make it effectual to the ends so whi

vided by a the those Princip
ers, and to v a Nolla rila extitit beret hoc Synodus mari. Coelest

Nestor.

So that lest c literate the n presents us w us to discover Principles an express our c is our Military psalm, when so that while

THE CHURCH OF THE FUTURE

...the Divine ...
...and if we could ...
...far. Now ...
...the Church ...
...trust ...
...were ...
...and ...
...The word ...
...ly, ...
...ing ...
...particular ...
...presence ...
...to ...
...some ...
...and the ...
...it with ...
...and ...
...the ...

which it is intended; we shall next shew in what manner we must repeat it; in general, our thoughts must be fixed upon the Certainty and Usefulness of the Truths, the Happiness of those that know them, and the Misery of such as are ignorant of them: But more particularly, 1. We must be heartily thankful to our gracious God, for making these Divine Truths so manifest to us, which are so necessary, that we cannot be happy without them; so evident, that we are infinitely assured of them; and yet so mysterious, that all the Wisdom of the world (without the help of Revelation) could never have discovered them unto us. Shall Pr praise God that he was born in Greece, and educated at Athens? and the Jews daily give thanks that they are the Sons of Abraham? and shall not we much more bless our heavenly Father, who hath granted us the favour to suck in our Religion with our Mother's Milk, and given us such advantages of Birth and Education, that we know these Mysteries from our Youth and are scarce ever tempted to doubt of them; which Kings and Princes, Philosophers and the Masters of all other Sciences have lived and died ignorant of, Lev. x. 24. For this cause the Gloria Patri is set at the end of S. Athanasius his Creed; and is to be supposed here also, and supplied by a devout act of Gratitude, by every Christian who doth repeat this Faith. 2. We must give our positive and particular Assent to the whole Creed and every Article thereof; we must receive it as an undoubted Oracle from his Mouth, who neither can nor will deceive us. If we should be tempted to doubt of any Articles, we need not seek any other Demonstration, but only this, whether it be certain that God hath revealed them? If we ἡ Τίς ἐστὶν ἐν αὐτῷ ἀποδείξει, ὡς καὶ

ἀποδείξει, ὡς καὶ
ἀποδείξει, ὡς καὶ

ἀποδείξει, ὡς καὶ ἀποδείξει, ὡς καὶ ἀποδείξει; Clem. Alexand. Strom. 5.

under

understand the Divine Veracity, we shall not enquire further, and if we would believe firmly, we ought to enquire so far. Now I suppose, we are already satisfied, that the Church hath from age to age delivered this for truth, and that the holy Scripture bears witness to every Article, and then we may on good grounds annex our hearty Credo, to every Sentence hereof. The word [I believe] is but twice set down expressly, but we must suppose and supply it in the beginning of each Article; and when we repeat the several particulars, let our hearts say to every one, as in the presence of God, [I believe this.] It is not sufficient to huddle up our assent in one Amen at the end (yet some scarce do that) but we must all with one heart and one mouth aloud repeat every Article and seal it with a hearty Assent: The Ministers saying the Creed doth not excuse us, for if we join not with him, he professes his own Faith only, and we must make it ours by a publick and manifest Consent. A general Persuasion of some Truths may suffice, because they do not much concern us: But these Principles of our Faith are the ground of our Prayers and the Rule of our Lives, so that they must be received with the same evidence, that the Mathematicians Postulata are, without the admission of which he can do nothing, because all his following Demonstrations do depend upon them: By this Creed we must conduct the affairs of our lives; on these Principles we must venture our Souls at our death; and if need be, for these eternal Truths we must pour out our blood: Wherefore they are not to be barely heard from another, or slightly repeated; but we must exercise our own Faith in the repetition, that we may be so rooted in the belief of them, that no Pleasure may entice us to walk contrary to them, nor no Threatnings affright us into a denial of them; and then we do truly believe

 3. We must make a particular application of every article, that it may produce those effects and serve ends for which it was revealed; so that we recite it with a strict attention, there being no to employ all our Powers and Faculties, and no to one wandering thought: And surely we may there is something extraordinary in these few words so signally delivered by themselves, and selected from, as well as selected out of, the whole body of Christian verity. Doubtless they are of more consequence than any others, not because they are true, but more useful to assist our Devotions and direct our Lives, than any other Propositions which the Word of God doth contain. So that we ought to give special heed unto them, and as we repeat them we must consider what kind of Prayers they require to make, and what kind of Lives they ought to live who believe such things; for therefore God set forth these Principles, and delivered them so solemnly therefore the Church placed them here, and delivered them before us, that our Devotions may suit these Principles, and our Practices be the genuine products of this Profession. To which end I will enlarge a little on two points, viz. to shew, I. How to apply them so as to assist and direct our Prayers; and verily ¶ Quæ tandem poterit ratione quisquam ex animo Deum precari immortalem, nisi quidem illi sincerè & candidè fidem habuerit. Leges Eccles. Canoni, §. 22. Spelm. Concil. Vol. I.

¶ Veneramini Deos & colitis, non credentes illos esse? & propitios vobis supplicationibus accommodare? Arnob. adv. Gent. l.

is so necessarily presupposed that pray^r, that Arnobius observes that the very Heathens would not be called upon their false God if they had not first believed they were Gods, and did hear their Prayers^r, and surely, "He cometh to the true God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of those that fear him, Heb. xi. 6. and therefore we are so often commanded to pray in Faith without any wavering^a or distrust, because we cannot pray with Prudence nor Courage, with Zeal nor Comfort, till our Souls be possessed with just Opinions and right

^a Jam. i. 6. Κλύδωνι θαλάσσης. Fluctus marini agitantur non progrediuntur. Vid. Jacob. v. v. 15. & 1 Tim. xi. 8.

*Notions of the God we call upon : Let us then while we repeat our Creed, contemplate the Power of an Almighty Father, the Love of his most merciful Son our Redeemer, and the Grace of the Holy Spirit our Sanctifier, and it will excellently dispose our Souls to Prayer. It will teach us Reverence and Fear, Sincerity and longing Desires, Hope and chearful Expectations, thus to set God before us in the Glory of his Attributes and the Greatness of his Works : When we have professed our belief in the Father Almighty maker of Heaven and Earth, how readily shall we run to him for the supply of our wants? When we have declared our assurance that Jesus Christ the Son of God was made Man, born among us, lived with us, died for us, rising again and returning to Heaven to plead our cause and prepare a place to receive us ; can we then forbear to cry unto God through him, for Pardon and Peace and all the benefits of his Passion. Again, when we have protested our Belief in the Holy Ghost, which in the Catholick Church gives Remission of Sins, and after this Life shall raise up our Bodies to everlasting Life; then we shall feel our hearts strongly moved to petition for the aid of this Holy Spirit to work these Graces in us and prepare these Benefits for us : The premising of our Faith to our Prayers removes our Fears, and quickens our Desires, instructs us what to ask, who to ask of, and in what manner to make accept-* able addresses; so that the Creed is an excellent Preparatory to the following Collects, every Petition in them being grounded on, directed by or enforced from some of these Articles, as will hereafter appear. II. We will shew how to apply the Creed, for the regulating of our lives; for God did not reveal these mysterious Truths to satisfy our Curiosity or to try our Credulity, nor are they taught us, to make us wis-

¹ Τὸ πλὺθ ὁμολογῶν,
ὡς ἰδοῦναι. Clem. Alex.
Pedag.

ser, so much as to persuade us to become better¹, and if they have not this effect upon us, our Faith doth not excel the Confession of Devils, who believed and confessed Jesus to be the Son of God, yet opposed the purposes of that Mystery and remained Devils still, Matth. viii. 29. James ii. 19. Let us not therefore repeat our Creed, as a form of idle Speculations, but as the Rule of our Practice; for indeed we do not enough believe any thing, until we act according to our belief. The things that worldly men

² Estne opus in vitâ negotiosum aliquod quod non fide præstante susci-piunt actores. Arnob.
adv. gent. l. 2.

Nihil est quod in vitâ geri possit, si non credulitas præcesserit.
Ruffin. in Symb.

believe put them upon actions agreeable to their Persuasions²; the Merchant believes there are Jewels and rich Wares in other lands and he puts to Sea, and attempts the Purchase, the Country-man believes he shall reap, and therefore he sows; the Soldier believes he shall have Victory and Spoil and therefore he fights: And doth the Christian also believe and sit still? Are not the Principles of Religion surer, the Hopes greater, the Probabilities fairer, and the Gains infinitely more than those of worldly men yet their Faith is active and busie, ours idle and of no effect. For shame then, let us not think we believe these Principles sufficiently, till we have turned them into Syllogism, and made our Conversation, the natural Conclusion from those Premises. Every mans natural Logick will enable him to argue thus :

He that believes God to be Almighty, and that he did make and doth preserve him and all the world, must love and fear him :

But, I believe in God the Father Almighty, &c.

Therefore, I ought to love and fear him.

Or thus,

The poor Sinner who believes in Jesus Christ, and is persuaded he was made man, and was crucified, dead and buried, &c. to redeem all men that repent, cannot but apply himself to him with penitence and importunity for Salvation :

But, I believe all this :

Therefore, I am obliged to apply my self to him with penitence and importunity for my Salvation.

The most ignorant with a little consideration, and without any rules of Art, may easily find in this manner what will be the natural result of every Article, and what effect it would produce in all that heartily embrace it. Would God that all the world were willing to live by these Conclusions as strictly as they can easily deduce them; for if so, we should not see the Practices of Christians so frequently contradict and destroy their Principles. Who is so rude, but he can tell what manner of persons they ought to be, who believe in an all-seeing and most holy God, who confess a Resurrection of the Body, a universal and dreadful day of Doom and an eternal state of Joy and Misery to follow after it? And yet who is so prudent (among Millions that pretend to believe all these things) to be such as they should be who make such a Profession? In other cases we should think that man did not believe any danger to be in such a place, if he would go into it blindfold and unarmed, nor should we give credit to one who protested he believed there was a great Treasure hard by him, if he never stirred on foot to seek it : And I fear, God will account those Christians amongst unbelievers who say their Creed daily, yet live as if they did not believe one Syllable thereof ; which that it may not be your lot, and that your Lives may not give your Lips the lie, when you say, I believe, &c. we will teach you to pursue your Creed a little further than most men do, and shew you more particularly in the following Paraphrase, how these Articles are to be applied for the assistance of your Prayers, and the amendment of your Lives : And whosoever useth the Creed thus will quickly find what admirable advantage it is, in our daily Devotions.

The Paraphrase and Application of the Creed.

Art. I. [I believe] most firmly [in] one infinite and eternal [God,] a most wise and powerful, holy and pure Spirit ; distinguished into three Persons, the first being [the Father Almighty,] who is the [maker of me and all Creatures in [heaven and earth,] and the Preserver and Governour of all the world.

APPLICATION

To Practice.

Wherefore I am oblig'd and resolved to own him as my God and Almighty Father, by loving, fearing and serving him ; and to acknowledge him the Creator of all, by admiring his works, right-

To Prayer.

And I am encouraged to call upon this mighty God my merciful Father, as the maker and disposer of all things ; I will petition him for my self and all mankind for food and raiment, health

ly using his creatures, relying on his providence for whatsoever I want in this world, and flying to him in all danger.

and wealth, protection and peace; not doubting but he will take care of the works of his own hands.

Art. II. [And] I do most firmly believe [in] the second Person of the glorious Trinity [Jesus Christ,] our anointed Saviour, who is very God, equal to the Father, being [his only Son] by eternal Generation, and [our Lord] by the merciful Redemption of our Souls.

APPLICATION

To Practice.

Wherefore I am obliged and resolved to commit my salvation to the management of my Redeemer, and since he is anointed by God to be a Prophet, Priest and King, I will observe his teaching, rely on his atonement, and submit to his Authority, rejoicing that I have so Divine a Saviour.

To Prayer.

And I am encouraged to pray in his name with faith, who is so dear to God, and hath such a right in me, I will call upon him for deliverance from my spiritual enemies, and the salvation of my Soul, hoping I shall obtain a safe Passport to the Kingdom of Heaven, since Gods only Son is my Redeemer.

Art. III. I do also firmly believe it was this very Son of God [who] being to be made Man, [was conceived] free from Sin [by the] over-shadowing power of the [Holy Ghost,] and uniting our Nature to his Divine Nature, in due time was [born of the] blessed [Virgin Mary,] being both God and Man in one Person.

APPLICATION

To Practice.

Wherefore I am obliged and resolv'd to be most thank-

To Prayer.

And I am encouraged to pray, that I may be sustained.

ful for that miraculous condescension of his Incarnation, learning from thence to submit to the meanest condition in order to doing good, and to keep my nature from pollution, since Jesus hath san-ctified it, and united it to the Divinity.

under the necessities of this frail state which Jesus was acquainted with; that I may be purged from the corruptions of my nature, which he was freed from, and that being regenerate by the Holy Ghost, I may be partaker of his nature, as he was of mine.

Art. IV. I do also most firmly believe, that this most Holy Jesus hath [suffered] the wrath, which we had deserved; for that he might redeem us, he was unjustly condemned [under Pontius Pilate] the Roman Governour, and [was crucified] on a Cross, till by the cruel torments sustained in his Body and Soul, he was really [dead,] so that as to his Body, he was laid in the grave [and buried] as to his Soul, [he descended into hell,] to set us free from Death and Hell, and to conquer Satan in his own quarters.

APPLICATION

To Practice.

Wherefore I am obliged and resolved to lament my sins and crucifie my lusts, the causes of his bitter Passion, and also to forsake them all, lest I lose the benefit of this all-saving Death, and bring myself under the same curse, finally, I will learn from him to suffer patiently, and to die cheerfully whenever God pleases.

To Prayer.

And I am encouraged to pray, that I may not suffer the wrath of God which Jesus hath endured; that this sacrifice may avail to the forgiveness of all my offences; that I may be supported in the hour of death, and delivered from hell since Jesus hath conquered both, and that the remembrance of his agonies and his love, may engage me to his service for ever.

Art. V.

Art. V. I do also most firmly believe. that when he had suffered all that Gods Justice required, and paid the full price for the sins of the world, [the third day] after his Passion, Death could no longer hold him, for [he arose again] by his Divine Power unto life, shewing us that God was satisfied and Satan subdued, since he was delivered [from the dead] among whom our iniquities and Gods anger had laid him.

A P P L I C A T I O N

To Practice.

To Prayer.

Wherefore I am obliged and resolved not to distrust his power and mercy in my lowest estate; 2^o to rely upon his full and complete satisfaction for the pardon of what is past, 3^o and to rise from the death of sin, that I may walk in newness of life hereafter, so shall I escape the second Death, & enjoy a 6^o Refuge:

And I am encouraged to pray to my victorious and living Redeemer, to rescue me from the power of Satan, whom he hath conquered; and to quicken me by his Grace, that I may live unto his Glory, and pay him such a living and reasonable service, as he deserves who hath freed us from Death and Hell.

Art. VI. I do also most firmly believe, that when the work of our Redemption was finished on earth, [he ascended] as a glorious Conqueror triumphantly [into heaven] from whence he came, [and sitteth] now in great glory [on the right hand of God] pleading his Merits on our behalf, and interceding for us before [the Father Almighty,] to reconcile us to him.

A P P L I C A T I O N

To Practice.

To Prayer.

Wherefore I am obliged and resolved to lift up my heart to him and put my trust in him

And I am encouraged to pray to my glorified Mediator, to keep me in peace

In all my troubles, to hope for the acceptance of my services by his intercession. to ascend thither now in my desires and affections, that I may ascend hereafter in person, and have the full fruition of his glory.

earth, fill me with longings after heaven, and intercede for my acceptance there; and that he will employ his interest in heaven, and his power over all the world to bring me safe to the enjoyment of himself.

Art. VII. I do also most firmly believe, that though Jesus be now so glorious in heaven, yet at the end of the world [from thence he shall come] again, most gloriously attended with millions of Angels to try, and [to judge] all men according to their deeds, both [the quick] which shall then be found alive [and the dead] though departed never so long before.

APPLICATION

To Practice.

*Wherefore I am obliged and resolved to judge no man before the time, except my self, leaving other mens actions to receive their sentence at his Tribunal, but preparing my own account, by examining and trying my own ways, repenting of my sins;
and avoiding that here, which would condemn me there.*

To Prayer.

And I am encouraged to make my supplication to my Judge, who is also my Saviour, that I may ever have this terrible day in remembrance; that he will prepare me for it by making my peace with God before, so that I may be acquitted in it by a merciful sentence, and have my portion among the Saints.

Art. VIII. Furthermore [I believe] most firmly [in] the third Person of the glorious Trinity [the Holy Ghost] our Sanctifier, who is very God proceeding from

from the Father and the Son, who hath written the Scriptures, and doth bless all the means of Grace, for our Instruction, Conversion, Comfort and Edification.

APPLICATION

To Practice.

Wherefore I am obliged and resolved to worship this Holy Spirit with the Father and the Son, to follow the good motions thereof, to honour the Word of God, and attend on his Ordinances; to take care I do not grieve the Holy Spirit, by delighting in impurity, and in hopes of the assistance thereof, to resist all evil, and set about every thing that is good.

To Prayer.

And I am encouraged to pray by the help of this good Spirit for the cleansing of my heart, enlightning my mind, and the subduing of my lusts; as also for a blessing on Gods Word and Ordinances, that by the use of them, I may grow in grace, till I be sanctified throughout in Spirit, Soul and Body, and thoroughly furnished unto every good work.

Art. IX. I do also firmly believe, that Christ hath purchased and the Spirit sanctified [the holy] Society of Christians throughout the world, called the [Catholic] and Universal Church, which Company of Believers Satan never could nor never shall be able to destroy; since they are united to Christ their head by Faith, and to each other by Love, which causeth [the Communion of Saints] to manifest itself in all offices of mutual Charity.

APPLICATION

To Practice.

Wherefore I am obliged and resolved to praise God, who hath made me a member of this Church, and to live

To Prayer.

And I am encouraged to pray with my fellow Christians, for the peace and the safety, the increase and pro-

in unity, peace and charity with all my Brethren, to profess the true Faith which is preserved in it, to joyn in all the holy Ordinances used by it, and to endeavour to bring the deceived home unto it, and to do good to all the members thereof.

prosperity of the true Religion, for the conversion of Sinners, the reducing of Hereticks and Schismatics; as also for the prosperity of its Princes, the success of its Ministers, and the unity of all its Members, that by the concord and good works of all that belong unto it, it may appear to be the Body of Christ.

Art. X. I do also most firmly believe, that all who are in the Unity of the Catholick Church, upon their hearty Repentance and true Faith may obtain [the forgiveness] and the pardon [of] all their [sins] which they have committed; so that they who do so repent and believe, shall never be condemned for them.

APPLICATION

To Practice.

Wherefore I am obliged and resolved never to forsake Christs holy Church, to which this privilege doth belong, as also diligently to repent of all my sins and chearfully to serve my God without fear, neither doubting the truth of his Promise, nor the sufficiency of my Redeemers Merits.

To Prayer.

And I am encouraged daily to make an humble confession of my Sins, with earnest prayers for Absolution, and hearty supplications for the graces of Faith and true Repentance; that so I may live constantly in Gods love, and die quietly in his favour, so that I may attain eternal happiness at the last, though I be a miserable sinner.

Art. XI.

Art. XI. I do also most firmly believe, not only that our Souls shall remain after Death, but that our whole Man shall be restored to life again, by [the Resurrection of the body] howsoever corrupted or dispersed, and by the reuniting thereof to the Soul again by the Command of God at the last day.

APPLICATION

To Practice.

Wherefore I am obliged and resolved to keep my body in temperance, soberness and chastity while I live, and to resign it cheerfully when I die; not to be impatient upon the death of my friends, but to be steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, because I know my labour is not in vain.

To Prayer.

And I am encouraged to pray to Jesus the first-begotten from the dead, for the sanctification of my vile Body, and a part in the first Resurrection; as also that I may be faithful unto death, and may be delivered in Gods due time, from all the miseries of this world, and raised up from the grave, to live with him for ever.

Art. XII. [And] lastly, I do most firmly believe, that after this world is at an end, while the wicked remain in endless torments Gods Servants shall behold his Glory, enjoy his Kingdom, and have the Society of heavenly Angels, in [the Life] that hath Joys unspeakable, and Happiness [everlasting,] where they shall sing Praises to God for ever.

And this Faith I seal with a most hearty [Amen.]

APPLICATION

To Practice.

Wherefore I am obliged and resolved to spend the moments of this transitory life well, to despise the short and empty pleasures of sin, to suffer patiently the light afflictions of this present time and to esteem nothing too good to lose, too hard to resist, or too tedious to perform, for the obtaining a happiness so comprehensive and so endless. Amen.

To Prayer.

And I am encouraged pray to the purchaser of glory, for Faith and Patience and Perseverance, that I may be comforted in all troubles by the hopes, and carried through all my difficulties by the desires of the eternal joys; and finally that all these hopes and desires may be fulfilled in the fruition of this eternal glory. Amen.

A N

A P P E N D I X

CONCERNING

S. Athanasius his Creed.

§.I. IT is no wonder that this excellent Confession hath been so much opposed and maligned by all those Hereticks which agree not with the Church in the Doctrins of the Trinity and of our Saviours Incarnation; because these two fundamental Articles are so fully asserted here, that the false Teachers have no room left for cavils or evasion, it being as Photius saith of his other Works, "A Trophy of Victory over every Heretic, especially the Arian". Hence some dispute against the Author of this Creed, denying it to be his whose Name it bears. Others abuse the Work and call it Sathanasius his Creed^m, and many quarrel with the Preface and Conclusion: But the Church of England receives and useth it once every month, beside Trinity-Sunday (for which it is most proper) as an Orthodox Confession of Faith, [Artic. 8. Rubr before this Creed,] and also thinks it probable that Athanasius was the Author, whereupon it bears his Name both in the Articles and the Liturgy: So that we shall vindicate this Creed both

^l Photius ad fratrem Tarasium de scriptis Athanasii.

^m Ita Georg. Paulus & Valentinus Gentilis apud Genebrard. l. 4. & apud Surium, Chronic. p. 320.

both as to its Author and Authority by proving
 1. That it is very probable he was the Author thereof
 2. That it is very certain a most pure and Orthodox Confession of Faith.

§. II. 1. The Author of this Creed appears to have been the great Athanasius; (1.) From the Occasion which that excellent Defender of the Catholick Faith had to write it; for the Church-Histories inform us that he was not only cast out of his Patriarchal See at Alexandria by the malice of the Arians, but accused by them also of Heresie to the Eastern and Western Emperors, and to Julius Bishop of Rome, as was also Marcellus an Orthodox Bishop of Ancyra and for others: Whereupon these Holy Bishops did all appear themselves to Julius at Rome, offering to clear themselves of all suspicion of Heresie before him, and a Council of the neighbouring Bishops, if he would let for their Accusers to appear also; which the Rome Bishop did: But the Arians not appearing to maintain good their charge of Sabellianism, &c. Marcellus departing left a Confession of his Faith with Julius, which is recorded by Epiphanius, Her. 72. and since Athanasius was under the same accusation, he also made a Confession of his Faith in that Synod, which we now call his Creed. [Binius Concil. Tom. 1. p. 420.] It is said he composed it first at Triers, while he lived there in exile, An. 336. and afterwards sent it to Julius Bishop of Rome, to whom he was accused, An. 339. and finally openly pronounced it in the aforesaid Synod An. 340. so Binius and Baronius, with Possevinus, Barbarius and others. But if more ancient Testimony were required to prove this:

(2.) We have many testimonies very antient to evidence this: Gregory Nazianzen in his Oration in praise of Athanasius mentions "A Royal Gift which he presented " ten

“ sented to the Emperor, a Confession of his Faith, “ received with great Veneration “ both in the West and East ” ;

^a Orat. in laud. Atha-nas. 44, 45.

which place many Authors anti-ent and modern understand of this Creed. Again, there are many places in S. Augustin which are verba- tim taken out of this Creed (as shall be shewed presently) which argues that he had seen a Copy of it, and some of the same passages in Beetbius de Trinitate, An- no 510. and in the fourth Council of Toledo, cap. 1.
Anno 671. do make it likely that the Words of this Creed were then famous, but the Author being only a single person, not so much spoken of ; yet the Learned Bishop of Armagh in his Discourse on this subject saith, that this Creed bears Athanasius his name in the Capitulars of Hincmarus Archbishop of Rheims, An. 852. and in the Discourses against the Grecians written by Rathrannus of Corbey ^a, and by Æ- neas Bishop of Paris ^b in the time of Carolus Calvus : as also the same Learned Ussher mentions an old Psalter once belonging to King Athelstan (about the year 924.)

^a Rathran. in Græc.
 l. 2.

^b Æneas Paris. in eoddem, l. 1. c. 19. circa
An. 876.

where this Creed hath this Title, The Faith of Saint Athanasius of Alexandria. And by all Authors ever since it hath been so called, as might be proved out of Abbo Floriacensis ^c, Durandus ^d, Jo. Beletb ^e, Mannel Caleca a Grecian ^f, Gennadius surnamed Scho- larium ^g, and Eugenius IV. ^h whose words are cited at large by a learned modern Author upon this subject : So that it appears, that it hath born his name in all the world for many hundred years, if not from the fir-

^a Apologet. An. 1001.

^b Rational. l. 4. c. 25.

^c Explic. Divin. Offic.
 cap. 40.

^d Contra Græcos, c. 20.

^e Pro Concil. Florent.

^f Admon. ad Episcop.
 Armen.

composition. If it be objected, some old Manuscripts give it another Title: I answer, so many Ornaments are attributed to several Fathers by several Manuscripts, and some of the Canonical Books have ascribed to more Authors than one; but this is sure of, that none can put in for the Author of this Creed with so fair a probability as S. Athanasius having written particular Tracts against those Heresies which this Creed doth condemn; viz. against the Arians, the Apollinarists, the Sabellians, the Deniers of the Divinity of the Spirit or Macedonians, and the followers of Paulus Samosatensis; of all which Tracts this Creed is the Epitome.

2. The Authority of this Creed is still more evident and if any can yet doubt of the Author, none can deny the Doctrine thereof to be pure and Orthodox. (1.) It contradicts expressly all those Heresies which the Catholick Church condemned in the Prime Councils: As to the Trinity teaching us, "Thou must not confound the Persons (with Sabellius;) for there is one Person of the Father, another of the Son, and another of the Holy Ghost, &c. Nor yet may we say one Substance (with Arius and Eunomius;) for there be three heads of the Father, of the Son and of the Holy Ghost, &c. Not only the Father is God, but the Son is God (which Arius denied) and the Holy Ghost is God (which Macedonius would not grant;) and yet it doth not follow, (as the Arians pretended) that there are three Gods. Again, as to the Incarnation of our Saviour, it declares, that he is very God of the substance of his Father (against Arius, Samosatensis and Photinus,) and very Man of the substance of his Mother (which Apollinarius denied,) of a reasonable Soul (which the same Heretics disowned) and born in Flesh which the Valentinians allowed not;) and yet he is not two (as Nestorius dreamt but one Christ. One not by confusion of Substance (as Eutyches held) but by Unity of Person. These are the chief Heresies, and if they were wrong and the Catholick Church (which condemned them) in the right, then this Creed is Orthodox, and the very Quintessence of the antient Divinity.

(2.) The same may further appear in that the very words of this Creed are frequently found in the Writings of the Orthodox Fathers. First, that passage, So there is one Father not three Fathers, one Son not three Sons, &c. is found in S. Ignatius¹; and that the Father is Almighty, &c. in S. Augustin²; in whom also we read those words, For as the reasonable soul and flesh is one Man, &c. * That neither confounding the Persons, &c. may be seen in the Confession of an old Council³; and that the Father is God, the Son is God, &c. is verbatim in Boethius^b; as they who will consult the places will find more at large, so that this Creed is the Doctrin of the most Orthodox Fathers, who since its composure often speak in the words thereof.

(3.) This Creed hath been received as Orthodox by all Christian Churches for many Centuries. The Reverend Bishop Usher tells us of an old Psalter written at least 1000 years ago, which is in Sir Rob. Cotton's Library, in which is this Creed with the title of The Catholick Faith; and so it may well be called, being received for such and under Athanasius his name, not only in the Latin Church, but in the Constantinopolitan, in the Servian, Bulgarian and Russian Churches^c; and so it is in the Lutheran Churches^d, in the Gal-

¹ Ignat. Epist. ad Philippens.

² Augustin. de Trin. lib. 8. item Epist. 174. ad Pascen.

* Augustin. Enchirid. c. 36. item Epist. 3. ad Volusianum.

³ Concil. IV. Toletan. cap. 1.

^b De Trinitate, initio.

^c Canzonor. Epist. ad Calvin.

^d Conf. Saxon. Artic. lica

^e Confess. Gallic. Artic. 5.

^f Artic. 8.

Author, calling it

A Athanasii Symbolum est paulo prolixius, estq; hoc velut propugnaculum Apostolici Symboli, ab eo contra Arianos Hereticos conditum.

De trib. Symbol.

*lican, and the Church of England[†]; and Luther himself positively affirms Athanasius to be the Author, calling it a Bulwark to the Creed of the Apostles[‡]. The like Testimonies might be multiplied out of all former Reformed Divines; but these may suffice.

Obj. But it seems to condemn all Dissenters from us with too much Severity.

Ans^r. Those who deny these Doctrins are condemned in Holy Scripture, (1 John ii. 22, 23. Ch. v. v. 10.) and the Heresies here opposed are called damnable Heresies, (2 Pet. ii. 1.) And all that have read the Primitive Councils know, it was their constant use, when they had declared the right Faith, to anathematize and accurse all that did deny it; for Latitudinarian Principles were strangers to those days.

To conclude therefore, there is sufficient reason for us to say this excellent Creed with a firm Faith; and also it will admonish us to bless Almighty God in the Gloria Patri which follows it, in that he hath preserved these Mysteries of the Trinity and Incarnation of Christ from all corruptions of Hereticks, delivering them down purely to us, who must admire and believe them although we cannot fully comprehend them; and may rejoice that the Catholick Church (differing in some other points) agrees intirely in these, and we hope shall do so to the end of the world. Amen.

SECTION II.

Of the Versicles and their Responsals, before and after the Lords Prayer.

§. I. The Lord be with you. Answ. And with thy Spirit.] If we have sincerely repeated our Creed together; we have professed our Faith in God, and declared our Unity and Agreement with one another; and then we have cause to hope our Prayers will prevail; since they were ushered in by Faith and Charity, the best Preparatives to that Duty. We have all owned that we have one Lord and one Faith, and now we are preparing as Brethren and Fellow-Soldiers to unite our Requests, and to send them to the throne of God. But first in token of our mutual Charity the Church appoints (instead of the antient Kiss of Peace) a hearty Salutation to pass between the Minister and People, he beginning in the phrase of Boaz to his Reapers, The Lord be with you (Ruth ii. 4. Psal. cxxix. 8.) which was after drawn into common use as a form of Salutation to all, and used by S. Paul in his Epistles (2 Theff. iii. 16.) To which the People are to return a good wish for their Minister, in a form taken from the same Apostle (2 Tim. iv. 22. Gal. vi. 18.) desiring the Lord may be with his spirit: Which is no invention of our own, but mentioned in an Antient Council ^a, Placuit ut Episcopi & Presbyteri uno modo salutent Populum, dicentes, Dominus vobiscum, — Et ut respondeatur à Populo, Et cum Spiritu tuo: sicut & ab ipsis Apostolis traditum omnis retinet Oriens. Concil. Bracc. I. Can. 21.

and there affirmed to have been instituted by the Apostles, and (as it there also appears) retained in the Liturgies, especially of the Greek Church: But sure it never had a fitter place than in our excellent Service, where it succeeds the Creed as the Symbol and Bond of Peace. S. John forbids us to salute (or to desire God to be with) any that cleave not to this right Faith, 2 John v. v. 10, 11. But when the Minister hath heard every one profess his Faith in the same words with himself, how chearfully and without scruple may he salute them as Brethren, and they requite his affection with a like return? 'Tis too sadly true, that little Differences in Religion make wide Separations and the most incurable Animosities. Why then should not our exact Agreement be as forcible an uniter of all our hearts, since the Profession of the same Faith

ἡ Αἰτία τῆς ὁμονοίας τοῦ ἀνθρώπου καὶ μέγιστον πρὸς εἰς τὸ ἐνδὲς Θεοῦ δόξα.
Philo.

hath ever been reputed the firmest Bond of Charity^b. Wherefore when these endearing Offices have warmed our hearts with mutual Love, these expressions will not barely signify the Affections between the Minister and his People, but may be used as the exercise of their Charity by way of Prayer for one another. Let the Spiritual man meditate how often Satan^c is among the Sons of God; how many of his flock which now are preparing to joyn with him, are oppressed with hard hearts, or disturb'd with vain thoughts; and then let him earnestly pray the Lord may be with them, that his Prayers be not in vain for them. Let the People also remember how comfortable and advantagious it will be to them, that he who is their mouth to God may have a pure heart and a fervent spirit; and with these thoughts let them most heartily requite their Pastors Prayer, by desiring the Lord to be with his spirit, that both may, by acknowledging their insufficiency and declaring their Charity, obtain a Blessing of God for each other, and find the benefit of these short Petitions in every part of the succeeding Offices.

 but

§. II. Let us pray.] We can do nothing in Religion without the Divine Presence and Assistance; and therefore the Minister and People must mutually beg that for each other, and then they must join in their Petitions. In the beginning of which is placed this short and antient Exhortation, so often repeated in all the old Liturgies; whereby the Priest gives the Signal of Battel or the Watch-word, to all the Assembly that they may set on their enemies with courage, and besiege even

Ἁγίου Πνεύματος ὁμιλίας ἁγίου ἁγίου ἁγίου τὸν ἁγίου ἁγίου ἁγίου ἁγίου ἁγίου Dominum oremus; postulemus. Vide Liturg. S. Jacobi, S. Basilii, &c.

Heaven itself with a holy importunity. And as the Crier of old in the Heathen Sacrifices proclaimed his HOC AGITE, and warned all to attend what they were about; so doth the Minister charge you against all wandring thoughts, which are never more frequent nor pernicious than in holy Duties; desiring you not to rest satisfied in his Petitions for you, but to let your heart go along with him; that they may be accepted as your Prayers though pronounced with his lips. He enjoins you all to pray with him, and for one another: For it is a great work you have to do, and you must now take off your thoughts from all other things, and wholly mind this.

§. III. Lord have mercy upon us: Christ have, &c. Lord have, &c.] The best beginning for our requests is a Petition for Mercy, whereby we acknowledge our unworthiness, declare our misery, and confess we cannot expect our Prayers should be heard, unless it may please God first to have mercy upon us. Like those poor Lepers, we discerning Jesus afar off, cry out ^d Luke xvii. 11, 12.

Eminus tanquam im-mundi [Lev. xiii. 45.]
clamant, Jesu Domine, miserere nostri.

pleased to pity and cleanse us? As to this particular Form, it is originally taken out of David's Psalms^e, where it is some times repeated twice together, to which the Church hath added

^e Psal. vi. 2. & Psal. li. 1. &
 Psal. cxxiii. 3.

Christ have mercy upon us, that it might be a short Litany, and a Supplication for Mercy to every Person in the Trinity^f, because we have offended every Person, and are to pray to every Person, and need the help of every Person; calling both the Father and Holy Ghost by the same title of Lord, as being partakers of only one and the same Divine Nature; and the Son by another title, who also did partake of our Human Nature: as Durand. Ration. l. 4. c. 12. doth observe. And as Tho. Aquinas adds, being under a threefold misery, of Ignorance, Guilt and Punishment, we thrice implore Mercy; and because we need Mercy

^f Imploramus misericordiam Domini per Kyrie eleeson, Christe, &c. Kyrie, &c. Ita ut tres articulos aliquo modo Divinae Majestatis & Trinitatis in Ecclesia celebremus. Amalar. Fort. de Eccl. Offic.

^g Quia ante omnem orationem sacerdotum, necesse est misericordiam Domini implorare. Durand. Rational. ut supr.
^h Et quia — dulcis & nimis salubris consuetudo intromissa est, ut Kyrie eleeson frequentius cum grandi compunctione dicatur, placuit etiam novum, ut in omnibus Ecclesiis nostris ista consuetudo sancta, & ad Matutinum & ad Missas & ad Vesperam Deo propitiante intromittatur. Concil. Vascens. can. 5.

Unclean^d, and beseech him to have mercy on us, for we are defiled with dust and ashes, and how shall we dare to draw near to him, or open our mouths before him, till he be pleased to pity and cleanse us? As to this particular Form, it is originally taken out of David's Psalms^e, where it is some times repeated twice together, to which the Church hath added whenever we pray^g, it was used both in the Eastern and Western Churches, and became customary in the time of Theodosius the younger; so that it was decreed by a Council^h, that it should be said in the Morning and Evening Prayer, and in the Communion-Office with great Contrition and Devotion. By which it appears, that though these words were so sacred, that the Heathens also used them in their Prayersⁱ, yet they learned them either from David or the Christian Church, where the use of them was so familiar, that we read Antioch was delivered from an Earth-quake by the Peoples going barefoot in Procession, and saying this short Litany, Lord have mercy on us^k: And no doubt if with humility and fervency we repeat it, our Souls may be delivered from sin, and our following Supplications might be more acceptable; for it signifies Lord be gracious^l unto us, or shew compassion and favour toward us, in receiving and answering the Prayers we are about to make, especially the Lords Prayer, wherein we must not presume to call God Father, until we have intreated for Grace and Mercy.

ⁱ Τὸν Θεὸν ἐπιχαλεμοι δεόμεθα αὐτῷ,
ΚΥΡΙΕ ἘΛΕΗΣΟΝ.
Arrian. in Epictetum,
l. 2. c. 7.

^k Paul. Diacon. l. 16.

^l Deus sis propitius. Ita Vers. Jun. & Trem.

But concerning the Repetition of the L O R D S
P R A Y E R in this place, our designed Brevity allows us only here to say, that being the best of all Prayers, it cannot be used too often; and having the best of all Authors for its Composer (even him for whose sake all our Requests are heard) it may seem to consecrate the Petitions annexed to it, since they are formed by this Pattern, and contain nothing but what is agreeable to this Form, which hath upon it the Royal stamp of Divine Authority. Nor should the frequency of its returns abate our devotion in the use, since Jesus did thrice pray in the same words. Only as before it was applied for the confirmation of our Pardon.

Pardon, so now it must respect the following Petitions, to which we may so heartily unite it, that they may be more acceptable for its sake, and we may make amends for any Petition thereof, which was not so zealously put up (by reason of intervening distractions) when it was said before; by asking that with a doubled earnestness now, which then we forgot or slightly passed over.

§.IV. Psal.lxxxv.7. O Lord, shew thy mercy upon us. Ans. And grant us thy salvation.] From the recital of that sacred Form of Prayer which Jesus left us, we pass to the interlocutory Petitions; by this grateful variety taking off the tediousness, and adding to the pleasure of the Duty; as also quickening the attention and uniting the hearts of the performers. And herein the Minister begins as the commissioned Embassador of Heaven; yet the People follow and bear a part, as a badg of their Honour and an engagement to their Wachfulness, Charity and Devotion; while both contribute heat to each others Affections, and vigor to these short and sweet Ejaculations, taken for the most part out of the great storehouse of Divine Offices, the Psalms of David, and being an Epitome of the ensuing Collects for Grace and Peace, for Kings, Priests and People, that they may be replenished with all sorts of Blessings. The words of which Sentences are so significant and comprehensive, that it will be hard to make a better Collection; and yet so plain and obvious, that we discourse of them rather for the help of Devotion, than any necessity of Explication. This first Versicle is a general Petition for Mercy and Salvation, and seems to be the sum of all the weekly Collects; for one or both of these are commonly the subject of them: We prayed for Mercy in the Lord have mercy, &c. and now we beg some visible token thereof, of, viz. some such wonderful deliverance^m, that all the world may see and say it is his Salvation. We ^m Psal. lxxxvi. 17.

Psal. lxiv. penult.

need Mercy to pardon, pity and help us in the way, and we desire Salvation at the end; even that eternal Salvation which is his by Inheritance, Possession and Purchase, and can only be ours in his right and by his mercy; so that it is fit we call it his Salvation, and first crave Mercy, before we presume to ask it, because we cannot otherwise merit or obtain it, but by his mercyⁿ.

ⁿ Quia non aliunde inducitur Deus ut salvator, nisi quia misericors est. Calvin. in locum.

§. V. Psal. xx. ult. God, save the King. Ans. And mercifully hear us when we call upon thee.] This twentieth Psalm, whence this is taken, may be intitled, A Prayer for the King; for after many Petitions for his Prosperity, it concludes with this summary Ejaculation even in these very words^o, as the Greek Interpreters and their followers do on good grounds read them. And for the Phrase itself, it is the same with that so usual Acclamation, God save the King^p, wherein we do in one word wish the King Prosperity and Peace, long Life and Health, Victory and everlasting Felicity. And this we do not as many Parasiti, only at the Coronation, when every one adores the rising Sun; but we repeat it most loyally and devoutly every day, earnestly desiring his Welfare and Safety; and because in his peace we shall have peace, we humbly beg this request may always find acceptance, and that we may be heard.

^o Psal. xx. ult.
LXX. κύει, ὡς βασιλεὺς καὶ ἐπὶ πάντων ἡμῶν, — &c. Ita Vulg. Lat. & Vatabl. Vide Hammond. Annot. Psal. xx. [d] ^p 1 Sam. x. 24.
Ch. Par. Sit felix Rex.
1 Kings i. 25, 39.
2 Kings xi. 12. Alibi, Vivat Rex, vel Vivat in æternum.

and our dear and dread Sovereign blessed every day withal pre-ingaging, as it were, the Almighty again a time of more especial need, viz. that when by reason of Wars or Tumults we come in the behalf of our Prince to beg a particular blessing for Him and his Armies, that we may then prevail: So that the praying well as fighting Legions may be esteemed the Defence and Guard of his Person and his Rights.

§.VI. Psal.cxxxii.9. Endue thy Ministers with righteousness. Answe. And make thy chosen people just.] This Prayer for the holy Tribe indited by David seems to have been a part of the Jewish Liturgy, as it was solemnly used by Solomon at the Dedication of the Temple: Let thy Priests be clothed^a (saith he) with Righteousness, alluding no doubt to ^a 2 Chron. vi.41.

Exod. xxviii. 2. &c 36.

holy Garments appointed for their Ministration, which did signifie that extraordinary and peculiar Sanctification which was required in those who approached so near to God. The sense of which Petition our Church hath significantly given in the word [endue] (light changed from the Latin indue) which refers to the qualifications of the Mind, as the word [Cloath] to the covering of the Body. So that here we pray that they may have Souls pure as their linen Ephod, and Lives spotless and holy as the Garments they are clothed with; not content to have their outward man arrayed with the Sign, but endeavouring to have their inward

^a Attendat sacerdos studiosè, ut signum sine significatione non ferat, & vestem sine virtute non portet, ne fortè sit similis sepulchro-doforis dealbato.
Innoc.de Myst.mis.l. 2.

^c Pf.132.16. Isa.61.10.

man endued and adorned with the Purity signified thereby^b. And the Petition we make to him which hath promised to deck his Priests with health^c, and to cloath them with the garment of Salvation as the robe of righteousness, that his

Saint

Saints may rejoice and sing. For the holy Lives and good Success of pious and painful Ministers, is an extraordinary delight to Gods people, who therefore do here use it as an argument to enforce their request for the Ministers. For we (say they) are not of those who glory in the crimes of the Ministers of God, or rejoice in their calamities : Because, O Lord, we love thee and them ; wherefore if thou wilt please to give them Health and Safety, Righteousness and Peace ; we shall thrive under their Care, and joyfully follow their good Examples ; the Benefit and the Pleasure will be ours, and the Glory shall be thine for this and all thy Mercies. Make them righteous, and thou wilt make us joyful.

§. VII. Psal. xxviii. 9. O Lord, save thy people. Ans. And bless thine inheritance.] The kindness of the Congregation to the Minister exprest in the last Responsal, is here most lovingly and thankfully returned and requited by him, who now prays for them*, as heartily as they for him before ; which cannot but endear the Priest and People one to another, since they daily do thus mutually interchange offices of Love. Wherefore let both join in this comprehensive Request, that God would save and deliver his people from all evil, and bless and furnish them with all good things, since they are his peculiar inheritance and so may expect a special defence and relief from their own God. [But of this before in the Te Deum.]

* Hæc verba habentur, Lit. S. Chrys. & S. Basil.

§. VIII. 1 Chron. xxii. 9. Give peace in our time, O Lord. Ans. Because there is none other that fighteth for us, but only thou O God.] It pleased God to make particular Promises to Solomon, Hezekiah and *Josiah*s, that he would give peace in their days. Wherefore we make bold to ask it

§ 1 Chron. xxii. 9.
Isai. xxxix. 8.
2 Kings xxii. 20.

for

* Exod. xiv. 14.

Deut. i. 30.

their Bow and rely on their Sword care not to ask Peace, because they hope either to awe their foes by their Quietness, or to make advantage by War, as if sufficiently guarded and prepared. But we of the Church of God know, Armies and Navies are not only against God, but without him, and unsuccessful by his blessing. So that though we have yet we account the Divine Providence our great security. How well this Petition suited the Principles of Christians every one may discern, who considered it unlawful (while the Emperors were then) to fight in their own defence. And when Prayer and Tears were their only weapons, they might most justly be accounted with God for their own defence, who did so wholly depend on his Protection, that his Glory was concerned in their safety. Yet it is not impossible for us now, though (blessed be God) we have Christian Princes and their forces to defend us: For we there may be no occasion to use Arms; or if there

* Luke xxii. 38.

Ita Explic. ab Origen. in Cels. l. 5. Ambros. de Offic. Basil. & Augustin. Vid. Arnob. l. 1. p. 6.

† Ezra viii. 22.

* Bellum gerere malis videtur felicitas, bonis necessitas. August.

we declare, we rely not alone on these Preparations, unless he please to bless them, we know they are unserviceable. Wherefore we please him, we desire Peace, and that he will keep us from Invasions and Rebellions for our time; and so will the following generations for their days, that it may appear we wish to live in Peace, and do trust alone in the Lord of Hosts.

§.IX. Psal. li. 10, 11. O God, make clean our hearts within us. Answ. And take not thy holy Spirit from us.] Though Peace be accounted the chief of all Blessings, yet without Grace it may do us more harm than good. Wherefore we conclude with an earnest Supplication for Grace to fit us for, and help us in, the following Devotions. We are now to offer up our incense, and therefore do beseech the Author and lover of Purity, in holy David's words, to cleanse the Altars of our hearts, that neither the guilt of former offences may unhallow or defile them, nor any remaining evil thoughts may disturb the holy cloud; but that it may ascend and be a sweet savour before the Throne of God. And because it is the Holy Spirit alone which can effect this, we pray that our hearts may be so pure as to invite this holy Dove to come unto us, and remain with us, that it may both make and keep us undefiled, in the remaining part of our Prayers and of our Lives. If we look back on those portions of the Office which we have performed, I hope we shall have cause thankfully to acknowledge that the Divine Spirit hath been with us; and excited the flames of our Devotion, the comfort of which aid makes us earnest for its continuance. And certainly we could never have sent up these very sacred Ejaculations with such fervent Spirits, united Hearts, and harmonious Voices, if the same Spirit of Zeal and Love had not inspired us. Therefore let the sweetness of this experience encourage us to beg that the Holy Ghost may stay among us, so that we may as affectionately join in those Prayers, where the Minister is the only speaker, as we have done in these, wherein we have had the honour and advantage of bearing our Parts, and making our Responsals. And indeed there is so great an Harmony between these Versicles and the fol-

following Collects, that it is fit they should be with one and the same Devotion; these being like Titles to the Collects, and here both Priest and People repeat the heads of what the Priest alone is to say for more largely there. The first Versicle, O Lord, show, &c. answers to the Sunday Collect. The second, O Lord, save the King, &c. answers to the Prayers for the King and his Family. The third and fourth, Endue thy Ministers, and O Lord, save thy people, answers to the Collect for Clergy and People. The fifth, Give peace, &c. answers to the daily Collect for Peace. The last, O God, make clean, &c. answers to the daily Collect for Grace; which being served, may serve for an Analysis to these Versicles and so we proceed to the Paraphrase.

The Paraphrase of the Versicles and Responsals before after the Lords Prayer.

Minister. My dear Brethren in the right Faith, I most affectionately salute you; desiring [the Lord] his Grace may [be with you] to prosper you in what you now are doing.

Answer. [And] we thankfully return the kindness desiring likewise the Lord may be [with thy spirit] to compose and excite it, while thou speakest to God for us.

Minister. Let not your thoughts wander, but let us [let us pray] to God with fervency and devotion.

O [Lord] God the Father, pity, pardon and [have mercy upon us] who are unworthy to call upon thee.

O [Christ] the Son of God, pity, pardon [have mercy upon us,] whose only hope is in thy Mediation and Redemption.

O [Lord] God the Holy Ghost, pity, pardon and have mercy upon us,] and assist us in these our Supplications.

Our Father which art, &c.

Priest. Consider our sin and misery with compassion, [O Lord,] and now [shew] some token of [thy mercy upon us] to our comfort.

Ans. [And grant us] now and ever such wonderful deliverances from all evil, that we may surely obtain [thy salvation] at the last.

Priest. [O Lord] thou Governour of all the world, be pleased to bless, preserve and [save the King] thine own Anointed.

Ans. [And mercifully hear us,] whose peace is linked together with his prosperity, [when we call on thee] for him, especially on extraordinary occasions.

Priest. O Lord, do thou [endue] the hearts and minds of [thy Ministers with] the purity and holiness signified by their garments, that so their lives may be full of [righteousness.]

Ans. [And] thereby thou shalt [make] us and all thy chosen people] out of our love to them, and spiritual benefit by them, exceeding [joyful] in such exemplary and faithful Pastors,

Priest. Be mercifully

usly

[O Lord] continually out of all their trouble bounty and goodness which thou hast redeemed us from, and to all the world, and we may quietly serve God with Peace.

Ans.

SECTION III.

the Collects for the Week and Festival days.

IT cannot be expected we should here give a particular Account of all the Collects for Sundays and other Festival days, which are numerous, they cannot be contained in the narrow limits of this Essay, and so plain that they need not curious Explication; especially when the pious, by exercising itself in other parts of these Offices after our proposed Method, is become expert in entering into devout Meditations, it will then easily be the same in these Collects without a Monitor. And the Epistle and Gospel annexed to them are generally an excellent Commentary upon them; and some of them take their name from their being Collected of those portions of Holy Writ. But if we regard the use of the Word in the Scriptures and the Fathers^a, they may rather seem to be denominated from the Collection and gathering together of the People into Religious Assemblies, among whom collected these Prayers were to be used. For which cause, though they be short^b, yet all that any man can ask for, is comprehended in them, and collected into a small

^a petitiones compendiosâ brevitate colligit. Walafrid. Strab. Durand. Rational. l. 4. c. 15.

^a Dies collectæ : Vulg. Lat. Levit. xxiii. 36. Collectionem : Vulg. Heb. x. 25. Et apud Patres Collectam celebrare, sæpiissime. Inde preces illæ à populi collectione Collectæ appellari cœperunt. Alcuinus.

^b Existimant orationem brevem Collectam appellari quod sacerdos —

Epitome. Therefore let the whole Congregation most unanimously in them, and apply them to their own and their Brethrens known necessities. And observe that they are all directed to the Father through Generaliter ad Patrem diriguntur, & terminantur in nomine Filii, — & paulo post — O Pater, exaudi per filium tuum, qui hoc vult & potest; vult quia vivit, & potest quia regnat. Durand. Rational. L. 4. c. 19.

the Son, who liveth and loveth us, and so will hear us, and reigneth in Heaven and therefore can help us. The beginning commonly the ground on which we are induced to ask, and in the Petition made, it is commonly backed with some motive from the Glory of God, or Benefit, which we believe will be the effect of our being heard. But if any desire a more distinct determination of the Subject of every Collect, they may learn by the following Table; wherein they are arranged, that besides the direction in the Publick, may by frequent use thereof, be always armed with compendious and ejaculatory Prayer of the Church's composition, pertinent to all occasions; which may be of excellent use to those who desire to be always their guard against the enemy of their Souls.

The Analytical

Collection

S.II. In them we pray either

In the first fort we pray for our selves:

I. For both Body and Se

II. For the Body, and things temporal,

1. Safety, by

2. Deliveran

3. Support

4. Both Pre

1. Manifold

2. Especial Favours of God,

III. For the Soul, and things spiritual.

S
C
D
I

The American Table is the best of its kind in the world

and is the only one that is made in America

and is the only one that is
made in America

and is the only one that is
made in America

and is the only one that is
made in America

and is the only one that is
made in America

and is the only one that is
made in America

and is the only one that is
made in America

and is the only one that is
made in America

and is the only one that is
made in America

and is the only one that is
made in America

SECTION IV.

Of the Two Collects peculiar to Morning Prayer.

§. I. GRACE and PEACE, which are the Subjects of these two Prayers, are Blessings so desirable, that we must always ask them whensoever we pray. The Eastern Church prayed thrice for Peace in one days Service; and we may well ask it twice, and Grace as often; especially having such antient and devout Forms to ask them in, whose Method and Order we will next unfold.

* Chrysost. Homil. 3. in 3. ad Coloss.

The Analysis of the Morning Collect for Peace

§. II. In this Collect are five parts :

- | | | |
|--|---|--|
| I. The Person, to whom we make this Request, | 1. His Nature : | { O God, who |
| | 2. His Accibents : | { the author of |
| | | { peace and love |
| | | { concord, |
| II. The Reasons, why we make it : | 1. Our Happiness in knowing him : | { in knowledge whom O God
our eternal life |
| | 2. Our Privilege in serving him : | { whose service perfect freedom |
| III. The Request itself, specifying : | 1. The thing desired : | { defend |
| | 2. The Persons, for whom : | { us thy humble servants, |
| | 3. The Time, when : | { in all assaults
our enemies, |
| IV. The Ends, for which we make it, | 1. The securing our Faith : | { that we surely trusting in thy fence, |
| | 2. The removing our Fears : | { may not fear power of any adversaries, |
| V. The Means, by which we hope to prevail : | | { through the m of Jesus Chr
our Lord. AME |

A Practical Discourse on the Morning Collect for Peace.

§. III. O God, who art the author of peace and lover of concord.] Peace hath always been reputed the chiefest of earthly Blessings; both because of its own excellencies, and because it is the Parent and Nurse of all other comforts. So that in the sacred Dialect ^b Peace is used to signify all good things, Plenty and Prosperity, Health and Joy and the undisturbed Fruition of all these. It is indeed the Felicity of Earth, where all is nothing without it, and the Type of Heaven, where all is comprehended in it; wherefore the Christians, according to Gods Command ^c, did ever follow it in their Lives, and beg it in their Prayers; both for the Heathens under whom they lived, and for the Church of God. And in obedience to the Divine Command, and imitation of such examples, we also make it a part of our daily Office to pray for Peace. And sure none can approach the Throne of Grace, to ask this Blessing with greater encouragements than we have. For (as the Church intimates) our God is the Author of Peace ^d, and owns the Peace-makers for his Children. And instead of that dreadful title the Lord of Hosts, is in the New Testament ^e ever stiled the God of Peace; because he loves ^f, and procures it ^f, and com-

^b Numb. vi. 26. Et in salutationibus, Pax est?
Gen. xxix. 6. comprehendit χαίρειν, ὑμαίνειν, ἡσυχάζειν. Drusius.
Si non pax, nihil. Adag.
Hebr. apud Fagium.

^c Heb. xii. 14. Jerem. xxix. 7. Psal. cxxii. 6.
— Orbem quietum. Ter-tul. Apolog.
Pro arcendis hostibus—& vel auferendis vel temperandis adversis, & & pro gentium pace & salute. Cypr. Ep. ad Demetr.

^d Isai. xlv. 7.
Matth. v. v. 9.

^e Rom. xv. 33. & xvi.
20. Phil. iv. 9.
^f Psal. xlv. 9.

mands us to make it and seek it with all men. This Petition can never be rejected, which is more than, Lord, give us that which is agreeable to thy nature, pleasant in thy sight, and which we by thy command continually do follow after. And as he commands to preserve his Servants in Peace from all enemies without, so also to behold them live in Unity and concord within among themselves. Hence he also commands

¶ Psal. lxxviii. vi. & cxxxiii. 1, 2. Rom. xv.
5, 6. Acts ii. 44.

this, and did he bind the Souls of the first Believers in the bands of Amity and concord, that all the powers of Hell could not dissolve those holy combinations.

Therefore set these Attributes of God before you when you are to beg for Peace, and let them encourage you to ask cheerfully, and teach you (as you desire to be like him) to endeavour after Peace and Concord in you, that your Actions may not contradict your Words, wherein you own your selves Sons of the God of Peace.

§. IV. [In knowledge of whom standeth our life, whose service is perfect freedom.] It will encourage our request, if we here make humble acknowledgments of, and pleasing reflections upon our happiness in having relation to such a God, the knowledge of whom (John xvii. 3.) is the felicity of the Saints of Heaven, and his worship and service the duty of his holy ones on earth. It is the most precious part of all the delights of Eternity, for blessed Spirits take a full prospect of the immense treasures of his expressible Love of the God of Peace; and to see how he rejoices over the endearing Concord and incomparable Amities of his chosen ones in his everlasting Peace. And that little discovery which he has made to us in this imperfect state, of his Power and Providence, his Care and Love, his delight in our

and procuring our Peace, even this is a great help to bring us to those endless joys. For when we behold the miseries of the world, the rage of wicked men, and the malice of Satan; we might despair to escape them, and comply with them for our present safety, and so lose our eternal Happiness: But only that we know him who is able to secure us, and delights in our Peace; and therefore we fly to him, call upon him, and encourage our selves in him in the greatest appearance of danger; and thereby are kept through faith unto salvation, and brought at last to that eternal Life, which we should scarce dare to hope for, but by our knowledge and experience of his Power and Mercy. This is the reason why we now intreat him for Peace, whom we know to be the Author of Peace, even that we may improve our knowledge of him, to be a means to bring us to that never-ceasing Peace in his heavenly Kingdom; and to shew us from whom we must seek Protection all the way. And further we declare, that we neither are nor desire to be Masters of our selves. For our Freedom consists, not in being subject to no Superior; but in that we are the Servants ^a of so almighty and gracious a Master, who preserves us a thousand times safer than if we were left to our selves. We are now directly engaged in his Service, and therefore under his immediate protection; so that now we have a perfect freedom even from the very fears of any harm from the worst of our enemies. We that trembled like slaves, and bowed our necks to sinful compliances in every appearance of danger, do now pray most chearfully for Peace, and are as free men

^a John viii. 32. 36.

ⁱ Cor. vii. 22. Dion. Pr.

Τὸ ἐλδοῦσθαι τὸ μω-ρεὸς ὑπάρχειν, ἀλλὰ περὶ τὴν ἀπλῶς τὰ δο-κῆντα εἶναι. Orat. 14.
At vid. Rom. vi. 22.
C. nullo seruire regnare
est. Bern. Τὸ αὐτὸ καὶ ἐλδοῦσθαι καὶ βασιλεία, τὸ Θεῷ δουλεύ-σαι. Nazianz. de pace.

Exod. xiv. 2. Dan. iii.
17. Heb. ii. 15.

brought out of those dismal expectations *with a high hand*ⁱ, because we know our God whom we serve able to deliver us; who before we knew and worshipped him were ever through fear of death subject unto bondage. Nay our Will is now become free because we choose what pleaseth God, so that his Will and our κ' ἐν δούλεις ὄντων -- ὁ ζῶν ὡς βέλεται, ὅν ἐκ ἀναγκῆς ἦν, ἕτε

κωλύσαι, ἕτε βιάσασθαι.
Arrian. in Epictet.

Choice agrees, and so nothing can hinder us^k. We have resolved nobly to be no longer slaves to evil but ever to do good; trusting in the defence of Gods Providence and the help of his Grace; and since we know and serve one greater than the World or the Prince of darkness either, their threats nor flatteries cannot command or enslave us. So long as we believe in him our Souls are free.

§.V. Defend us thy humble servants in all assault of our enemies. When we consider our selves environed on every side with enemies and dangers, that we are neither likely to escape nor able to overcome our own strength; and also behold our God who the author of Peace and lover of Concord, the joy of Saints and the deliverer of his Servants; we shall earnestly call upon him to defend us, and that very Petition is in acknowledgment of our own insufficiency defend our selves, the sense whereof will exceedingly quicken this request. But if we expect Protection from God, we must profess our selves his humble Servants, not in complement or flattery, but as little Stars when in distress they petition for succour from the potent Neighbors, must acknowledge (with Abaz^l) thy will

1 Kings xvii. 9.

Exod. xiv. 2. Dan. iii. 17.

Arrian. in Epictet. Rom. vii. 15. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 30. 31. 32. 33. 34. 35. 36. 37. 38. 39. 40. 41. 42. 43. 44. 45. 46. 47. 48. 49. 50. 51. 52. 53. 54. 55. 56. 57. 58. 59. 60. 61. 62. 63. 64. 65. 66. 67. 68. 69. 70. 71. 72. 73. 74. 75. 76. 77. 78. 79. 80. 81. 82. 83. 84. 85. 86. 87. 88. 89. 90. 91. 92. 93. 94. 95. 96. 97. 98. 99. 100. 101. 102. 103. 104. 105. 106. 107. 108. 109. 110. 111. 112. 113. 114. 115. 116. 117. 118. 119. 120. 121. 122. 123. 124. 125. 126. 127. 128. 129. 130. 131. 132. 133. 134. 135. 136. 137. 138. 139. 140. 141. 142. 143. 144. 145. 146. 147. 148. 149. 150. 151. 152. 153. 154. 155. 156. 157. 158. 159. 160. 161. 162. 163. 164. 165. 166. 167. 168. 169. 170. 171. 172. 173. 174. 175. 176. 177. 178. 179. 180. 181. 182. 183. 184. 185. 186. 187. 188. 189. 190. 191. 192. 193. 194. 195. 196. 197. 198. 199. 200. 201. 202. 203. 204. 205. 206. 207. 208. 209. 210. 211. 212. 213. 214. 215. 216. 217. 218. 219. 220. 221. 222. 223. 224. 225. 226. 227. 228. 229. 230. 231. 232. 233. 234. 235. 236. 237. 238. 239. 240. 241. 242. 243. 244. 245. 246. 247. 248. 249. 250. 251. 252. 253. 254. 255. 256. 257. 258. 259. 260. 261. 262. 263. 264. 265. 266. 267. 268. 269. 270. 271. 272. 273. 274. 275. 276. 277. 278. 279. 280. 281. 282. 283. 284. 285. 286. 287. 288. 289. 290. 291. 292. 293. 294. 295. 296. 297. 298. 299. 300. 301. 302. 303. 304. 305. 306. 307. 308. 309. 310. 311. 312. 313. 314. 315. 316. 317. 318. 319. 320. 321. 322. 323. 324. 325. 326. 327. 328. 329. 330. 331. 332. 333. 334. 335. 336. 337. 338. 339. 340. 341. 342. 343. 344. 345. 346. 347. 348. 349. 350. 351. 352. 353. 354. 355. 356. 357. 358. 359. 360. 361. 362. 363. 364. 365. 366. 367. 368. 369. 370. 371. 372. 373. 374. 375. 376. 377. 378. 379. 380. 381. 382. 383. 384. 385. 386. 387. 388. 389. 390. 391. 392. 393. 394. 395. 396. 397. 398. 399. 400. 401. 402. 403. 404. 405. 406. 407. 408. 409. 410. 411. 412. 413. 414. 415. 416. 417. 418. 419. 420. 421. 422. 423. 424. 425. 426. 427. 428. 429. 430. 431. 432. 433. 434. 435. 436. 437. 438. 439. 440. 441. 442. 443. 444. 445. 446. 447. 448. 449. 450. 451. 452. 453. 454. 455. 456. 457. 458. 459. 460. 461. 462. 463. 464. 465. 466. 467. 468. 469. 470. 471. 472. 473. 474. 475. 476. 477. 478. 479. 480. 481. 482. 483. 484. 485. 486. 487. 488. 489. 490. 491. 492. 493. 494. 495. 496. 497. 498. 499. 500. 501. 502. 503. 504. 505. 506. 507. 508. 509. 510. 511. 512. 513. 514. 515. 516. 517. 518. 519. 520. 521. 522. 523. 524. 525. 526. 527. 528. 529. 530. 531. 532. 533. 534. 535. 536. 537. 538. 539. 540. 541. 542. 543. 544. 545. 546. 547. 548. 549. 550. 551. 552. 553. 554. 555. 556. 557. 558. 559. 560. 561. 562. 563. 564. 565. 566. 567. 568. 569. 570. 571. 572. 573. 574. 575. 576. 577. 578. 579. 580. 581. 582. 583. 584. 585. 586. 587. 588. 589. 590. 591. 592. 593. 594. 595. 596. 597. 598. 599. 600. 601. 602. 603. 604. 605. 606. 607. 608. 609. 610. 611. 612. 613. 614. 615. 616. 617. 618. 619. 620. 621. 622. 623. 624. 625. 626. 627. 628. 629. 630. 631. 632. 633. 634. 635. 636. 637. 638. 639. 640. 641. 642. 643. 644. 645. 646. 647. 648. 649. 650. 651. 652. 653. 654. 655. 656. 657. 658. 659. 660. 661. 662. 663. 664. 665. 666. 667. 668. 669. 670. 671. 672. 673. 674. 675. 676. 677. 678. 679. 680. 681. 682. 683. 684. 685. 686. 687. 688. 689. 690. 691. 692. 693. 694. 695. 696. 697. 698. 699. 700. 701. 702. 703. 704. 705. 706. 707. 708. 709. 710. 711. 712. 713. 714. 715. 716. 717. 718. 719. 720. 721. 722. 723. 724. 725. 726. 727. 728. 729. 730. 731. 732. 733. 734. 735. 736. 737. 738. 739. 740. 741. 742. 743. 744. 745. 746. 747. 748. 749. 750. 751. 752. 753. 754. 755. 756. 757. 758. 759. 760. 761. 762. 763. 764. 765. 766. 767. 768. 769. 770. 771. 772. 773. 774. 775. 776. 777. 778. 779. 780. 781. 782. 783. 784. 785. 786. 787. 788. 789. 790. 791. 792. 793. 794. 795. 796. 797. 798. 799. 800. 801. 802. 803. 804. 805. 806. 807. 808. 809. 810. 811. 812. 813. 814. 815. 816. 817. 818. 819. 820. 821. 822. 823. 824. 825. 826. 827. 828. 829. 830. 831. 832. 833. 834. 835. 836. 837. 838. 839. 840. 841. 842. 843. 844. 845. 846. 847. 848. 849. 850. 851. 852. 853. 854. 855. 856. 857. 858. 859. 860. 861. 862. 863. 864. 865. 866. 867. 868. 869. 870. 871. 872. 873. 874. 875. 876. 877. 878. 879. 880. 881. 882. 883. 884. 885. 886. 887. 888. 889. 890. 891. 892. 893. 894. 895. 896. 897. 898. 899. 900. 901. 902. 903. 904. 905. 906. 907. 908. 909. 910. 911. 912. 913. 914. 915. 916. 917. 918. 919. 920. 921. 922. 923. 924. 925. 926. 927. 928. 929. 930. 931. 932. 933. 934. 935. 936. 937. 938. 939. 940. 941. 942. 943. 944. 945. 946. 947. 948. 949. 950. 951. 952. 953. 954. 955. 956. 957. 958. 959. 960. 961. 962. 963. 964. 965. 966. 967. 968. 969. 970. 971. 972. 973. 974. 975. 976. 977. 978. 979. 980. 981. 982. 983. 984. 985. 986. 987. 988. 989. 990. 991. 992. 993. 994. 995. 996. 997. 998. 999. 1000.

their bomagers and servants, if they will deliver them; so must we sincerely protest our selves Gods Servants, and in this form surrender up our selves into his Protection. And if we be real therein, we shall be owned as the Confederates of Heaven; and from thence shall have Legions of Angels sent in to our aid, whenever we desire or need them. But wo be to those Hypocrites who fly to God in a storm, and call themselves his Servants feignedly for present safety; but when the violence is over, forsake him again. This Folly and Baseness will cause him to cast out them and their Prayers also. But let us remember we have many enemies who sometimes oppose us from without, and other times do divide us among our selves; that we may really own our selves the Servants of the God of Peace, by loving and following Peace with all men, and living in Concord with one another^m. The World, the Devil and wicked men (who are principally

^m Extraneos advenientes si sapimus juncti re-

the inveterate Enmity of Satan, who sets them a work, we may as well hope to wash the Ethio white, or tame a Tiger, or to behold the Lion eat g

• Si quis vitiorum omnium inimicus rectum iter vite infestare cepit, primum propter morum differentiam odium habet; quis enim potest probare contraria?

Petron. Arbit.

• Isa. lix. 13. John xvi. 33. Eccles. ii. 1.

as that these should give us no disturbance. God did never promise this, nay he bids us to expect no better, and forewarns us of it, that we may be fore-armed with it; so that we might displease him if we asked (contrary to his revealed Will) that we might never be assaulted. Wherefore let it suffice us, that we be supported under them, and receive no prejudice from them as to eternal Interest. If God make us like the miraculous Job unburnt in the midst of these flames, it will be all our gain if we had not been thrown into the fire. Only thus the malice of the wicked is discovered, disappointed and disgraced, our Patience is proved and made apparent, and the Divine Power and Mercy is more manifest and his Name more glorified, than if we had never been assaulted. In this we wholly submit to him, whether he will keep the spirits of evil men from rising against us, or (as he did in the instances of Laban, Eshan, Saul) turn their rage into amicable compliances and fruitless attempts.

§.VI. That we surely trusting in thy defence, do not fear the power of any adversaries, though we be in the might of Jesus Christ our Lord.] We aim higher in this request than a bare safety from the violence and craft of our enemies; desiring such frequent and constant experiments of his Care and Providence, that we may never tremble at any danger, while we firmly rely on his defence; but that we may be freed from our own fears, which make us as miserable and de acted as the evils themselves &c. It is Fear that ruins our Hope, banishes our Joy, dissipates our Counsels and strips us of all powers of resistance. So that either we become our own Executioners, or lie open to the designs of our enemies, who commonly enter at the breach our own Fears have made.

Plura sunt quæ nos terrent quàm quæ premunt, & sapientis opinione quàm re laboramus, timore — aut augemus dolorem aut fingimus aut precipimus. Seneca.
Pavor mihi omnem sapientiam ex animo expulserat. Ennius.

But the only remedy for such terrors is a firm trust in the Divine Protection, and till that Faith fail, we are most safe, be our Foes never so numerous or potent, their menaces and preparations never so great; till they can conquer heaven, they cannot terrify us, who cannot perish while God is for us. Let us then pray for daily assurances of his Providence and Love, and those will still add vigor to our Faith, till we become undaunted and invincible through the might of Jesus. We acknowledge, it were the highest folly to be thus confident, if we relied on our own strength; but if we do not fear our Adversaries, it is, because our Redeemer is mighty, who as a Prince hath Power with God, and will obtain help from him for us, by the power of his undeniable Intercession; and as a glorious Conqueror commands the Earth and Hell itself. So that his might will secure us here; and this is our strong Tower, in which we believe our selves so safe, that upon the confidence thereof we pray for Protection and Defence, and that we may neither fear nor feel harm from any of our opposers; and desire this may be granted and decreed in Heaven by the mighty interest of our Mediator there, and accomplished on Earth by the invincible strength of the same Jesus here.
Amen.

People : Thou art the only true God, [in kno of whom standeth our] chief happiness in [life, life,] and our best means of coming safe thith thou art the best of all Masters, [whose ser safe and pleasant, because it [is perfect freedom the slavery of Satan and the fear of his Instr Therefore, mighty Lord, be pleased to [defe who fly to thy Protection, and surrender up ou to thee, vowing we are and ever will be [thy servants.] O keep us safe in Soul and Body from, yet however [in all assaults] which ar upon us by the power, malice or cunning [of e mies.] let their attempts be so constantly fru [that we] under the shadow of thy wings m ragiously proceed in our holy course, and [sure ing in thy defence,] while we are faithful to vice, that we [may not] so much as [fear the or policy of any adversaries,] since we have grounds to hope, thou wilt now and always through the interest, and help us [through the

The Analysis of the Morning Collect for Grace.

I. A Confession of the Attributes of God, { 1. Love, } O Lord our hea-{ 2. Power, & } venly Father, { 3. Eternity: } Almighty and eberlasting God,

An Acknowledgment of his } brought us to the II. Providence: } beginning of this day,

III. A Pe- } defend us in the rition for } same with the his Grace } mighty power, { 1. To pre- } and grant that serve us frō } this day we fall evil, } into no sin, { 2. In parti- } neither run into cular, from } any kind of dan-{ 1. In general: } ger; { 2. In parti- } but that all our cular, from } doings may be or-{ 1. Spirit- } dered by thy go-{ 2. Tem- } vernance,
 { 2. Tem- } to do always that { 2. Tem- } which is righte-{ 2. Tem- } ous in thy fight, { 2. Tem- } through Jesus
 { 2. Tem- } Christ our Lord.

IV. The Means to obtain it:

AMEN.

A Practical Discourse on the Collect for Gr

§.VIII. O Lord our heavenly Father, Almighty everlasting God.] Peace without is the nurse of Vice, the Sauce of dangerous Pleas It occasions our forgetfulness of God that gave it becomes an undisturbed opportunity to prosecute enjoy those lusts which it is apt to breed. So th must not pray for Peace alone, but joined with recousness and Grace; for these God hath united in pture (Psal. lxxxv. 10. 2 Cor. i. 2.) and we must no parate them in our Devotions. For which cause Collect for Grace follows that for Peace. Grace can make Peace true, beneficial and lasting; and is the great Bountefeu, and the greatest enemy to in the world: So that by reciting this Collect dev ly, we still improve our former Request, and if we obtain such Grace as to make us just and charit meek and patient towards one another, this world be the Type of everlasting Peace. We shall neither quiet our selves nor others, while our doings are cted by the Wisdom, and agreeable to the Will o God of Peace. Since therefore Grace is so need for us, we must learn where to seek it; and its

¹ Gratia est gratis data, non meritis operantis, sed miseratione do-nantis. Aug. Ep. 120.

² Ἀπὸ τοῦ αἵματος τοῦ υἱοῦ τοῦ θεοῦ, καὶ τῆς χάριτος τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ. Plat. in Men.
Nulla sine Deo mens bona. Seneca.

name will lead ³ us to the founinexhaustible Fountain, when ever flows; even to God who to all men liberally, and upb eth no man. The very Hea confessed it the gift of God ⁴ he will rejoice to hear such a quest from an humble Soul th sensible of its own Weakness, desirous of his Strength. He ready to grant than you ask^t. Consider but the Church hath presented this Prayer. Is not the Father our heavenly Father? And he pities and loves you, and will do you good? Is he not ever, and therefore able to hear you? and Everlasting, the same yesterday, to day and for ever. All-sufficient, and never drawn dry, though we come day by day un-

We have no reason to doubt either his Sufficiency, his Might or his Mercy, and therefore no fear but this Petition shall prevail. We are weak, but we have a Father in Heaven; we are weak, but the Lord is Almighty; our Time is measured by day and nights, and we grow older every day, and we length have our end; but we have a God that is ever the same, but is the same from everlasting to ever-[Psal. cii. 25, 26, 27.] Let this cheer our hearts with wings to our Petitions, and strength to our Prayers. Let us fly to him and rest upon him, for we never come to him for Grace, but we are sure to be furnished with it, and both able and ready to receive it upon us.

Who hath safely brought us to the beginning of this day.] The Mercies of God are new every morning, and so ought our Praises to be renewed still with a fresh Desire to which purpose being come to the shore, it will be a most sweet and profitable prospect to look back on the great deep, and the darkness of the night which ^t Luke xi. 13.

Αὐτὸς παρὲς ὧν (τὸ θεῖον) καὶ τέλειον καὶ ἰσχυρὸν, καὶ ὅτι μὴ ἔχει τελευτῆς τὰ ἀγαθὰ βέλτεται, καὶ ὅτι ἔχει αὐτὰρ ἑαυτὸν ἔχει, καὶ ὅτι τὴν ἰσχυρίαν δύναται βελβουθῆναι καὶ ἔχει, καὶ δύναται, καὶ ὅτι μὴ σῶν. Maxim. Tyrius in Dissert.

^t Lament. iii. 23.

Psal. xcii. 1, 2.

Occurrit ergo ad solis Ortum, ut se Oriens inveniat jam paratum.

Ambr. in Psal. cxviii.

Death, the opportunity of which, and a comfortable part of our lives. And though thens supposed the dominion of the Night to the Infernal Powers, yet we have found the government of our heavenly Father, by cious Providence we have been kept therein malice of Satan and the designs of evil men) and Body. Yea, he hath made it a refreshment weariness, an allay of our care, and a renewal strength, so that perhaps we scarce apprehend terrors or tediousness of it. And are we not to live another day, if all this will not fill and mouths with Eucharist and thankful ac-ments to him that never slumbers nor sleep hath so safely brought us to the Morning given us an earnest of our Resurrection? A cere Gratitude will be not only the discharge to God, but an occasion of Benefit to our selves he that heartily praiseth God every morning renewed mercies it brings with it, may more to ask and more reasonably expect the continu-un into any kind of danger.] Our necessities do not and with the night, nor vanish with the darkness; but we need a mighty power to keep us in the day al-

 o. For our whole lives are an absolute dependence in his defence, without which we had not escaped the errors of the last Night, nor can we but by it be secured gainst the dangers of this Day. The Light perhaps may make us more confident, but we are often less safe; or in the Day-time we have Company to disturb us, business to ensnare us, Occasions and Opportunities to entice us; we have more Temptations, and greater variety of Accidents and Occurrences; and yet commonly we are but slenderly guarded against all the Mis-chiefs which we are exposed unto; but we had need buckle on our Armor, and beware that Haste or Negligence do not thrust us into the battel naked, before we have put on those pieces of defence by Prayer, which God hath provided for us. If we view the way in which we are to walk, we may discern so many Pits digged and Traps set for us, that we (who are by Nature blind, and by Custom careless) are never likely to escape them, unless we be guided by an All-seeing Eye, and guarded by an Almighty Power. Say therefore every Morning most passionately, Lord! we shall either fall into the Pits of temptation which Satan hath cunningly covered over, or run into the Traps of dan- ger which are secretly laid for us on every side; so that thy Presence go not along with us, carry us not any further, (Exod. xxxiii. 15.) Let us not dare to rush into the midst of temptations, till we have earnestly begged Wisdom to discover, Courage to resist and Strength to overcome them; remembering that Sin doth displease our God, destroy our Hopes, disquiet our Con-sciences, and lay us open to all mischiefs; even the least hath these malignant qualities in it, besides that C c it

it makes way for a greater. We must expect to be tempted, in Privacy and in Company, in our Business and Recreations, in our Meat and Drink, in our Charity and Devotions. But we must every morning pray, that we may not in lesser or greater inclination consent to these evil motions, that we may not fall into any sin by compliance, nor lie in and under the impenitence : And we may be assured Gods Grace is sufficient thus to defend us. Only let us beware we do not abuse this necessary Petition, by seeking for Opportunities in, and Occasions of Sin before night ; for if we be not watchful to avoid evil, as well as earnestly calling for the Divine aid, we do but mock the Deity whose help we call for, and our Actions shew our Prayers were but feigned. But O ! with what a firm mind and an active hope shall they perform their Morning Sacrifice, and lay themselves down to rest, when Conscience testifies they have as studiously avoided wilful Sin throughout the whole day, as they did fervently pray against it in the morning. And that we may do so, let us place Sin before Danger, both in our Prayers and in our Opinions ; because that only hurts the Body, but this hurts the Soul. Let the Order of this sentence teach us, that Sin is the greatest evil in the world ; and if it cannot be avoided but we must fall into one of these, we must choose Danger rather than Sin : for if by avoiding of iniquity we are exposed upon the suffering any evil or losing any good ; we must account such Reproach our Honour, such Poverty our Riches, and such Loss our truest Gain, and we shall be eternally rewarded for it. This may be the case sometimes, but commonly the flying of Sin does not involve us in Danger, but secure us from it ; and Wickedness is the high-way to Mischief. Drunkenness and Lust, Pride and Malice, Injustice and Deceit do naturally lead those who follow them into many Perils, and as well these as all other Sins do cause God to take away his protecting hand from us, and then we are not many steps from ruin, although his Justice should not inflict any positive evils for these offences: And therefore if we would be safe, we must be holy. We are apt to be more sensible and fearful of Sickness than Sin, of the danger to our outward rather than to our inward man; but since they are productive of one another, we must pray against both. And if we fear Diseases or Want, Reproach or Wrong, Violence or Death, let those very Fears quicken our Petitions against Sin, which is the gate that lets them all in upon us. We may fall into calamities by the immediate hand of Providence, but when by acts of wickedness we bring them upon our selves, we are said to run into danger; and this we chiefly pray against here, that we may not by our own Folly and Iniquity become accessory to our own Misery; for such Afflictions will not be so likely to be sanctified, so easie to be born, nor so possible to be removed. If we lead holy Lives, though the condition of our nature make us liable to more dangers than can easily be recounted, we shall either escape them or receive no considerable prejudice by them. And therefore when a good man beholds his Body liable to wounds, maims and diseases; his Mind to the impairing of any or all its faculties; his Estate to losses, wrongs and injuries; his whole Life exposed to all the misery that can come upon him, by the unkindness or loss of Friends, the malice of Enemies, or the more publick disturbances to Church or State: All these do only teach him to walk more humbly with God, and pray every day more heartily to him to deliver him from them; and to be more thankful, if by the Divine Mercy he do escape them.

§.XI. But that all our doings may be ordered by thy governance, to do always that which is righteous in thy sight, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen. It by all that hath been said and our own sad experience, we are become so wise as to see we are insufficient for our own conduct; I hope we shall in this petition most humbly commit our ways to the Lord, that

• Prover. iii. 6. Psal.
xxxvii. 5. & 23.

Ideo Deus secundat ac bene fortunat omnes e-ventus in cursu vite no-stræ, nempe quia nihil tentamus quod non ei placeat. Calv. in loc.

• Psal. li. 12.

Προΐμα ἡγεμονικόν.

he may direct our paths, and that “he may (as David speaks Psal. xxxvii.) order all our goings and “make them acceptable to his “self; and then they shall be prosperous. If his good Spirit be our guide, we shall seldom fall in danger, never into sin. O let us earnestly beseech him, that his Grace may direct our hearts, and his Providence order our lives, that we may be blessed in our going out and coming in, in our studies and labour, commerce and society, eating and recreations, in our Prayers and Praises; that in all our actions natural, civil and religious, we may design his Glory and be successful.

The proud man thinks his doings good enough if they

• Prov. xvi. 2. & xxi. 2.
Prov. xiv. 12.

Quicquid volunt homines se bene velle putant.

are pleasing in his own sight, but alas! evil ways do frequently appear fair to us, and so we deceive our selves into an unexpected ruin by absolving our selves even when God condemns us. The Hypocrite believes his actions excellent, if the world commend them; if the complying and fashionable outsides of Religion present him righteous in the eyes of men, he supposes his ways pro-vidently ordered. But we must remember we are not Judges of our own nor of one anothers works; but must all stand before the Judgment-seat of God, where fore it is his approbation that we desire. It is not the Opinion of the Malefactor, nor the Vote of his Fellow-prisoners, but the Sentence of the Judge that must save or condemn. Having therefore such a Tribunal to appear before, let us beg large measures of Gods Grace to lead us; for he will approve of no ways, but what his Spirit directs us into, and that had need be excellent indeed, that appears so to an All-seeing eye. Our lives must not be guided by the loose rules of Custom, if we expect they should be accounted righteous in his sight: But they must be ordered by the exact rule of his Holy Word; and then though all the world condemn us, we shall be prosperous here, and finally acquitted hereafter. Perhaps we judge it impossible our ways should ever appear righteous in his sight, but we are mistaken; for if we take him for our guide, he will not be strict to mark unavoidable defects. And it is not our Performance, but the effects of his own Grace that he approves of. Nor yet doth he count them righteous for any merit that is in the Works or the Persons doing them, but through the Merits and Obedience of the Holy Jesus, in whose name we therefore make this Prayer, not expecting our Supplications can be heard, or our actions justified for their own worth, but through Jesus Christ our Lord; desiring he will please by his Intercession and Merits, so to recommend our Actions and Devotions, that we may be accepted by his Grace, justified by his Mercy, and finally may be for ever glorified with him and for his sake. Amen.

The Paraphrase of the Collect for Grace.

[O Lord,] We thy poor finite Creatures upon this earth, do daily remember with much comfort, that thou art [our heavenly Father] and hast pity on us, and

[illegible]

SECTION V.

Of the two Collects peculiar to the Evening Prayer.

§.I. WE have chosen this place to insert these parts of the Evening Service, because all the following Collects are the same in both parts of the day, and the Hymns with these two Prayers being all the difference, it is not necessary in our Method to separate the Offices, and this way, every thing comes in its proper place, only omitting what is peculiar to the other part of the day.

1. 1. The first
2. 2. The second
3. 3. The third
4. 4. The fourth
5. 5. The fifth
6. 6. The sixth
7. 7. The seventh
8. 8. The eighth
9. 9. The ninth
10. 10. The tenth

A Practical Discourse on the Evening Collect for Peace.

§.III. O God, from whom all help desires, all good counsels and all just works do proceed.]

This Collect hath the same title, and seems to have the same subject with that in the Morning-Office. And indeed Peace is so desirable a Blessing that we cannot pray for it too often, especially for different kinds of Peace, as it is in the present case, if we well observe it. In the Morning we pray for external, in the Evening for internal Peace. In the beginning of the day, being to dispatch various affairs and converse with the world, we desire to be preserved from the injuries, affronts and designs of evil men : In the close thereof we request that tranquillity of mind that springs from the testimony of a good Conscience, that when our hearts lie as easie as our heads, our Sleep may be sweet and quiet. The first kind of Peace sometimes the best of men cannot obtain, for the wicked will do wickedly ; but even then this inward Peace will support them, and make a calm within when the waves beat most furiously from without. So that this is the most necessary and most advantageous. Wherefore we are taught to ask this (which is called the Peace of God) from the God of Peace, who is here described to us as the author and finisher of all Holiness and Righteousness, which are the surest and only foundations for a true and lasting Peace. From which we may learn, that there is an inseparable union between Righteousness and true Peace^a, and that we cannot have this Peace, unless it spring from ^a Fac justitiam & habebis pacem ; tu fortè non habere vis, alteram non vis, — at osculantur he, amant he ; si amicam pacis non amaveris, non amabit te pax. August. Psal. lxxxv. 10.

holy desires, good counsels and just works. If th b Conscia mens velli, fama mendacia videt. Ov.

Bona vita gaudium semper habet. Isid. Soliloq.

that doth not defective reproach can nobly defy and he that hath not provoked his Neighbor to him by any evil doing, can easily bear the gre injuries. Whereas if all the world be quiet at c Si in mundo non est quod timeant, pacem habere putantur; sed pax ista cum conscientia semper litigat, vixatur intrinsecus, et cum hostem non habet, secum decet. Cassiod. in Psal.

the causes of it, with Love and Admiration. them acknowledge to his Glory and their own fort, that he is the author and finisher of every d Jaſ. i. 17. Phil. ii. 13.

Εἰ γὰρ καὶ ἐφ' ἡμῶν αἰρεσις ὅτι καλῶν, ἀλλὰ καὶ αὐτὸ τὸ ἐφ' ἡμῶν δίδου ἔχοντες, καὶ παρ' ἐκείνου (σωτηρίας καὶ τελειώσεως. Hierocles.

e 2 Cor. iii. 5.

f Prov. xvi. 1.

g Isai. xxvi. 12.

of God work these in us, all the slanders b, the scorn justice of the world can the serene reflections and Peace of a good Conscience

that doth not defective reproach can nobly defy
and he that hath not provoked his Neighbor to him by any evil doing, can easily bear the gre injuries. Whereas if all the world be quiet at disturb the wicked man, he himself restless c, because an enemy within, that him more loudly, and wound more deeply than he can do man. Whoever therefore for true Peace, let them here him, in and from whom work d. He excites our ons to desire it, engageth ou to choose it, and strengthen Hands to perform it. Th no holy Thoughts in our m nor good Purposes in our h nor any righteous Actions i lives e, but it is in and t through him. To him th us make our Supplications

he will fill our hearts with the motions of his Spirit, the first seeds of all virtue; and by the nuing influence of the same Grace make the desires spring up into prudent and religious course.

determinations ; and by favourable circumstances and addition of strength ripen them into pious and just works ; and the fruit hereof will be Peace. We may cheerfully hope and pray, that he that planted the root and sowed the seed, will give us the pleasure of the fruit and comfort of the harvest. And let us beware, since we confess this to be the fruit of Righteousness, that when we seem most earnest in our Prayers for this Peace, we do not wilfully deprive our selves of it, and hinder our own wishes, by stifling holy Thoughts, and breaking pious Resolutions, and neglecting good Works. For he that cuts the root and lops off the Branches, must not expect ever to eat of this fruit ; and if he complains, deserves to be silenced as the Author of his own misery.

§.IV. Gibe unto thy Servants that peace which the world cannot gibe.] To ask a thing inconsiderable of a mighty Prince may seem a disparagement, because he can as easily bestow a Province on a faithful Servant, as another can give a small Gratuity. So when we that are the Servants of the most High make our Petitions, it must be for such things as are not in our power, nor in the power of any other to bestow. Our Requests must be proportionable to his infinite bounty rather than our deserts. We must ask something which may become his Majesty to give, that our Lord may be glorified by the very expectations of his Servants. We now desire Peace, but it is such a Peace as no other hand can dispense ; a Peace that is not given as the world gives, in a feigned Complement or an empty wish at best ^b, but in sincerity and with effect ; a Peace differing from the worlds Peace, ^b John xiv.27.
Homines plerumque frigide tantum civemontie causâ pacem in ore habent, vel si pacem alicui servitio precantur, non tamen eam reipsa dare possunt. Calvin. in locum.

[illegible]

of thy Grace ; for this can never deceive nor fail us, because it ends in everlasting Peace. And let us not seek this, in the friendships of the Wicked nor the Store-houses of Pleasure ; but in Jesus and an holy Life, in heavenly Desires, pious Resolutions and religious Conversation. In which the Grace of God will help us, for we are his Servants and make our applications to him for it ; and since we seek not as the world seeks, no doubt we shall find a Peace so sweet and ravishing, as that nothing which the men of this world know can be compared to it.

§. V. That both our hearts may be set to obey Gods Commandments.] The Epicure desires Peace that he may wallow in sinful Pleasures ; but our first and principal end in this Petition is, that we may have no interruption to our Holiness ; because our chief desire is to keep Gods Commandments¹. And how pleasant will this sound in the ears of him who is the fountain of all holy desires, good counsels and just works ;

¹ De pace temporis, per pacem pectoris, trans-eamus ad pacem eternitatis. Durand. l. 4. c. 39.

When we wish Peace itself only as a means to Righteousness ! I have observed before, that Peace first springs from a holy Life, and now must add, that it increases that Holiness, to which it owes its original, by a reciprocal Gratitude. The Fear of Gods irrevocable Displeasure and the Accusations of Conscience may discourage, and persuade us we cannot safely undertake nor hope to finish a course of Piety. And for want of this Peace our good Desires seldom come so far as religious Resolutions, seldomer to be righteous Actions : But this Peace will be as a guard² to exclude all such Fears ; it will keep us firm in our Allegiance to ² Phil. iv. 7.

Grac. personæ præsidio erit cordibus vestris. See Rom. xv. 13.

God.

1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem or issue that needs to be addressed. This involves gathering information and understanding the context of the situation.

The first of these is the fact that the law of the land is the law of the land and the law of the land is the law of the land.
 The second is the fact that the law of the land is the law of the land and the law of the land is the law of the land. The third is the fact that the law of the land is the law of the land and the law of the land is the law of the land.
 The fourth is the fact that the law of the land is the law of the land and the law of the land is the law of the land. The fifth is the fact that the law of the land is the law of the land and the law of the land is the law of the land.
 The sixth is the fact that the law of the land is the law of the land and the law of the land is the law of the land. The seventh is the fact that the law of the land is the law of the land and the law of the land is the law of the land.
 The eighth is the fact that the law of the land is the law of the land and the law of the land is the law of the land. The ninth is the fact that the law of the land is the law of the land and the law of the land is the law of the land.
 The tenth is the fact that the law of the land is the law of the land and the law of the land is the law of the land.

The first of these is the fact that the government has been unable to raise the necessary funds to meet its obligations.
 This has been due to a combination of factors, including a decline in foreign aid and a reduction in domestic savings. The second factor is the government's failure to implement effective economic reforms. This has led to a stagnating economy and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The third factor is the government's failure to maintain a stable political environment. This has led to a loss of confidence in the government and a decline in its ability to raise funds.

2. THE 1966-67 FISCAL YEAR

us this Peace, by representing that it will complete our Felicity; for it will fix our hearts in the Obedience of his Laws, and will make our lives most comfortable. He must be highly base that will injure and offend an innocent and blameless man, a Friend of Heaven, who deserves and gains the Affections of most men *.

■ *Qui infra diligitur, idem & supra diligitur.
R. Mos. Aeg.*

Sat fautores semper habet qui rectè facit. Seneca.

Yet if such an one be injured, he is sure of the aid of an Almighty Defender, and his own heart being filled with the Peace of God, he enjoys tranquillity in his own Breast, and is not to be constrained by Violence from without, nor cannot be terrified by any Fears within: For since his Care is to please God, he daily experiences that heavens eye is over him, and is more and more confirmed that his foundation is sure. And thus be it night or day, he can pass it over with all inward quietness, so that nothing in this world can make such an one miserable. Let us be earnest then with the Author of all Holiness, to give us that Peace which may be the nurse and guard

[The page contains extremely faint, illegible text.]

The Analysis of the Evening Collect for Aid against all Perils.

Practical Discourse on the Evening Collect for Safety.

VIII. [Lighten our darkness, we beseech thee, O Lord.] The declining of the day doth > w mind us of the approaching Darkness, which > ll shortly wrap us in the shadows of the Night. > d what Petition more seasonable therefore, than > th holy David to beseech God enlighten our darkness * ? For < Night is sad and terrible, in > we can see nothing with our > dily eyes to entertain or to cheer us; and we seem > posed to all the mischiefs ^b of > tan and those Instruments of > id. & Ovid. Met. 2. — Conscia culpe, Conspectum lucemq; fugit re- > risq; pudorem Celat. — John iii. 20. Job xxiv. 17.

* Psal. xviii. 28.
 Vulg. Deus meus illu-mina tenebras meas.

^b Versuta fraus & callida amat tenebris obtegi.

his who fly the Light, and hope to cover themselves with this sable Mantle: Our Dangers are many, our Fears are sometimes more, especially if our hearts be closed by Unbelief as well as Darkness. If we hold not the Divine Providence watching over us, and the Angels encamping round about us, the apprehension of the perils of a dismal Night may dim our joy, and startle our courage, and make us exclaim with the Prophets Servant, What shall we do?

c 2 Kings vi. 15, 16, 17.

a Psal. cxii. 4.

ἡμεῖς ποτε ἀβυσσῶν,

τῶν ἀνθρώπων ἐκείνων.

Ecc. v. 17. Psal. xcvi.

11, &c. Adrian. 154.

But let us intreat the Lord to fulfil his Promise, that light may arise in our darkness, that is (in scripture-phrase) Comfort in our darkness: That our hearts may be filled with bright and cheerful Thoughts, by the assurance of his Providence and the operations of Grace, be joyful and pleasant; and that the shining of his countenance may make our Nights bright as the Day illuminated by the Meridian Sun. For the inward Comforts of Gods Spirit, and a sense of his Care and Favour, when the Soul is in fear or sadness, do cheer and refresh more than a sudden Light doth a wandering Traveller in a gloomy Night. These make our dwellings a Goshen, while the wicked have thoughts black and dismal; Egypt is veiled in a horrid shadow, and terrified with the dark side of the Cloud, while the people of God are led all the night through with light of fire, so that the Darkness and Light to them are equally safe and comfortable. Or if we desire to spiritualize the Petition more, we may take occasion from the approaching Night, to enlarge our Meditations upon our spiritual ignorance and blindness by nature, by which our Souls are veiled and in the darkness, so that we often wander out of the way. We stumble in the day, and are in danger to run into the snare.

dow of death, till the day-spring from on high visit us, and give us that true knowledge which is usually set out under the name of Light ^c.

Wherefore let us humbly beseech our gracious Lord to let the Sun of righteousness arise upon us, for whoever follows him doth not wander nor walk in darkness, (John viii. 12.) and that we may take heed to Gods Holy Word as to a Light shining in a dark place, (2 Pet. i. 19.) and a sure guide to true blessedness. And then our Knowledge shall increase, and we shall keep the right path till we arrive to that eternal Light which shall never be extinguished. When our hearts are clouded with Grief, shadowed with Ignorance, and benumbed with dreadful Apprehensions, we are taught to lift up our thoughts to the Father of Lights, and the God of all Comfort, who dwells in that Light to which no mortal eye can approach, whose Countenance is clear as the Sun and bright as Lightning. And if we can by our beseechings obtain his favour to shine upon us, no doubt it will turn our Night into Day, our Sorrows into the Joys of the Morning. While we are in the darksome Cell of this lower world, we think of our glorified Brethren who dwell in a perpetual Brightness and everlasting Light, and we long to be with them when it may please God. But in the mean time we hope he will support and recreate us with some glimpses of those beams of which they have the constant and full fruition.

^c Luke ii. 32. Hebr. vi. 4. Illuminati, i. e. edocti.

§.IX. And by thy great mercy defend us from all perils and dangers of this night.] Comfort and Safety are those two things which make a happy Night. And of whom should we ask these, but of God the Lord who is a light and defence, (Psal. lxxxiv. 11.) The hopes of his Love makes it comfortable: But lest we should be deceived in those hopes, we pray also that his Mercy and Power may keep us safe. We may easily perceive we are most miserable without his Providence especially in the night-season; for then Satan prepares most violently to assault us, supposing it is his hour and the power of darkness. And alas how easily may we then be enticed with Pleasure, transported with Malice and Revenge, or disturbed with evil Fancies or Imaginations. When the Soul is heavy, the Senses dull, the Stomach

Stomachus ager, mens somnolenta, animus occupatus — tunc omne nefas suadere contendunt, quando nullus arbiter culpa, nullus criminis conscius, nullus potest esse erroris testis. Ambr. in Psal. cxix. part. 8.

loaden, the Flesh strong and the Reason weak! when the Curtain is drawn and we think no eye see us, neither Judge, Witness nor Accuser can espy us, how open are our Souls then to all dangerous Temptations? And yet our temporal concerns are not more safe for how soon may we be seized by Diseases or sudden Death, or made miserable by Thieves and Robbers, Burnings or Inundations? Are not our Lives and Limbs, Estates and Friends liable to loss and mischief both suddenly and unavoidably? Go we then with all speed to our merciful Father, and let us represent our condition to him; the consideration whereof will both humble us and make our Requests more zealous, and mollifie him and make him more ready to grant them. He will be moved to compassion, to see us chained by Night and Sleep, helpless and exposed to all mischiefs of Soul and Body, and will send his Grace to defend our Souls, and his Angels to guard our bodies that none of these perils shall hurt us. And then our Morning-Traises must own it as an act of great Pity. How dare you suffer your eyes to sleep in the midst of such Armies of Perils, before you have besought him that never slumbers nor sleeps to save you from them? But if any be so confident, it is not Courage but desperate Stupidity and Inconsideration that makes him so daring. The good man begs for Protection for this Night, and so again for the next, and every time with a new Devotion, having warmed his heart first with apprehensions of his own dangers, and insufficiency to escape them

§.X. For the love of thine only Son our Saviour Jesus Christ. A M E N.] Although with the Disciples we may be somewhat afraid when we enter into the cloud, yet we must beware the darkness do not shut up the eye of our Faith, by which we may behold him in whom God is well-pleased, when our bodily eyes are closed. And if we discern him by Faith, that very sight will make our darkness to be light. For we may run to him and approach the Throne of Grace with him in our arms. The Molossian King was by Law obliged to grant any Petition offered by one that brought his Son with him. And the King of Heaven cannot deny us, when we most truly and humbly disclame our own Merits, and beg his Protection for the love he bears to the holy Jesus, who was the Delight of his Soul from all eternity, and yet he became one with us in his Incarnation, and made us one with him in our Regeneration; and we are the members of his Body and the price of his Blood: so that the Father loves us in and for him, that have nothing attractive or lovely in our selves. Again we intreat him to save us by all the love which Jesus bears unto us, to whom we are near as his own Flesh, dearer than his own Life, more esteemed than fallen Angels or a thousand worlds: for his delight is with the sons of men, (Prov. viii. 31.) Wherefore we beseech our heavenly Father by that which will move his Bowels towards us, by his own everlasting Love to us and his Affection to his only Son, and by the inexpressible Love of that his Son to us, to give us a Night comfortable and safe. We are in darkness, but our Head is in a never-ceasing light; and he that gave him to redeem us from eternal darkness, will not suffer us to perish in spiritual darkness, nor leave us exposed to the mischiefs of one Night, that will soon be over-past. If our Affections be as fervent at this Argument is forcible, 'tis sure this Petition will not be denied.

The Paraphrase of the third Collect for Aid against all Perils.

Let the assurance of thy Providence, the comfort of thy Grace, and the beams of thy Favour [lighten our darkness] and remove the discomfort of the approaching Night: [we beseech thee] to make it sweet and safe to us [O Lord] thou Father of Lights; [and by thy great mercy] behold and pity the various miseries and mischiefs that we thy poor helpless Creatures are exposed unto: that thou maist preserve and [defend us] in our Souls and Bodies, Estate and Friends, [from all perils and dangers] which might befall us in any part [of this night.] Grant this, dear Father, (not for our merits, but) [for the love] thou bearest to the Person [of thy only Son,] and to us for his sake, since he is [our Saviour,] even [Jesus Christ our Lord] and our Redeemer. Amen.

SECTION VI.

Of the Collects for the King and the Royal Family.

§. I. THe Church of England is famous above all other Churches, for her intire Loyalty to the King, which may be seen not only in the Lives of all the true Sons thereof; but in these Prayers, which are prescribed, to be daily made therein for his Majesties Welfare; which no Offices in the world can parallel. And that we may repeat them with hearts full of Loyalty and true Devotion, we will more particularly explain them in our usual Method.

The Analysis of the Prayer for the Kings Majesty

§ II. This Prayer hath two general Parts:

I.
The Confession of the King of Heavens acknowledging

1. His great Goodness:

2. His Supreme Authority:

3. His Universal Providence;

O Lord our heav-
ly Father,

high and mighty
King of Kings,
Lord of Lords,
only Ruler of the universe,

who dost from thy throne behold all the dwellers upon earth, most heartily we beseech thee with

1. A special Providence over him:

labour to behold
most gracious sovereign Lord CHARLES,

and so replenish
with the grace of thy holy spirit, that he may always incline to thy will; and may in thy way;

II.
The Petitions for his Vicegerent on Earth, requesting

2. All kinds
of Blessings for him,

1. Spi-
ritual:

1. Grace:

2. Gifts:

2. Temporal:

1. Prof-perity:

2. victory:

3. Eternal, with the general Motive:

endue him plentifully with heavenly
gifts,

grant him in health and wealth long
to live,

strengthen him that he may vanquish all his enemies,
and finally after this life he may attain lasting joy and fellicity, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

AMEN.

A Practical Discourse on the Prayer for the Kings Majesty.

§.III. O Lord our heavenly Father.] The Almighty and Eternal God is (without dispute) the King of Heaven and Earth, and supreme Governour of all the world. But since his Throne is in Heaven, he is pleased to constitute Princes his Deputies on the Earth, which he hath given to the Children of men ^a. Wherefore since by him Kings reign ^b, we submit to his appointment of them, and revere his Majesty in them, and to him we make our Supplications for them, who hath Power to defend them, as well as Authority to create them. And he must needs have a peculiar regard toward them and love to them, because they are anointed by him to administer his rights among us. This hath encouraged all Nations to pray for their Governours so universally, as if it had been an agreement among all Mankind. To omit the Heathen Sacrifices and Prayers for their Kings and Emperors, we shall find two Psalms ^c which were used by the Jews as Forms of Prayer for the King. And both by Gods Command, and the desire of the Persian Emperors (who then were Rulers over that people) Supplications were made to God in their behalf ^d by those Jews, who were under their Protection. But to come nearer, we Christians are most expressly commanded by God

^a Psal. cxv. 16.

^b Prov. viii. 15.

Nos iudicium Dei suscipimus in Imperatoribus, qui gentibus illos praefecit; id in eis scimus esse quod Deus voluit, ideoque & saluum volumus esse quod Deus voluit.
Tertul. Apol. c.32.

^c Psal. xx. & lxxii.

^d Ezra vi. 10.

Jerem. xxix. 7.

and

1 Tim. ii. 1, 2.

In obsequio quotidiano — & pro regibus & pro his qui in sublimitate positi sunt orandum est.

Chrys. in Tim. ii.

Pro potestatibus seculi.

Tertul. Apol.

*Obsecramus Deum pro
tranquillitate mundi,* pro Regibus. Cyril.

Catech. 5.

Pro fidelissimis & Deo dilectis Imperatoribus.

Liturg. Chrys.

Memento, Domine, plis-simi & fidelissimi Im-peratoris. Basil. in Liturg.

Pro Rege preces fiant.

Concil. Berkhamsted.

c. 1. An. 697. Spelman.

wise Councils, and living in Prosperity and Peace. For

Illorum namque salus est nostra tranquillitas.

Theophil. in 1 Tim. ii.

Ostendet in nostrum tucrum cadere ipsorum incolumitatem. Oecum.
in locum.

advantageous to Christianity, how much more then are we obliged to call upon our heavenly Father for the welfare of Christian Kings, who are Fathers of the 8 Numb. xi. 12.

Isai. xlix. 23.

to all quiet and peaceable men. Therefore we call God our heavenly Father to signify, it will be and his holy Apostle, to pray Kings and all in Authority that it was ever a part of Churches Publick Devotions, intercede for the Emperors & Princes even while they were enemies to the Faith, as all Antiquity doth evince. Much more will the Powers of the world become Christian; for then they name them in their Offices with titles pressing the dearest Affection & most honourable Respect.

surely since we meet in Publick to pray especially for Publick Minies, there is not any temporal Blessing that is of so universal concern, as that we should have righteous and religious Kings, guided by wise Councils, and living in Prosperity and Peace. For this (as the Apostle himself observes) is for every mans Peace.

He bids them pray for Heathen Kings, since the Government of a Heathen or a Tyrant is better than Anarchy or Confusion. And if the Preservation of such will be

advantageous to Christianity, how much more then are we obliged to call upon our heavenly Father for the welfare of Christian Kings, who are Fathers of the Country and nursing Fathers of the Church; who execute Justice and defend Religion, and do good great demonstration of his Love to us and Care of us, if he please to preserve our Prince whom he hath set over us.

§. IV. High and mighty, King of Kings, Lord of Lords, the only Ruler of Princes.] We ought to be aware that while we give Cæsar his due, we rob not God of his. The Splendor of Royal Majesty might be apt to dazle us, and make us imagin it had no Superior nor needed no Supporter. To prevent which the Church hath selected out of Holy Writ, those glorious Attributes of God, which declare him to be higher than the Kings of the Earth, (Psal. lxxxix. 27.) We see every head uncovered before mortal Princes and every knee bending to them, which shews they are high in dignity: But there is one higher than they, (Eccles. v. v. 8.) who hath greater Reverence paid him by Angels, than these by their most dutiful Subjects. If earthly Kings be judged mighty in Power, because of Guards and Revenues, their Forts and Armies; then who can estimate his Power and Might, against whom such Preparations are nothing, since he speaks in Thunder, and can arm all the Hosts of Heaven, nay the meanest Creatures upon Earth to destroy the highest and mightiest of the Sons of Men. Yet if Kings and their People do confess, with holy David, that he is the most high and to be feared, (Psal. xlvii. 2.) his Might shall be the support of their Dignity and their Power, which is assuredly the wisest course; for they can never be higher than when they submit to the Most High, nor stronger than when they trust in the Almighty. He who is not only above them as being higher in Dignity and greater in Power, but supreme over them, King of Kings and Lord of Lords^h, who hath not only some petty Princes of a few Provinces his

^h Dan. ii. 47.

ⁱ Tim. vi. 15.

... the greater Majesty
... his Lord, to the Supreme Majesty
... Vassals and Homagers are all the
... the lower world who wear their Crowns
... and must refer them at his command
... Kings or Subjects want relief, that ... only Potentates
... by the Supreme
... Authority want and
... to apply our
... and have
... hands
... what she will
... And he only
... at the
... that must

... and account
... and the
... the
... the

and Tears^k. But why we doubt, since we pray that can over-rule the Kings, and will not suffer unless it be as a just pu-

^k Lacryma mea arma mea sunt — aliter nec debeo nec possum resiste-re. Ambros. Orat. in Auxent.

to our Iniquities? Finally, let all this creevery soul most honourable opinions of this ed, and fill every heart with Reverence that him, when we see our dread Sovereign and mighty Monarchs of the Christian World, do-stance to his footstool, and laying down their at his feet, acknowledging they received their ons from him, and hold them by his favour; aring they trust not in the multitude of their strength of their Cities, nor prudence of their
: but though they have Armies and Navies and numerous, and Revenues unaccountable, me to the Throne of our God to Petition for e, and all their faithful Subjects attend on ed joyn with them: Who then would not fear him and trust in him; express all possible low-ness in his presence, and give him all imaginable praise who liveth and reigneth over all from the beginning and shall do so for ever and ever?

[Who dost from thy throne behold all the inhabitants upon earth.] It is an infallible Maxim that the more always blessed of the greater, (Heb. vii. 7.) Therefore being to beg a Blessing from the King of Heaven for the Rulers of this world, we must first acknowledge they are inferior to him, in the extent of their Dominion, as well as in the quality of their Divine Power and Authority. There is a Providence in Heaven attributed to Governors who as they sit on their Thrones above all their Subjects,

^l Acts xxiv. 3. Gr.
Qui est vis regum.

inhabitants of our Kingdom. When Kings hath the Heavens and the Earth for his Throne, as he sits higher, than they. From hence all the world are not below his Majesty, the greatest above

1. The first, which gave ground
 2. The second, which represented God
 3. The third, the contents of Providence
 4. The fourth, Page the same ch
 5. The fifth, in the Phases of R
 6. The sixth, For the
 7. The seventh, Secretary

... and the ...
... the ...
... demands ...
... and ...
... and ...

regard to Kings and Princes, on whose safety the are of all the rest (next under his own Providence) depend. He chiefly dets in men, as they are united

Societies by Charity and s; and for the preservation these unions, his principal care r those he hath set over them, are the bond of the rest. We therefore chearfully pray for special and more particular Providence over our ious King, because God doth usually grant this, because be needs it more than ordinary persons

His Duty is more difficult, his Abundance expo-him to more temptations, and his Height to more gers than any of his people; and yet his Preserva-is far more necessary and of ersal concernment^a, for he is th ten thousand of us, and we need pray heartily to God to him who doth defend us all.

lands in need of more Wise-to direct him, more Power oteet him, more Care to pre-him than other men; and therefore we pray that King of Heaven will shew a particular favour to

A pious and religious King doth as earnestly and as much value a favourable look from the Ma-of Heaven, as any of his Courtiers do a smile from ountenance. Lord, (saith ho-avid^r) look upon the face of anointed, and thou wilt make glad with the joy of thy countenance, yea more joyful the worldling is in the increase of his admired

th. And methinks it should fill our Souls with awful

*Nihil est illi principi Deo acceptius quam concilia cœtisq; hominum, quæ Civitates appellan-tur, earumq; rectores & servatores hinc profecti hinc revertuntur. Cicer.
Somn. Scip.*

^a 2 Sam. xviii.3.
*Ἀρετῆς παρὰ τὸν ἕρπον σώζειν ἢ ἀπαντα ἀλλὰ σώζοντα. Plutarch. in Vit. Pelopid.
Cum tot ab hac animâ
populorum vita salusque Pendeat. — Lucan.*

^r Psal. lxxxiv.9. & xxi.
6. & iv. 7,8.

awful and noble thoughts of our glorious Lord C to see Kings, in the light of whose countenance is life whose favour is as dew upon the grass, (Prov. xix. 6.
Job. xvi. 15.) courting so humbly and needing so mu tily the favour of the Majesty of Heaven. Let us our most hearty requests, that what our dear S reign wants and wishes he may have. If he we Saul or a Nero, we should sin in ceasing to pray him, (1 Sam. xii. 23.) but no Affections nor Pa are too fervent, no opportunities too often to call on God for our gracious King, who is our lawful natural Liege Lord, a just possessor of his Crown worshipper of God, a defender of the Faith, a m of good Laws and an executor of the same; wh cures our Rights, protects us from publick En and private Frauds, and endeavours to choose fit faithful Governors both for Church and State. For an one we must pray not only out of obedience to and the Churches order, but out of our private et neq; non solum officio publico debitas pendere preces, sed etiam amore privato. Ambros. Ep. ad Gratian.

and particular Affection, as S brose^c did for the Emperor tian. To quicken us where we may do well to call to m the Miseries of the Church God under persecuting Heath of old, later furious Romanists, and the particular lamities of this Church under the late Usurpers; then we shall discern what Praise we owe to God what Love to our gracious King, whose Name o to be so dear to us, that we should wish it written Heaven and registred in the Book of Life, as well in the leaves of the Churches Devotions.

§. VII. And to replenish him with the Grac thy holy Spirit, that he may always incline to will and walk in thy way.] Grace is so constan companion and so certain an effect of the Divine Favour, that the Greek expresseth both by one word. So that if we can prevail with God to look favourably on our Sovereign, we may be assured he will give bountifully to him. And since the first and choicest of his largesses, is the Grace of his Holy Spirit, we first beg, that he may have a constant and bountiful supply of that, of which he needs a double portion. For the Temptations of a Prince are many, to Pride and Luxury, to Carelessness and Vanity; his faithful Friends very few, who either will or dare inform or advise him without Partiality and Self-interest; his Concerns are weighty, since the welfare of Church and State depend upon them; his Example prevalent, and usually made the encouragement of Virtue, or the excuse of Vice. All which declares the Danger of Governors to be very great to fall into evil ways, and their Preservation from them to be the greatest Blessing; wherefore all faithful Subjects and good men cease not to pray, that he who rules us may be governed by the Will and walk in the ways of God; and then Judgment shall be executed, Religion maintained, the Nation shall remain in Peace and the Church in Prosperity, the Kingdom established, the King and People exceeding happy in each other. Evil men (for their own designs) may advise their Prince to attend nothing but the pursuing his own inclinations, and to walk in the ways of his own heart; but the Church knows it is his Happiness, Honour and Interest, to will according to the Will of God, and act according to his Law, and therefore orders us to pray for such abundant measures of Grace, as may incline his heart and guide his life into all the paths of true Holiness; that his eminent Dignity may make his Virtue exemplary and conspicuous, and that may reflect again a lustre upon his Honour, to make him still more

1 Kings xix. 124 or it", and walk ac that he might prosp
 And from thence c remony (still in use of delivering the the King, at his coronation, 2 Kings xi. 12 whereof is fully expressed in this exce which will most heartily be put up by the Blessing of God, the Benefit of the Welfare of this Nation.

§ VIII Conduct him plenteously with be In the first ages of the world there were vilible effects of the hol^y spirit upon suc
 ter to govern the Pe hege: in those unde cent manner of these Persons, whom all are accounted sacred. And there are the most remarkable Gifts in the Pa which are bestowed upon the that our Ki

1 Kings xix. 124
 2 Kings xi. 12
 1 Kings xix. 124

counterminc subtle devices, to disentangle cunningly proposed counsels, in which, general usefulness and the advisers self-interest are commonly closely twined.
 Wherefore we pray that he may have so quick an Apprehension, so sound a Judgment and so courageous a Mind, that like many of his Royal Progenitors, he may with a spirit almost Prophetical unriddle the dark intrigues of Policy, and with an Heroick Resolution break through the most rugged Difficulties, that he may neither fear his Enemies, nor too much incourage any of his seeming Friends, that he may neither be lifted up in Prosperity nor dejected by Adversity, and may tread the narrow path between Justice and Clemency, Severity and Indulgence: and we are to hope that he who hath advanced our Sovereign to this Dignity, will be mindful of the necessities of his own Appointment, and fit him for the place he hath called him to, so that all his People may reverence and love him and be happy under the Government of so wise and religious a Prince.

Ps. IX. Grant him in health and wealth long to live.] Though Solomon chose Wisdom and Grace, yet God added beyond his Promise, Riches and Honour, long Life and Health, as an acces-

* 1 Kings iii. 11.

Matth. vi. 33.

sory to the former *. Wherefore according to our Saviours rule we pray for those in the first place; and now we hope for all-sufficient Lord, who hath endless treasures of all sorts, will not deny us these temporal Blessings, which are requisite to his external Felicity. And we have the Primitive Christians * for * Nos enim pro salute Imperatoris Deum invocamus eternum. Et paulò post, Oramus pro omnibus Imperatoribus, vitam illis prolixam, imperium securam, &c. quæcunque hominis & Cesaris vota sunt. Tertul. Apol. cap. 30.

Sacrificamus pro salute Imperatoris (sed Deo nostro & ipsius, sed quonmodo præcepit Deus) purâ prece. Idem ad Scapul. c. 2.

our example in this as well as in other things ; who though they would offer no incense to false Gods for the health and safety of the Emperor, as the Gentiles did, yet did daily and earnestly sacrifice to the true God, with fervent Prayers beseeching him to give their Princes Health and Wealth, long Life and Peace and whatsoever Cæsar or any man could wish for or desire, as we learn out of Tertullian, and all the ancient Liturgies. But we must take these words in the full latitude, and so they will comprehend all outward Blessings, so Health signifies not only the good temperament of the Body, but (as the Latin salus) safety • Isaiah lviij. 8.

• Job xxi. 13.

• Cor. x. 24.

• Non vivere sed valere est vita. Prov. Rab.
• Ita 1 Kings i. 31.
• Dan. ii. 4.

from all dangers*. And Wealth intimates not only Riches, but a manner of Plenty and Prosperity.

And a long Life is to be interpreted of a life of Comfort and Happiness ; for the life of the miserable is almost a continuing dying*. And now let us put these together, and the sum will be, that we earnestly pray, that his Majesties life may be long, and his years many and prosperous ; that he may be free from sickness and want, that so his Reign may abound with all Blessings. Which we ought earnestly to desire for our own sakes, because it is our concern, the Supreme Power should be always vigorous and safe, prosperous and abounding in all plenty, that he may be terror to his Enemies, and a defence to his loving and loyal Subjects. In his safety we are safe, his Health and Wealth enables him to secure us in that which is our safety, since his Strength and his Time, his Treasures and his Power are employed and expended for the common good. And because changes are always dangerous, sometimes destructive to a Nation, we pray that may be long preserved in his gracious Reign over and no doubt his Majesty shall fare the better for Prayers of the Church, which he hath so d by being the Restorer and Defender of Trin and Discipline.

When him that he may banquish and enemies.] Guicciardine the famous is, that the constant opposition of the Emperors, had occasioned it to pass for (Proprium est Ecclesie odisse Caesares) that it natural to the Church to hate the Emperor. on how justly it is said of the Roman Church, the world knows. But 'tis sure nothing is more contrary to the Principles and Practice of this our Church, who may rejoice and glory in her fervent love of her gracious King, her devout Prayers for him, and her constant Loyalty to him and his Royal Progenitors. So that I hope, it may be more justly said, that it is natural to the true Sons of the Church of England, to love the King. Whoever loves the Peace of the Church doth heartily pray for the flourishing of the Crown; because they live and grow together; and he that is a Friend to one, cannot be a Foe to the other. His

of the quarrel, besides our late sad Experience, Reason will tell us, that War and Faction, Injustice and Cruelty, can never lodge in those breasts where pure and peaceable quality doth dwell. If it be a rein Prince that opposeth our King, he is a Robber and unjust to invade his neighbours rights; if he be a Subject who riseth against his Sovereign, he hath renounced Christianity with his Allegiance, and is to be ¶ Nisi fallor, usurpator bellum infert, Imperator jus suum tuetur. Ambr.

they may never prosper in that black Impiety of unchristian Invasion or unchristian Rebellion. And how ex- our Fidelity and our Devotions in this, agree with rites and manners of the first and best Christians, ¶ Pro piissimo & à Deo conservando Imp. nostro omniq; palatio & exercitu ejus, — pro quo pugnare Dominum Deum nostrum dignetur & subjicere sub pedibus ejus omnem hostem & bellatorem. Liturg. S. Basil. Ita fere Liturg. Chrys. Exercitus fortes, senatum fidelm, populum probum, orbem quietum. Tert. Apol. c. 30.

—ut subjectas habeant gentes, — ut amotâ perturbatione seditionis, succedat letitia. Ambr. in 1 Tim. ii.

¶ Euseb. Eccles. Hist. l. 5. c. 5.

faithful Subjects, and gives the Victory to his Anointed esteemed a troubler of our Israel. Therefore whosoever they be, are enemies to the King, or whosoever the pretence be, we appear to any discerning person. We know the Emperors were Heathens, and afterwards, obtained many and great Victories; the Christians Prayers; for which cause one of the Legions^b was nam'd the thundering Legion: and us pray in hope our Prayers be not be less effectual for a Prince, the right Faith; that so the enemies of his Soul and of his Life, the enemies of his Crown and Dignity may either be converted, or be discover'd, defeated and deservedly punished; and then we may live in Love and Peace, and give the glory of our Safety to him who strengthens the hands and hearts of

§. XI. And finally after this life, that he may attain everlasting joy and felicity, through Jesus Christ our Lord. A M E N.] Having now wished our Prince all the Happiness which this world is capable of, we must remember he is mortal, and though never so dear to us, he must be taken from us. His Health must end in Sickness, his Wealth in a Sepulchre, his Life and his Glories here must have an end. For he that conquers all other Enemies, must add to the number of Deaths Trophies and fall under the hand of the last Enemy. Wherefore we do most heartily pray, that an earthly and transient Prosperity may not be all his portion; but that he may so please God in the Administration of this temporal Authority, that when all these things cease, he may be admitted to that never-ceasing Felicity of Heaven, to reign in a glorious Eternity, crowned with that Crown of Life, which fadeth not away; which doth so infinitely transcend all that an earthly Diadem can afford, that the greatest Monarchs have renounced their Crowns and Scepters, and all the Pleasures and Magnificence of their Courts, and sought for it in the retirements of a poor Obscurity, accounting it a blessed exchange to part with Earth for Heaven, Temporals for Eternals. There is now nothing further in this world we can desire; and therefore we pray, that our dear Sovereign may never be so deceived with the glories of this golden Crown, as to forget, much less neglect or despise to seek for that glorious Crown, which is richer, sweeter and safer a thousand times; but that he may be happy both in this world and the next, through Jesus Christ, who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of Kings and Lord of Lords; by his merits alone those whose Swords can cut them a passage to an earthly throne, must be admitted to reign in Glory; and he must in-that he may have a plentiful supply, a p quiet Mind, faithful Counsellors, loyal Sub quering Armies, a long Life abounding w and Honour, and at the end of these transi a never-ceasing joy in the Kingdom of Hea let every good Subject and good Christian the Church, loves and respects his Country Let us pray thus, and live thus, to the hon the establishment of Religion, and the wel King and People. Amen.

The Paraphrase of the Prayer for the King

[O Lord our beavenly Father,] wh [high] in dignity [and might] in power should we pray for our earthly Governors, the Supreme [King of Kings] and the ab of Lords,] from whom they derive their and to whom alone they are accountable art [the only Ruler] of the hearts and exar actions [of princes] we acknowledge th jesty [we beseech thee] by thy particular Providence to defend, and [with thy] especial love and [labour to behold] thy servant and [our most gracious Sovereign Lord King Charles,] that in his safety and happiness we may have peace and comfort: [and so replenish him with] all holy and virtuous qualities by filling his heart with [the grace of thy holy Spirit, that he may] in his counsels and intentions [always incline to] choose that which is agreeable to [thy will,] and in his actions and undertakings ever follow the rule of thy Word [and walk in thy way:] And that he may be fitted for the due Administration of so great a charge, [endue him plentifully with] the spirit of wisdom and courage, and such an extraordinary measure of all [heavenly gifts] as may declare him thy Anointed. And that he may be every way blessed, [grant him in health] and safety, plenty [and wealth long to live] and prosperously to reign over us; direct, prosper and [strengthen him] and his Armies, [that he may vanquish and overcome] the policies and forces of [all his] and our [enemies,] who attempt to disturb our Peace. [And finally] since the

Of the Prayer for the Royal Family.

§.XII. T He learned Selden gives us an ancient Saxon Prayer out of an old Manuscript Form; directing the Coronation of a Queen, whence this Prayer seems to have borrowed its beginning, O Lord the fountain of all good, and giver of all increase, &c. But from whence soever the rest of this Prayer was taken, I am sure it is very proper for this occasion, as the following Analysis and Discourse will more fully manifest.

The Analysis of the Prayer for the Royal Family.

§.XIII. This Prayer hath three parts:

- | | | |
|--|---|--|
| I. The Person to whom we pray described by | 1. His Power :
2. His Goodness : | { Almighty God, the fountain of all goodness,
we humbly beseech thee to bless our gracious Queen Catharine, James Duke of York, and all the Royal Family: Endue them with thy holy Spirit, enrich them with thy heavenly grace, prosper them with all happiness,
and bring them to thine everlasting Kingdom, through Jesus Christ our
Lord. A M E N. |
| II. The Persons for whom we pray : | | |
| III. The Blessings desired for them, | 1. Spiritual Gifts and Grace:
2. Temporal Prosperity :
3. Eternal Glory : | |

A Practical Discourse on the Prayer for the Royal Family.

§. XIV. A Almighty God, the fountain of all goodness, we humbly beseech thee to bless our gracious Queen Catharine, James Duke of York, and all the Royal Family.] There is as near an alliance between this and the former Prayer, as between the Persons for whom they are made; so that there will be little to be added, except where this hath something peculiar. And first, it deserves our notice, that God is called here the fountain of all goodness, which is the explication of those Scripture-Phrases, The well-spring of life and living waters^b; and is an acknowledgment that the God we pray unto, is absolute and independent, having all goodness in and from himself, and also inexhaustible, for though he bestows his Blessings liberally and constantly upon all creatures, yet he suffers no diminution or decay. Wherefore though we have now been petitioning for a King who needs

^b Psal. xxxvi. 9.

Jerem. ii. 13.

* Pontifices, eorumque exempla ceteri sacerdotes, cum pro incolumitate principis vota susceperunt, Neronem quoque & Drusum eisdem die commendavere. Tacit. Annal. l. 4.

* ut pro Domino Imperatore cum sua prole orationes & oblationes exantentur. Concil. Rheims. can. 40.

* Lev. vi. 10.

the Heathens *, as well as the Canons * of the Christians do make it appear fit and rational. But Reasons do outweigh Example: we may add that we are always obliged to pray for the Queen and the Royal Family. 1. In regard to the Glory of God, whose Honour is advanced by the holy Example of persons so illustrious whose Dignity, when it is adorned with Piety and Goodness, brings Virtue into repute, and engage many to imitate them. 2. In duty to the Kings Majesty, whose comfort will be increased both in the Holiness and Prosperity of Persons so nearly related to him, and so dearly loved by him. 3. In affection to our Country, which in this and future generations will have cause to bless God for these Prayers, if they become prevalent; because these are the hopes of succeeding times, and our Children may be happy in the religious Education of such as are to be the Pillars of Justice and the Pillars of the Church hereafter. David had not been so curious in Solomons Education, but that he knew it was not the Princes personal concern alone, but the interest of the whole Nation and of all Gods People. The Persian Kings desired the Prayers of the Jews for their Sons (Ezra vi. 10.) and chose four of their most wise and virtuous Nobility to whom the Education of the Prince was committed, who (as Clem. Alexandrinus tells us) were called the Royal Tutors, and we hope the Care of those concerned shall be joined to the Church Prayers, and then this Petition shall be prevalent.

§. XV. Endue them with the holy Spirit, enrich them with the heavenly grace; prosper them with all happiness, and bring them to thine everlasting Kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord. AMEN.]

These particulars are a comprehension of the same blessings in other words which before we desired for the King, even spiritual, temporal and eternal Felicity.

The Persons we pray for are royally descended, nobly educated, replenished with all honourable endowments, with great Riches and vast Possessions;

Although they need none of the Wealth or Honours of this world, we may wish them greater and better things, viz. that their Virtue may be parallel to their Descent, and their Graces equal^f, may excel all other Endowments:

that they may be rich in good works, so as to gain the Love of God and of all good men: These in the first place. To which we desire it may please

God to superadd all outward happiness, that the Queen may be fruitful, the Prince healthful and the whole family numerous and fortunate, united in the bonds of an indissoluble Love, and that there may never want a man of them to sit upon the throne for ever.

Let not traiterous Projectors be more zealous to cut off these hopes, than we are to pray to God to discover and disappoint them: Let us beg that we may not provoke him to punish us in the decay of that Royal House, the establishment whereof we should wish more than that of our own Families; because the welfare of so many are dependent on it, and the consequences of change dismal and uncertain.

Therefore we will heartily pray they may have all the Happiness they can wish in this world, and so enjoy it, that they may not lose the glorious Crown of Eternity in the world to come, for which no temporal Greatness or Pleasures can make them a satisfaction. Amen.

f Nemo in nostrum gloriam vixit, nec quod ante nos fuit nostrum est; animus facit nobilem. Senec. Ep. 44.

The Paraphrase of the Prayer for the Royal Family.

O [Almighty] and all-sufficient Lord [God, the Fountain] of life, and inexhaustible Spring [of goodness,] as we have begged thy blessing for the Anointed, so also [we humbly beseech thee] in order to his comfort, our own benefit and the good of future times, continually [to bless our gracious Queen Catherine] and the illustrious Prince [James Duke of York,] that the Succession may be secured by the preservation and increase of them [and all] the branches of [the Royal Family:] And that they may please thee, and become blessings to us, [endue them with the best of all endowments [thy holy Spirit.] to direct them in all virtue, and [enrich them with] the measurable of all riches [thy heavenly grace] to make them exemplary and rich in good Works; keep them from all traiterous designs, and [prosper them with all] kind of [happiness] which this world can afford; to encourage them in well doing; and because this happiness must end, give them at the conclusion thereof of a blessed exchange [and bring them to thine everlasting Kingdom] of Joy and Peace, there to reign with thee for ever, [through] the merits and intercession of [Jesus Christ our Lord] and only Saviour.
A M E N.

SECTION VII.

Of the Prayer for the Clergy and People.

§. I. ACcording to the Method in the fore-going Versicles and Responses, having prayed to the Lord to save the King, we now proceed to beseech him to endue the Ministers with Righteousness, and also to save his People and own Inheritance; both which are comprehended in this Collect, whose Explication followeth.

The

The Analysis of the Prayer for the Clergy and People.

§. II. This Prayer hath three Parts:

- I. The Preface, in which God is acknowledged in
 1. His excellent Attributes: { Almighty and everlasting God
 2. His wonderful Works: { who alone has great mercies

II. The Petitions expressing

1. For whom we pray,
 1. Clergy: { send down our Bishops, Curates,
 2. People: { and all Communion come to their charge

2. For what we pray,

1. Grace to fit them for Duty: { the heavenly Spirit of thy grace, and that thy truly pleasant pour upon the continuance of thy blessing
2. A Blessing on their endeavors:

III. The Argument to enforce them:

{ Grant this Lord, for our sake and Jesus Christ Amen

Practical Discourse on the Prayer for the Clergy and People.

III. A Almighty and everlasting God, who alone workest great marvels.] As we have made Supplications before for our Temporal Governors, that under them we have may all those outward Blessings which will make our lives comfortable here; so we now continue to pray for our Spiritual Guides, that with them we may receive all those Graces and inward Blessings which will make our souls happy hereafter.
 We are members of the Church as well as the State, so that we must pray for those things which are requisite for the preservation and felicity of both, joyntly and separately, since they mutually support each other. And the union of men into Politics and civil Societies, is designed for the securing our Bodies and Estates, and the obtaining of external Prosperity, so the union of Christians unto one Spirit by one Faith, and into one Body by the bonds of Love, is intended by God for the edification of our Souls, and the securing our eternal Inheritance. Wherefore let us remember our Mystical as well as Political union, our Souls as well as our Bodies, and most devoutly imitate the best examples, in calling * upon God for his Church and Peoples; and especially for the Ministers thereof, as Scripture enjoyns us ^b, and as the Apostle St. Paul so often particularly intreats those he writes unto do. And for this we have in

- ^a John xvii. 20.
- Deut. xxxiii. 11.
- ^b Psal. cxxxii. 9.
- Ephes. vi. 18, 19.
- ^c Coloss. vi. 3.
- 1 Thess. v. v. 25.

pages many testimonies of holy men, who both in their publick and private worship did ever beg for the peace and welfare of the Church, more then any of their private concerns. With which noble spirit breasts be possessed, this excellent Form is here presented to us, to be offered to God with fervent Prayers, which is so contrived that the very Word and Phrase, if duly considered, may furnish us with many affecting Meditations to improve our devotion in the use of it. The Introduction sets God before in those admirable Attributes and wonderful Works which declare him every way fit to be called our Father, and mind us what he hath done for his Church, and mind us what he hath done for us: he that first gathered his Church out of Jews and ignorant Heathens by his Almighty Power and who hath by the same Omnipotence either preserved it from, or supported it against, the malice of Heretics, the rage of Persecutors, the subtilty of Heretics and the blind zeal of factious Dividers: so that it continues to this very day, and shall do to the end of the world, because our Redeemer ever lives to intercede † Matth. xvi. 18. &

 xxviii. ult. Heb. vii. 25.
 Græc. Εἰς τὸ παντελές.
 Omnis Ecclesia quæ sit propter Deum firma permanebit. Dict. Rab.

for us, and hath promised to be with us [†] for ever. Our Church is everlasting, and the duration of the Church relies on the indestructibility of the Divine Nature, which ever lives, and ever loves it, as as powerful and sufficient to support and supply it as ever in former ages. History can describe, and Fathers can tell us what marvellous works he hath done for the benefit thereof; how many miracles he wrought for the confirmation of his Truth, the conviction of its Enemies, and the strengthening of the members thereof. In the first times he did wonderfully inspire the Apostles with the Holy Ghost and power to † Acts ii. 4. & ix. 17. Miracles, by which [†] their & xix. 6. 2 Tim. i. 6. 1 Tim. i. 18. Κατὰ τὴν ἀρετὴν οὐκ ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, hoc est, ἐκ ἐνδροῦ τοῦ ἁγίου. Chrysost. Περὶ τῆς ἐκκλησίας οἱ ἐπίσκοποι ὡς ἡ χύβητος. Occum. in loc.

were distinguished for some time, till the world believe. And afterwards, though the operation is not so visible (because it was not so necessary yet the assistance is as sure, for is as requisite now as ever; the blessing upon our endeavours is as advantageous and more able to the present condition of the Church. For the greatest wonders (which some pre-o the Creation of Light out of ἡ τῆς συνάμεως καὶ συμμεῖων ἐστὶν ἰσχὺς ὑπολείπεται. Chrysost.

l. 4. de Sacerdotio.

*Necessaria fuerunt antequam crederet mundus ad hoc ut crederet. Aug.
Civ. Dei. 22.*

Darkness) is not yet ceased, viz. the Conversion of ers by that which the profane world account the finess of preaching, and then who dares deny, but works great marvels still, though not in so mag-ent a way. O therefore let us call upon this Al-ty and everlasting God, that he will marvellously asis Ministers, and wonderfully bless his People un-hem; that it may appear that he who of old was ly present with his Church by Miracles, may be now ived to be still among us by extraordinary Assies and admirable succels bestowed on his Servants.

IV. Send down upon our Bishops and Curates, all Congregations committed to their charge, ealthful spirit of thy grace.] This Prayer being for the whole Church, doth here exactly enume-the several parts of which it doth consist, Bishops, sters and Saints & in S. Pauls se; all which do make a rch. And in the antient Liies all these degrees are partily mentioned ^b and prayed though the same thing be ἡ Phil. i. 1. Τοῖς ἀγοις — σὺν ἐπισκόποις καὶ διακόνοις: Ecclesia, plebs Sacerdoti adunata & pastori suo grex ad-hærens: S. Cyprian.

Epist. 69.

Archiepiscopo nostro N. honorifico sacerdotio, in Christi Mini& omni Clero & populo, Dominum postulemus. Liturg. S. Basil.

asked for them all, the salutary spirit of the of which every one of them stands in need consideration of their several Places and Offices the best guide and help to our affectionate up this Petition. First, the Bishops, who have the highest dignity in the Church, so the greatest Charge, being to oversee both and the Ministers.

Ne te offeras, officium tibi non potestas injungitur, bodie incipiendam tibi servare omnibus.

Grotius in Math. xx. Afferit Judæos Captivos ita loqui ad Ethnarcham suum. Vid. Math. xx. 27. 1 Cor. ix. 19. Apud nos qui imperant servant iis quibus videntur imperare.

Aug. Civ. Dei, l. 19. c. 14.

1 Cor. xi. 18. Græc.

Μέμνηται πάντων τῶν ἐκκλησιῶν.

upon occasion about the most important a Church and State; which is a burden for the shoulders of an Angel. And if we consider how 1 Ecclesie salus in summi sacerdotis [i. e. Episcopi] dignitate consistit; cui si non exors quedam, & ab omnibus aetur potestas, tot efficiuntur schismata quot sacerdotes. Hier. advers. Lucifer.

So that by being advanced all, they become servants all¹, and on them as on files² lies the care of all churches. They are to end preserve the Church in Prosperity, by electing into the Ministry, and the externals of Divine with decency, and to censure; by preventing Heresies and Schisms among the Clergy by enquiring into and all publick crimes both in and People; and by c and beneficial this Office us¹ and how impossible to be performed without extraordinary measures of the Spirit of God we shall no doubt earnestly for all of this Sacred ordinance for him whom we order, whom though we here (as the ancients did)¹ by name, yet we daily remember with a particu

Dion. Secondly, Curates, by which we are not to understand stipendiary persons, but all the inferior clergy, to whom the Bishops do commit the [curam animarum] cure or charge of Souls: which name, however abused by vulgar acceptation, minds us of the origin of those we now call Ministers. For at first the charge of every City and the adjacent parts lay upon the Bishop, till by the encrease of the faithful it became necessary for him to take unto himself certain [curatores] Deputies, to whom he committed the Office of instructing, reserving to himself the rights of Government and Superiority (as is excellently proved by one of our own Authors) and these (acting as the people with and under Moses, and) taking part of the burden on them, are therefore properly called here by the name of Curates. And let all that have undertaken this weighty charge, most devoutly pray for themselves and all their Brethren, and all the faithful people of the Church joyn with us in so doing. For our Office is to instruct and instruct the ignorant, to exhort and encourage the good, to rebuke and convince sinners, to confirm the doubting, to win the gain-saying, to comfort the sad, visit the sick, to preach to our congregation, to pray with and for them, to administer the Sacraments, and in a word, to take care of the souls of the living and bury the Bodies of the dead.
Therefore the Prayers of Christs flock had need be fervent for us; since this cannot be done without the aid of the Spirit of Grace: especially because Ministers must be able to teach their Auditors, by the Innocence of their Lives ^m as well as by the vastness of their learning; and had need be free from all that might hinder them from attaining to the perfection of their Office. ^m Non statim boni sa-cerdotis est, aut tantummodo innocentè agere, aut tantummodo scientè predicare; cum & in-nocentiam sibi proficit, nisi doctus sit, & doctus sine doctrina sit inutilitate, nisi innocens sit. Hilari. Pict. de Trin. l. 8.

of the crimes with which they charge others, & reproofs become their own reproach, rather than their neighbours amendment. Lastly, the People who hear and learn from these spiritual guides, are prayed for; that they may be open to instruction, to advice, gentle upon reproofs, willing to receive Gods Word, diligent to practise it, and all benign dispositions, and replenished with Charity and Devotion. Remember (holy Brethren) seriously God and his Spirit hath charged you his people, and how strictly he will require the 2 Kings xx. 39.

Ezek. xiii. 9.

*Magisteria forinsecus adhortoria quaedam sunt; Cathedram in caelo ha-
bent, qui corda docent.*
Aug. in Epist. Johan.
Tract. 4.

2 Titus ii. 11. Verab.
Gratia salutaris, &c.
See Psal. cxxxii. 16.

you, so that if through your fault any perish, you are accountable to God for them.

How ineffectual both your prayers and Instructions will be, unless the Spirit of Grace be sent, and then you will pray for your Congregation:

them who are to suck the milk, pray for a healthful Nurse; a pious, painful, and knowing Pastor: nay let us all, Ministers & People, desire with and for one another, that Spirit of Grace that may make the whole Body of the Church healthful, and every Member strong, active, and in its place. That the Governor may be prudent, the Ruler faithful and the People diligent, and all of them ready and zealous for the duties of Religion and every good.

§. V. And that they may truly please thee, O Lord, upon them the continual dew of thy blessing. [The Grace of God is requisite to fit all the members of Christs Church for their several offices and duties, his Blessing is necessary to make their labours pro-called by Philo the celestial plant, having his verst^s and seeming to grow heaven. And herein the son holds, that as plants the influence of heaven to them, and the dew thereof them; so those which

ἡ Ἀνδραπόδον μόνον φυτὸν ἐξ ὀνόματος, — τὰς τεσσάρων ὀλυμπίων καὶ ἀ-φάερτος, ἀλλὰ μὲν μέδεται καὶ φάερτος ἔχει. L. de insid. peior.

in the Church (the garden of God) require the Spirit of Grace to make them live, and the irri-of the Divine Blessing to make them spring and forth fruit. It is not from our pains nor your alone that success must come, not from him that nor him that waters, but from God that gives the in-Cor. iii. 5, 6. Whole buckets of water poured the hand of man, will not so much refresh the as the gentler showers and dew from above; where-dew is used to express plenabundant increase^r, partiin knowledge^r, of which the from the Clouds was the lyphick among the Egypti-Let us then most passionate-for this prolifick dew, that not only please God by tant and ready attendan-

^r Gen. xxvii. 28.
 Deut. xxxiii. 18, 28.
 Hosea xiv. 5.
^r Deut. xxxii. 1.
 Egyptii eruditionem indicantes eorum pin-
 gunt rorem fundens.
 Caussin. Hieroglyph.
 Hor. Apol. 35.

on Prayers and other Offices, but truly and only please him by our fruitfulness under these let it appear by our Humility and Charity, our and Innocence, by the success of the Ministers, the improvement of every Congregation, that we receive the Grace of God in vain. For he is to give his blessing, if we be fit to receive it, he not only sprinkle but pour it on us; because we large measures, and that not only at some seldom but continually at both the morning and evening

Sacrifice, lest Affliction or Temptation should with us. O! what Soul doth not long to be thus watered since nothing can fructifie without it, nor can any thing die or be barren that doth enjoy it? Let us humbly pray that the good Orders of our Bishops, the Prayers and Exhortations of our Ministers, and the constant attendances of our People, may thus be watered from above, that we may bring forth an hundred-fold and so forth a pleasant savour of good works: like the fields of Palestine when watered from the celestial Springs. And so should every member of Christs Church live and grow and flourish, than which nothing is more desirable.

§. VI. Grant this O Lord, for the honour of our Advocate and Mediator Jesus Christ, Amen.] We must not allow either the Clergy or People to ask the Petitions with any designs to advance their own glory or to become famous for their gifts or graces. For the end must be the manifestation of the glories of our Advocate and Mediator, who at his Triumphant Ascension, gave divine gifts unto men and accounts those who are endued with them as so many rays of glory*. It is Jesus who obtains his pleading at the Throne of Grace both the Spirit and the Blessing for us, and it is he that bestows both upon the Church, for which he once gave his Body, and for which he ever sets his love. Let him have the Honour of all the holy and religious performances of his Church and let us earnestly desire, that by the flourishing of his Body all the world may see the prevalency of his intercession with God, the sincerity of his love to

* Ephes. iv. 8.

* 2 Cor. viii. 23.

Sunt Christi gloria, quia nihil habent nisi dono Christi. Calvin.

Survey

Servants, his continual care of them, and bounty to them; which will surely cause all people to advance and magnifie his holy Name. Nothing is more the Honour of Jesus now in Heaven, than that his Church be ruled with pious and wise Governors, his Ordinances administred by zealous and holy Ministers, and all places abounding with religious, loyal and charitable People. And what argument will sooner open the ears and pierce the heart of the Father of mercies, whose great design is to glorifie his dear and only Son? This declares that our Petitions herein comply with his eternal purposes. We see the dishonour of some distempered members, seems to reflect upon the head; and we are grieved for it, desiring sincerely the holy Jesus may have (as he deserves) all glory by the holiness and prosperity of his Church, and we hope that Heaven will say [Amen] hereto.

The Paraphrase of the Prayer for the Clergy and People.

O Lord, who art [Almighty] in power [and everlasting] in duration, who hast promised to be ever with thy Church, we acknowledge thee the [God who alone workest] wonders in the calling, and hast ever shewed [great marvels] for the preservation thereof in all Ages; wherefore we beseech thee to [send down] from above suitable gifts and graces upon all estates of men in the Catholick Church: particularly [upon our Bishops] to direct them in the governing, upon our Ministers [and Curates] to assist them in the feeding of thy flock; [and] also upon [all Congregations] of Christian men and women, whose souls thou hast [committed to their charge] and that the account may be given up to the Ministers comfort and the profit of thy Church.

let them all be inspired with [the healthful] and living [spirit of thy grace] to fit them for, and assist them in, all religious duties: [And that they] all in their several places [may truly please thee] by a right use of this grace, do thou plentifully [pour upon them] in all holy Offices the effectual and [the continual debt of thy blessing] that thy Messengers pains may be successful, and thy peoples lives fruitful in all good works: [Grant this] which we ask of thee [O Lord] not to advance our own fame, but [for the honour of] him that is [our Advocate] to obtain them of thee, our Redeemer [and Mediator] to dispense them to us; for the holiness and happiness of thy Church is the glory of thy dear Son [Jesus Christ,] therefore do thou with us and to us, say [Amen.]

SECT.

SECTION VIII.

Of the Prayer of S. Chryſoſtom.

§.I. THe excellent Composers of our Liturgie, were so far from affectation of Novelty, that when the Antient Offices did afford them Proper Forms, they did not make new ones; wherefore they have taken this Prayer verbatim out of the Greek Liturgies; and that none could have been more fit for this place, will appear by a more particular Consideration thereof.

The Analysis of the Prayer of S. Chrysostom § II. In this Prayer are two parts :

I. The ground of our asking, considering

1. The Experience of Gods grace :

2. The Truth of his Promise :

II. The Petition or thing asked : Hearing our Prayers, as to

1. The Matter :

2. The Manner :

3. The principal Requests

1. To know God.

2. To enjoy him :

Almighty GOD who hast given grace at this time with one accord make our common supplications unto thee, and dost promise that when two or three are gathered together in thy Name, thou wilt grant their requests, fulfil now O LORD the desires and petitions of thy servants, as may be most expedient for them: granting us in this world knowledge of thy truth, and in the world to come life everlasting, A M E N.

A Practical Discourse on the Prayer of S. Chryſoſtom.

§. III. ALmighty God, who haſt given us grace at this time, with one accoꝝd to make our common ſupplications unto thee.] This excellent concluſion of our Prayers that bears the name of its renowned Author, was well known to the Greek Church; for it is ſtill found extant in the Liturgies both of S. Chryſoſtom and S. Baſil. And yet its own worth might ſufficiently recommend it, if it wanted the reputation of thoſe honourable Names. For it is founded on our own experience, and the certainty of his Promise who is infallible; carried on with ſuch ſubmiſſion to the Divine Will, and deſigned ſo to our chiefſt advantages, that nothing can be more judiciously contrived, or more pertinently applied to this cloſe of our Devotion. Where it ſeems to review and re-enforce all our former Petitions, to revive our hopes of acceptance and encourage our zeal in them, yet ſo as to repreſent our neceſſities in the moſt humble and lowly manner, with ſubmiſſion to his Wiſdom, who beſt knows what is moſt expedient for us. We may now reflect on thoſe many neceſſary and uſeful Prayers which we have offered up to God with an unanimous conſent and a hearty Devotion; and it is fit we ſhould pay our grateful acknowledgments for that Grace which hath aſſiſted us therein. For there are no clearer evidences of the preſence of the Divine Spirit in our Prayers, then the ſincere agreement and harmonious accord of our ſouls in the joynt oblation of them^a, and the fervent affections that every one in particular hath added to them. It is his Grace that hath bound our arrows together by the bonds of love, and hath directed them to pierce the Clouds by a vigorous and steady zeal. And we have the surer ground to believe he hath assisted us and the greater cause to praise him for it, in regard these are no other then our Common Prayers and ordinary Supplications, which have no Novelties or Varieties to court our fancies, but yet have been made new to us by a fresh supply of his heavenly Grace, which hath kindled our accustomed Sacrifice with new flames. And if we well consider, the effects of Gods grace are rather to be judged by the heart than the tongue, by renewed affections rather than change of expressions. And to be sure nothing but a new sense of our old wants, can give life to these Petitions. Wherefore as we daily receive new succours, let us daily make new acknowledgments; that as we have the comfort of our Union and Zeal, so he who bestows them may have the glory. And yet this is not all the use we must make of the experience which we have had of his enabling us to pray; for it must strengthen our Faith, and quicken our Hope that we shall be heard. For he that helps us • Matth. xxv. 25.

^a Acts i. 14. & 4. 24.
Grec. 'ὁμοθυμαδόν.

Psal. x. 17.

thereunto. The first step towards the obtaining of a Blessing, is the giving us a heart devoutly to ask for it *. Which desire he would not create, if he did not intend to fulfil it. Therefore we may lay this as a foundation, on which we may cheerfully request his gracious acceptance of those Prayers which he hath quickned us to by a new Devotion.

* Signum futura impetrationis est quando Spiritus S. movet ad petendum cum fiducia & quasi securitate impetrandi.
Cassian. coll. 9.

IV. And lest peradventure that when two or three gathered together in thy name thou wilt grant requests.] But that we may not doubt of the efficacy of our Petitions, nor go away from the use of Grace with a sad heart, we have not only aids of hope from the operations of the Spirit (tho' they are secret, and not always so discernable) but an infallible promise made by him who is Truth itself, and in whom all the Promises of God are Yea and Amen. Which assureth us that the united requests of a People, who meet and pray in his name can miscarry, (Matth. xviii. 19, 20.) For Jesus is highly delighted in the unions and unanimities of the faithful, if but two of them ^e agree to ask any thing, it shall be done for them, and wheresoever two or three are gathered together in his name, he is ^f in the midst of them. He is there before they come, to receive their Supplication, and whosoever meet in his ^e ubi duo confident sermonem habentes de lege, Schechinah est inter ipsos. R. R. ap. Dros. Non multitudini sed unitati plurimum tribuendum. Cypr. de unit. Eccles.

^f Non dicit Ego, non his Command and Authority, in hopes of and trust in his Power and Aid, to pay our homage to him, to declare our Faith in him, and to own our dependance upon him. Wherefore his own Promise doth oblige him to hear us. Sometimes the Congregation is very numerous, and he that will hear so few, will (as an Ancient notes) much rather receive those requests to which many have unanimously and devoutly said Amen. But if there be but few (as to the shame of this Nation is too often seen) the wickedness of the neglecter ought not to reproach the Piety of those that are present, nor is it safe for men to despise them for their paucity, since Jesus disdains not the smallest Number.

Quando decem homines intrant domum Synagogae, Discipulus est cum illis: Dicant enim in Talm. Decem faciunt eorum, ita Rab. Salom. in Numb. xiv. 27.

The Jewish Masters indeed teach that Ten is the least number to make an Assembly fit for the Divine Presence. But our gracious Lord descends lower, even unto two or three, that none might be discouraged by the negligence of their Brethren. And now be we never so few, if we be unanimous and devout, what comfort will this promise leave upon our spirits in the close of our Prayers, which ascend to Heaven with privilege and authority! When they are backed with his promise they cannot fail. Who would not lay aside all occasions and run every day to meet with Jesus who is sure to be found in the Temple? And who would not love these Devotions in which so many thousands do agree? And who (that believes the truth of Jesus) can doubt of a gracious return to them? If you find but few of your brethren at Church, yet you shall find him whom your soul seeks there, and by his grace and his answers you shall find he hath been with you and left a blessing behind him.

§. V. Fulfil now, O Lord, the desires and petitions of thy servants, as may be most expedient for them. Having so good grounds to believe he hath been perfect with us, both from the experience of his assistance, and the certainty of his promise, we are taught now to speak to the holy Jesus, as it were face to face, to apply our selves to him as if he stood before us; beseeching him who enabled us to put up these requests, and hath been among us and heard them all along, to make good his promise, and, as he was nigh unto us when we called on him, that he will fulfil the desires of us that fear him ^b. Desires and petitions are empty things, the ^a hunger and thirst of the soul, and when the Divine bounty satisfies these desires, he is said to fill us; for food is not more pleasing to a hungry body, than the desire accomplished ^c is to a longing soul. There we beseech him ^d who hears the Petitions of our mouths, and also discerns the meditations of our hearts, that he will fulfil all our wishes as holy David prays, Psalm.

^a Psalm. cxlv. 18, 19.

^d Prov. xiii. 19.

to us cannot discern, but our Lord Jesus both sees and will fulfil these as well as those Petitions, which were the ground of such devout enlargements. He will grant both if it be expedient for us; but because we are so unable to judge what is for our real advantage, we must not too peremptorily require that he should give us all we wish or pray for. We may ask for evil things, or a Non pro iocundis optissima quæque dabunt Dñs - cuncta magnæque cupidine dultis, Conjugium petimus, partumque uxoris; et illuc notum quæ pueri qualisque futuræ sit uxor. Juvenal: Exorati in petitiis rogemus, serua benignitas.

• Ζεῦ, βασιλεῦ τῆ γῆ ἐδδλὰ καὶ ἐνχοῦθοις καὶ ἀνδράσις Ἀμὲν δίδου, καὶ ὃ δυνάει καὶ ἐνχοῦθοις ἀπαλλάξαι.

for good things which may be evil for us; or we may desire them unseasonably, immoderately, or to evil purposes, and then it were cruelty to hear us, and it is the greatest kindness to deny us. Let us therefore learn from the example of Christ himself, to submit our will to the will of God, and learn from a Heathen to give God leave to choose for us; who being infinite in wisdom and goodness knows what is fittest for us, and when and where, and in what manner and what measures to bestow it. So that if we leave it to him, we shall have all mercies with infinite advantages, when we are fittest for them, and when they will do us most good. Whereupon we must resolve though our Petitions and desires be earnest, yet they shall not be arrogant nor presumptuous, but shall learn humbly to submit unto, and patiently to wait upon our Heavenly Fathers order and appointment.

§. VI. Granting us in this world knowledge of the truth, and in the world to come life everlasting, Amen. To know God here by Faith, and to behold him hereafter and enjoy him, is the sum of our true happiness. And therefore we need not positively pray for any thing

SEC - 711 ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~[illegible]

The Paraphrase of the Prayer of S. Chrysostom.

WE acknowledge thy goodness, O [Almighty God who] remembering our inability to serve thee [hast given us] that sweet and efficacious assistance of thy [grace at this time] which hath enabled us [with one accord] and a fervent devotion [to make our] Addresses to thee with new affections: even in the presenting these our daily and [common supplications unto thee:] we confess thou hast helped us to ask, and therefore hope thou intendest to give, and the rather because thou hast assured us [and dost promise, that when two or three] even the smallest number of the faithful in obedience to thy command [are gathered together] to offer up their united Prayers to the Father [in thy name] they shall find thee present in the midst of them, for [thou wilt grant their requests.] Wherefore since we have called upon thee by thine aid and are assembled in thy name, [fulfil now O Lord] unto us this gracious promise, and mercifully accept [the desires] and meditations, which have been sent from the hearts, the Prayers [and Petitions] uttered from the mouths [of thy servants,] supplying their wants with the best things, and at the fittest times [as may be] judged by thy infinite wisdom [most expedient for them.] But however thou dealest in all other things, let the interest of our souls be secured both here and hereafter, by thy [granting us in this world] daily experiments and further [knowledge of thy truth,] in the fulfilling of thy promises, and the granting of our Prayers; that so we may never forsake thee here [and in the world to come] our happiness shall be compleated by thy bringing us then to [life everlasting] through Jesus Christ our Lord
AMEN.

A N
A P P E N D I X
 O F

The Final Blessing taken out of 2 Cor. xiii. ult.

VII. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all evermore. AMEN] In Religious Assemblies it hath been the custom to dismiss the people with a Blessing, which was wont to be pronounced by the principal Person present^r, sometimes by the King^r, but most commonly by the Priests^r, whose Office was to bless in the Name of the Lord.

^r Heb. vii. 7.

^r 2 Sam. vi. 18.

^r 1 King. viii. 55.

^r Numb. vi. 23, 24, &c.

And therefore under the Law, there was a particular form of Benediction, which the Jews to this day observe so religiously, that they believe it ought to be repeated in the Holy Tongue^c, and to be received by the People with reverence, bowing their heads and prostrating their bodies; so that no man may presume to look upon the Priests' hands when they are stretched out to give it, because they say, then the glory of God rests upon them. And the Christian Church also they ever concluded with a Blessing ('tis likely the same we now use, being ended by the Holy Spirit, and used by S. Paul in the close of his Epistle to the Corinthians) concerning which it was ordered, that the Assembly should bow their heads

^c Fagius in Numb. vi. Buxtorf. Synag. c. xiv. See Nehem. viii. 6.

* Karbena avon vñ papalavivavon
 avon Emavon.
 Clem. Const.
 Aut benedictionem fa-cerent, egredi populum non profuerit. Concil.
 Agath. can. 31.

when 'it was pronounced: and it was decreed by a Council, that none might depart out of the Church till it was given. But to give a greater strength to these Orders, let us consider the excellency of this Divine Blessing, and sure its own perfections will oblige us to stay for it, and engage us to receive it with all devotion and reverence. The legal Benediction was no more but a wish for temporal felicity: but this contains the whole order of our salvation and brings in the glorious Trinity with the several gifts of each Person to make us compleatly happy. The Father indeed is first in order, but we begin with the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that is, the benefits purchased by his Passion; because he is the first mover in our acceptance, and obtains both the love of God the Father, and the Communication of the Holy Ghost. What can the pious soul ask or desire which is not comprehended in this Blessing? here is the grace of the Son to pardon our sin, the love of the Father to supply our wants, the fellowship of the Blessed Spirit to strengthen our weakness. The first to redeem us, the second to justify us, the third to sanctify us: and all these not only at this present, but to be confirmed to us, and remain with us, even when we are gone from the holy place, in life and death and for ever. Nor are these only desired, but they are pronounced over us by the Ambassador of God, whom he hath sent to bless in his name: And this Minister of Heaven being cheered with observing our Devotion, doth from his soul wish, and Ministerially (as far as in him lies) dispense these unspeakable blessings to us. And what he doth on Earth shall be ratified in Heaven to every truly holy man. O let us bow our heads and open our hearts receive this universal blessing as from God himself, and depart from the holy place full of comfort and joy, that we have such a preservative against all evil, and such a guide and encouragement to all good, even the blessing of God to be with us and remain upon us for ever: and to this let all the people say, A M E N.

• The Blessing Paraphrased.

L Et [The Grace] and all the benefits of the death [of our Lord Jesus Christ] merit our Absolution, [and the love of God] the Father seal our Justification, [and the fellowship] and Communication of the Graces [of the Holy Ghost] perfect our sanctification. And let all these at present [be with us] and rest upon us [all evermore.] A M E N.

Τῷ Θεῷ μόνῳ δόξα.

A TABLE

Of the chief Heads in

MORNING and EVENING PRAYER, &c.

PARTITION I.

	Sect.	Parag.	Pag.
O f the Sentences of Scripture Pre- paratory to Publick Prayer }	I.	I	1
The Analysis of the Sentences			5
Of the Sentences proper for those who } fear Gods Anger		3	6
The first Sentence			ibid.
Paraphrase			7
The second			ibid.
Paraphrase			8
The third			ibid.
Paraphrase			10
A Meditation upon Psal. li. 9. & cxlviii. 2. & Jer. x. 24. Pre- paratory to Prayer in the fears of Gods Anger. }			ibid.
Of the Sentences proper for those who } doubt of Gods Favour		4	13
The First Sentence			ibid.
Paraphrase			15
			The

A T A B L E.

	Sect.	Parag.	Pag.
The Second			ibid.
Paraphrase			17
The third			ibid.
Paraphrase			18
A Meditation upon Psal. li. 17.
Dan. ix. 9. & Luk. xv. 18, 19.			19
Preparatory to Prayer, when we doubt of the Favour of God to us
Of the Sentences proper for the Ignorant	5		21
The first Sentence			ibid.
Paraphrase			24
The second			25
Paraphrase			26
A Meditation upon 1 Joh. i. 8, 9. &
Ezek. xviii. 27. Preparatory			27
to Prayer, for the instruction of the Ignorant and Mistaken
Of the Sentences proper for the Neg-	6		30
ligent
The first			ibid.
Paraphrase			31
The second			ibid.
Paraphrase			33
A Meditation upon Psal. li. 3. &
Matth. iii. 3. Preparatory to			34
Prayer for the quickning of such
as neglect Repentance
Of the Sentence proper for the Formal	7		36
Paraphrase			38
			4

A TABLE

Self. Part. Page

A Meditation upon Job. in 13. Preparatory to Prayer for such as are apt to rest in the out- ward part			39
Of the Exhortation after the Sentences II		I	42
The Analysis		2	43
A Practical Discourse		3. sec.	44
The Paraphrase			60
Of the Daily Confession III			64
The Analysis			ibid.
A Practical Discourse		1. sec.	66
The Paraphrase			105
Of the Absolution IV			109
Of Absolution in General		I	ibid.
The Analysis		2	111

A T A B L E

	Sect.	Parag.	Pag.
Of the Lessons	IX	1, &c.	228
Of the Hymns for the Morning Prayer, and first of the Te Deum	X	1	245
The Analysis		2	246
A Practical Discourse		3, &c.	247
Of the second Hymn after the first Lesson at Morning Prayer, or the Benedicite	XI	1	265
The Analysis		2	266
A brief Discourse		3, &c.	267
Of the Benedictus or the first Hymn after the second Lesson	XII	1	269
The Analysis		2	ibid.
A Practical Discourse		3, &c.	270
The Paraphrase			279
Of the C. Psalm, or the second Hymn after the second Lesson	XIII	1	283
The Analysis		2	284
A brief Discourse		3, &c.	285
A Paraphrase			287
Of the Magnificat, or the first Hymn after the first Lesson at Evening Prayer	XIV	1	289
The Analysis		2	ibid.
A Practical Discourse		3 &c.	290
The Paraphrase			299
Of the XCVIII. Psalm, or the second Hymn after the first Lesson	XV	1	301

A T A B L E.

	Scct.	Parag.	Pag.
Analysis		2	ibid.
of Discourse		3, &c.	302
the Paraphrase			304
1st Hymn but one, or Nunc	XVI	1	307
mittis		2	ibid.
Analysis		3	308
of Discourse			312
the Paraphrase
last Hymn, or the	XVII	1	314
Salmon		2	315
Analysis		3, &c.	316
of Discourse			318
the Paraphrase

PAR-

A TABLE

PARTITION II.

Of the latter Part of Morning and Evening Prayer.

	Seet.	Parag.
O f the Apostles Creed	I	1
The Analysis		2
A General Discourse		3
The Paraphrase and Application
The Appendix concerning S. Athanasius his Creed		1, &c.
Of the Versicles and their Responsals, before and after the Lords Prayer	II	1, &c.	35
The Paraphrase			36
Of the Collects for the Week and Festival days	III	1	36
An Analysis		2	37
Of the two Collects peculiar to Morning Prayer	IV.	I	37
The Analysis of the Morning Collect for Peace		2	37
A Practical Discourse		3, &c.	37
The Paraphrase			38
The Analysis of the Morning Collect for Grace		7	38
A Practical Discourse		8, &c.	38
The Paraphrase			38

